U. S. AGREES TO 'RANSOM' FLIERS

Report 152 Others Escaped; Truce Line Trial Period's Extension Seen

MUNSAN, Korea, Thursday, Dec. 27 (AP)—The Communists Wednesday admitted they had captured 1,058 Americans not previously listed, but said 571 were dead and gave no assurance the others were alive.

The U. N. command called the report a "shocking disclosure." The Allied negotiators had demanded to know the fate of the 1,058, whose names were missing from a list of 3,198 Americans the Reds produced Dec. 18.

The approaching end of the 30-day cease-fire line trial period found the armistice discussions still deadlocked over the prisoner exchange issue and plans for supervising any truce.

That deadline expires at midnight tonight (10 a. m., Thursday, E.S.T.) If no final armistice agreement is reached by then—and the outlook is hopeless—then the provisional cease-fire line drawn Nov. 27 goes out the window.

Extension Is Expected

The deadline could be extended by mutual agreement, but a U. N. spokesman said neither side has proposed one.

(Diplomatic sources in Washington said Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme U. N. commander, has been authorized to extend the agreement if he sees fit. These sources said they expected both sides to agree to an extension.)

Barring an extension, another line reflecting any changes in battle positions, would have to be drawn when an armistice finally is signed. This opens the way to possible resumption of heavy fighting. The ground war has been quiet through most of the past 30 days.

Subcommittees on both prisoner exchange and truce supervision went back to work against this deadline in sessions opening at 11 a. m. (9 p. m. Wednesday, E.S.T.)

No Escapees Reached Safety

The U. N. command at Wednesday's meeting took issue with the Red list of Americans.

Of the 1,058 on the list, the Communists said 571 died, 152 escaped. three were released. They professed to be trying to find out what happened to the other 332.

The U. N. said that of the 155 said to have escaped or been released, not one reached Allied lines.

The Communists asserted those who died succumbed to illness or wounds, or perished from air attacks or artillery fire as they were being marched from the front.

1913 Encyclopedia Upsets Russians

MOSCOW, Dec. 26 (AP) — The Literary Gazette complained today that "second hand bookshops" are still selling an encyclopedia for children which was published in 1913.

It complained further that this encyclopedia tells children such things as this: That Tsar Nicholas loved his people; that the Italian Marconi invented the wireless; that the Civil War in the United States freed negro slaves.

The Gazette urged hurry on the task of getting out a new encyclopedia for children.

USW's Leaders To Make Strike Decision Today

Steel Union Seen Extending Deadline

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 26 (AP)—Tomorrow is the day of decision in the steel dispute. Leaders of the CIO United Steelworkers meet here to decide whether the new year will bring a nationwide steel strike.

Optimism mounted over chances for continued production of defense-essential steel as members of the USW executive board and wage-policy committee began arriving for sessions starting at 10 a. m. (ES).

President Philip Murray of the USW and the CIO hasn't tipped his hand but he is widely expected to ask the union's governing bodies to authorize continued production at least until Jan. 3. On that date, the union will hold a special international convention at Atlantic City to debate the USW's future course.

Knotty Problem

If the optimists are right, the convention may authorize a stay-on-the-job policy to continue in effect until the USW finds out what kind of a contract settlement is recommended by the Wage Stabilization Board.

It's a knotty problem. The union wants an 18½ cent hourly pay boost for workers now averaging $1.93, a guaranteed annual wage, union shop, elimination of geographical pay inequities, improved premium and incentive pay and other concessions. The USW claims the pay boost is made necessary by higher living costs. It accuses U. S. Steel Corp., the industry leader, with filibustering instead of bargaining.

The industry says federal wage and price controls tie its hands and that no wage boost can be made unless the companies can write higher price tags for its goods. Industry spokesmen say a wage increase would only add to the inflationary pressure. They have made no pay offer.

OPS Raps Both Sides

Government officials have been studying the controls picture to see what they might approve. On the eve of the USW meetings, it was learned the Office of Price Stabilization doesn't agree with either side.

A private OPS memorandum says steel company profits are high enough to justfy their making a "reasonable" pay boost without upping prices. It also contends steelworkers wages are high enough for the men to be satisfied with a pay increase which falls within present federal controls.

U. S. War Casualties Increase To 103,418

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26 (AP)—Announced U. S. battle casualties in Korea reached 103,418 today, an increase of 409 since last week.

The Defense Department's weekly summary based on notifications to families through last Friday reported:

Killed in action, 15,804; wounded, 74,813, and missing, 12,801.

Peiping Airs Charge

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26 (AP) — The Peiping radio today alleged the U. S. Seventh Fleet was ferrying 70,000 Chinese Nationalist troops to Thailand en route to North Burma "to carry out large-scale disturbances against our borders."

Egyptian Police, Students Clash

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 26 (AP)—Angry demonstrations against the royal palace and the Western powers broke out today at the first clear indication that King Farouk does not see eye-to-eye with his government in its troubles with the British.

Police used tear gas to break up a student mob of about 5,000 in Alexandria which shouted slogans against Hafez Afifi Pasha, a pro-Western banker appointed by the King Monday night to head his royal cabinet.

Seven police were reported injured by stones and two students were hurt.

In Cairo a bigger crowd massed at Fuad University and shouted against Afafi Pasha, who acts as the king's advisor and contact man with government but has no executive authority.

Fuad and Mohammed Ali Pasha Universities in Cairo and Farouk University in Alexandria were ordered closed indefinitely, and emergency police squads took up stations throughout Cairo in a state of alert.

Other scattered demonstrations, with some of the crowd carrying staves, occurred in Cairo.

'Top Secret' Plans For Mine Stolen, Newspaper Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (AP)—The New York Daily News says America's "top secret" design for a harbor mine was stolen and Russian copies have been used in Korea, but the spies who stole the design are still at large.

The News said the design for the mines is still top seceret in Washington although Russian-made copies killed and wounded many Americans in a Korean harbor more than a year ago.

A spy hunt began as soon as the mines were discovered, the News said, but "so far as can be learned, the spies are still spying."

Lewis Reaches Own Conclusions On Blast Cause

On-The-Spot Probe Not Yet Completed

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., Dec. 26 (AP)—John L. Lewis tonight reached his "own definite conclusions" on the cause of the coal mine explosion here which took 119 lives.

But the president of the United Mine Workers refused to give them as he emerged from the 550-foot deep pit along with federal and state authorities at the end of their first day of an on-the-spot inquiry.

"I have reached my own definite conclusions," Lewis said, "but I'm withholding comment on them."

Federal, state and company officials had no comment after eight hours in the mine beyond saying the investigation was continuing.

"The inquiry is not completed," John J. Forbes, director of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, said. "It will continue. We will go down again tomorrow."

Body Of Last Victim Found

There was no indication when the inquiry would be concluded but before the investigators went down into blast-torn Orient No. 2 mine, a spokesman said they expeced to reach no conclusions for several days as to the cause of the nation's worst mine disaster in 23 years.

The body of the last of the victims was found today, 114 hours after the explosion. He was James O. Cantrell, 44, a crew foreman of West Frankfort. His body had been buried by a rock fall.

In Washington, a Senate Labor-Management subcommittee headed by Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) sent a representative to the blast scene to open a Congressional inquiry.

Humphrey said the subcommittee hopes to gather information for possible new mine safety legislation.

Lewis May Call Stoppage

Before going down the mine today, Lewis said "I shall be here until I am satisfied the investigation is being properly conducted."

In answer to reports he might call a 10-day work stoppage in the nation's coal mines as a memorial to the dead men, the bushy-browed president of the United Mine Workers said, "That's a rumor and I don't answer rumors."

Only a few hours later it was learned that an Indiana mine was idle today due to the absence of its 460 employes. This was the Talley Dale mine near Terre Haute, one of the largest of the 70 union mines in Indiana.

Ickes In Hospital

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26 (AP) — Former Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes is in a hospital under treatment for what his wife describes as "a mighty painful nerve root condition," a form of neuritis.

Story Of House Santa Claus Forgot Told In Mass. Court

LAWRENCE, Mass., Dec. 26. (AP)—The story of the house Santa Claus forgot was told in District Court today.

It was Christmas Eve. But it was not Santa who came to the apartment of Mrs. Florence Houle, 28, in Lawrence's tenement district. Her husband, also 28, is a soldier at Phoenix, Arizona. Policewoman Beatrice Clarke had been told something was wrong at the Houle tenement.

And this is what she told Special Justice William H. Daly today:

She found four little grey-eyed boys ranging in age from one year to eight—alone in the unheated rooms. Outdoors the temperature was below freezing. In the house there was not even a crust of bread—and no fuel.

Baby William, one year old, wore a tiny jacket. He had no other garment and was barefoot. His feet and hands were swollen, red, with cold.

Eight-year-old Robert shivered in sweater and pants. Ronald, 5, and Daniel, 5, huddled beneath some coats on a couch. There were neither sheets nor blankets in the rooms.

Fearing the boys might have suffered frostbite, Policewoman Clarke tried to dress them in what garments she could find, to send them to a hospital.

It was then Mrs. Houle appeared—well dressed, but under the influence of liquor, Policewoman Clarke testified. She added that when the mother tried to interfere with the removal of the children she was arrested.

Mrs. Houle pleaded guilty to a drunkenness charge in court today and was held in $300 bail by Judge Daly pending the filing by police of other charges.

Policewoman Clarke quoted Mrs. Houle as saying she received a $145 monthly allotment from her husband for the family's support.

Today, at Burke Memorial Hospital, attendants said the boys hadn't suffered frost bite and were doing well.

Kennan Named Russia Envoy

President Acts As Reds' Pravda Attacks Diplomat

Kirk's Retirement Request Is Granted

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 26 (AP) — President Truman today named George F. Kennan to be ambassador to Russia almost at the same time that Pravda, authoritative voice of the Communist Party, was vigorously attacking the diplomat.

Joseph Short, press secretary, said Mr. Truman had "reluctantly agreed to accede" to Ambassador Alan Kirk's request for retirement.

Kennan is the originator of the administration's containment policy to meet the threat of Russian aggression.

Despite the attack in Pravda today, Short said the Kremlin had agreed to accept Kennan as ambassador to Moscow. Pravda called him a supporter of anti-Soviet organizations.

Career Diplomat

Kennan, a career diplomat, entered the State Department in September, 1926. He was director of the department's policy planning staff from March, 1948 to January, 1950. He also served as counselor for the State Department, leaving that post in September, 1950, when he went on leave.

Since that time he has been associated with the Institute for Advanced Studies at Princeton University and the Ford Foundation.

His work with the Ford Foundation was the basis of the Pravda attack today. The Soviet newspaper said Kennan "was in direct charge of the foundation's subsidizing of anti-Soviet organizations."

"In the current year," Pravda said, "the most generous appropriations from this fund have been given for activization of underground activity of various anti-Soviet agents and the conduct of subversive anti-Soviet propoganda, in particular radio propaganda."

Foundation Aids Exiles

The attack was contained in a dispatch from New York and was the first mention of Kennan's name in the Communist press since it became known a month ago that Mr. Truman was considering his appointment.

The Ford Foundation set aside $200,000 last May to help exiles from Russia to settle in the United States. Pravda said a published appeal of the Committee for Assistance was intended to mobilize assistance for fleeing criminals and was evidence of a U. S. government policy to support and bless subversive activities against Russia.

Kennan resigned his post with the Ford committee on Nov. 23.

Snow Hits Travel And Production

[By The Associated Press]

Travel and production slowed down in some snow-burdened sections of the icy north yesterday.

Thousand of workers were idle.

The Hudson Motor Car Company in Detroit laid off 6,000 men. Trains and trucks couldn't bring enough car parts to the plant.

Two Janesville, Wis., factories—the Fisher Body Division of General Motors and Chevrolet — were forced to close because of a shortage of materials, and 2,500 workers were sent home.

A lack of parts from suppliers caused the layoff of 200 to 300 employes of Thor Corporation in Cicero, a suburb of Chicago.

Chicago, the nation's rail hub and Detroit, the world's motor car capital, struggled to throw off strait jackets of snow.

Detroit has had a record of 32 inches of it since Nov. 1, the bulk of it in the last 13 days. Chicago has had a record 33.4 inch fall so far this month.

Thousands of cars were trapped in both cities.

Gracie Fields, Radio Repairman To Wed

ISLE OF CAPRI, Italy, Dec. 26 (AP) — Gracie Fields today called her friends to her villa; Canzone Del Mare (Song of the Sea) and sang, "I'm In Love, Love." Then she introduced the fiance she said she will marry in February, Romanian-born Abraham Boris Alberovich, Capri's radio repairman for 20 years.

The romance is something which could have come right out of one of Gracie's comedies.

The comedienne, who will be 54 next month, said she called for someone to repair her radio set and fell in "love at first sight" with the good-looking, sun-tanned, blonde, blue-eyed Alberovich, 48.

Vogeler Raises "Ransom" Fund

Robert Vogeler, who served 17 months in a Hungarian prison as an American "spy," said last night he would refund private donations to a $120,000 fund for freeing four fliers downed in Hungary as soon as he had "definite proof" they had been released. Vogeler, shown above with his wife, Lucille, launched a drive for funds before the government said it would pay the fliers' fines

Fairmont Man, 45, Held In Drowning Of Wife And Baby

Drove Car Into River; Claims Suicide Pact

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Dec. 26 (AP)—A 45-year-old Fairmont man was charged with murder tonight in the drowning of his wife and one-year-old daughter in the Monongahela River.

Police Chief John R. Austin said the warrant was obtained against Howard Patterson Daugherty, 45, who told officers he drove his 1950-model car into the stream last night in a pre-arranged suicide pact.

The dead were Mildred Bruce Daugherty, 35, former Fairmont beauty parlor operator, and Peggy Louise Daugherty, the couple's daughter. Austin quoted Daugherty that he and his wife had been estranged for 11 months.

Held Without Bond

The murder warrant was sworn out by Austin before Magistrate H. Pete Hamilton and served on Daugherty late today in the Marion County Jail, where he was being held without bond.

Daugherty, a World War II veteran, formerly was employed at a grocery warehouse here, but told police he quit his job because he was "nervous and upset," Austin said.

The police chief said Daugherty told this story of the drownings, which occurred about 10 p. m. yesterday at Hoult, three miles north of Fairmont:

The man met his wife and daughter about 6 p. m. by prearrangement, and they drove for several hours inspecting possible places to carry out their suicide agreement.

Swam Out Through Window

The couple made two trips along a short stretch of roadway paralleling the river at Hoult, and Daugherty was quoted that he drove the car into the stream as he headed back toward Fairmont on the second trip.

As the vehicle settled beneath the surface some 20 feet from shore, Daugherty managed to roll down a window and swim to safety. He shouted once or twice, but did not visit any house in the neighborhood in search of assistance.

He then walked to his home in Fairmont's Graham Heights Addition, picked up a pack of cigarets and continued to the county jail to report the happenings.

Halley To Wed Nurse

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (AP) — City Council President Rudolph Halley will be married tomorrow to Miss Janice Brosh, 31, a nurse who cared for him during an illness last April.

The former counsel of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee said the wedding will be in the chambers of Presiding Justice David W. Peck of the appellate division of the State Supreme Court.

Woman Spanked By Mate Kills Self

SHREVEPORT, La., Dec. 26. (AP)—Mrs. Sybil Harris Thompson, 40, enraged by a spanking her husband gave her on Christmas Eve, shot herself to death.

Dr. Charles S. Boone, deputy Caddo Parish coroner, gave a verdict of suicide.

Prisoners Slash Heel Tendons

BUFORD, Ga., Dec. 26. (AP)—About 30 inmates of Georgia's Rock Quarry Prison for incorrigibles slashed their heel tendons yesterday after a big Christmas dinner "to get out of work," Warden Hubert L. Smith said today.

The prison physician promptly sewed the cuts and the prisoners were placed in solitary confinement, the warden added. He said only a few of the cuts were deep and added that all probably would be back at work soon.

Warden Smith said the prisoners, who comprise about one-fifth of Rock Quarry's complement, began slashing their tendons following a holiday repast which included turkey and all the trimmings with pie for dessert.

One prisoner obtained a razor blade, he related, slashed his heel, and the blade was passed to the others in rapid succession.

The group was reported as objecting to limited visiting privileges and the lack of newspapers, radios and magazines in the prison.

Mystery Blast Kills Prominent Negro Leader

Wife Hurt As Florida Home Is Ripped Open

MIMS, Fla., Dec. 26 (AP)—A prominent negro leader was killed and his wife seriously hurt by a mysterious blast which ripped open their isolated one-story frame home near here Christmas night.

He was Harry T. Moore, 46, negro school teacher and official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

His wife, Harriet, school teacher at Lake Park near West Palm Beach, was given a 50-50 chance for recovery. Moore's daughter and his mother, home for the holidays from their school teaching jobs in other counties, were asleep in adjoining bedrooms but escaped injury.

Gov. Warren Criticized

In New York, Executive Secretary Walter White of the NAACP, linked the blast with "a reign of terror and violence which has afflicted the state of Florida in recent months."

"Although repeatedly appealed to, Gov. Fuller Warren has consistently refused to take any steps to uphold law and order in that state," White said in a statement. "Nor has the federal government taken effective action to bring the perpetrators of these crimes to justice."

Governor Sends Investigator

He said Moore's "murder" could not be considered apart from disorders resulting from the widely known Lake County rape case, the bombing of Jewish synagogues and and a negro housing development in Miami.

Warren said at Tallahassee he was sending an investigator here immediately. His action came prior to the dispatch of telegrams by the NAACP in New York asking the governor and U. S. Attorney General Howard McGrath to take immediate affirmative action.

Big Green Diary Crops Up At Wanger's Arraignment

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Dec. 26 (AP)—A big green diary cropped up today as Movie Maker Walter Wanger was arraigned on a charge of shooting his wife's agent with intent to kill.

Wanger's attorney, Jerry Giesler, also took note of the announced unwillingness of the agent, Jennings Lang, to prosecute by winning an order putting Lang under a tentative $2,500 appearance bond.

And he won a delay for entering his client's plea to the charge, telling the judge he hasn't yet had time to study the grand jury indictment.

Lang, 39, was subpoenaed to court today for the arraignment, but he didn't appear. He is home abed, recovering from a bullet wound in the groin inflicted, Wanger said, "because he tried to break up my home."

Both Lang and Wanger's wife, Joan Bennett, 41, have denied that theirs was more than a business relationship. Lang told reporters that it was all a misunderstanding and that he'd like to forget about the shooting.

The green diary, which Giesler said is "thick as a bible," hadn't been mentioned in the case before. Giesler told the court he wanted assurance that it, and certain reports in custody of the district attorney, will be available for his inspection but not for Lang's. Deputy District Attorney Adolph Alexander agreed. The reports presumably are those of private detectives hired by Wanger. Police said the reports were found in the producer's car after the shooting.

Red Hungary Accepts Offer To Pay Fines

Decision To Yield Arouses Senators

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26 (AP) — Freedom for four American fliers imprisoned in Communist Hungary appeared near tonight as the United States agreed to pay $120,000 in fines and Hungary reportedly accepted the cash offer.

Barring a last-minute hitch, a Hungarian legation official indicated that the U. S. airmen would be released shortly.

On Capitol Hill, announcement of the U. S. decision to yield to the Red terms was greeted with congressional protests against "international blackmail."

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) called for a "complete investigation" of the episode through the United Nations, and declared:

"In substance, this is an act of aggression against the United States and its people."

Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo) called Hungary's action a "dastardly shakedown."

Divergence of Opinion

There was a wide divergence of opinion among Congress members and others on whether the United States should have submitted to the Communist cash-for-freedom terms.

Generally speaking, however, the initial reaction was that the government had a clear responsibility to gain the fliers' release as the first consideration and then decide on what counter steps, if any, should be taken.

The State Department gave no indication of any retaliatory measures in the immediate offing. President Truman had summed up the government's dilemma earlier when he remarked to newsmen, "What can you do?"

Madame Zsuzsanna Szucs, press attache at the Hungarian legation here, told newsmen her government has accepted the United States offer to pay the $120,000 in court fines.

She said, however, that the release of the fliers "cannot be expected before Thursday" because of the three-day Christmas holiday in Hungary.

Case Taken To Kremlin

Madame Szucs said this word was wired to the legation today from the Budapest government. She said the legation had no further information on the fliers.

The U. S. offer was submitted to the Red regime at 1 p. m., E.S.T., yesterday.

Dispatches from Budapest, the Hungarian capital, said earlier there was reason to believe the four Americans had already been released or would be freed shortly.

The airmen, flying an unarmed U. S. Air Force plane, were forced down on Hungarian soil by Soviet fighters on Nov. 19 when they became lost over Hungary en route from Germany to Yugoslavia.

American officials, clearly discerning a Soviet hand in Hungary's action, reportedly had taken up the case directly with the Kremlin last Saturday.

It was understood that Hugh Cummings, U. S. charge d'affaires in Moscow, warned the Soviet government then that strong adverse public opinion was rising in the United States.

Reds Broadcast Letters By Dean

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26 (AP) — The Peiping radio today broadcast letters which it said Maj. Gen. William F. Dean had sent to North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung and to Dean's wife and daughter in Berkeley and San Francisco.

The letter to Kim expressed "my sincere appreciation for treatment I have been accorded" as a prisoner of the Reds in North Korea.

The Associated Press, which heard the letters via its San Francisco listening post, read them to Mrs. Dean in Berkeley. She said they sounded authentic.

The family letters said he had "no complaints" and asked whether he had yet become a grandfather. He has. His daughter has a 9-month-old son, Robert Dean Williams.

Mother, Two Children Drown In Lake Erie

CLEVELAND, Dec. 26 (AP) — A mother and her two children drowned in Lake Erie today. One of the youngsters broke through the ice near shore and the other two went to his aid.

The victims were Mrs. Florence Mull, 38; Joseph, 8, and Steven, 3.

Mrs. Mull's husband is an insurance broker. He rushed home from his office and had to be forcibly restrained from running out on the ice and helping firemen in efforts to recover the bodies.

'Top Secret' Plans For Mine Stolen, Newspaper Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (AP)—The New York Daily News says America's "top secret" design for a harbor mine was stolen and Russian copies have been used in Korea, but the spies who stole the design are still at large.

The News said the design for the mines is still top seceret in Washington although Russian-made copies killed and wounded many Americans in a Korean harbor more than a year ago.

A spy hunt began as soon as the mines were discovered, the News said, but "so far as can be learned, the spies are still spying."

Lewis Reaches Own Conclusions On Blast Cause

On-The-Spot Probe Not Yet Completed

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., Dec. 26 (AP)—John L. Lewis tonight reached his "own definite conclusions" on the cause of the coal mine explosion here which took 119 lives.

But the president of the United Mine Workers refused to give them as he emerged from the 550-foot deep pit along with federal and state authorities at the end of their first day of an on-the-spot inquiry.

"I have reached my own definite conclusions," Lewis said, "but I'm withholding comment on them."

Federal, state and company officials had no comment after eight hours in the mine beyond saying the investigation was continuing.

"The inquiry is not completed," John J. Forbes, director of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, said. "It will continue. We will go down again tomorrow."

Body Of Last Victim Found

There was no indication when the inquiry would be concluded but before the investigators went down into blast-torn Orient No. 2 mine, a spokesman said they expeced to reach no conclusions for several days as to the cause of the nation's worst mine disaster in 23 years.

The body of the last of the victims was found today, 114 hours after the explosion. He was James O. Cantrell, 44, a crew foreman of West Frankfort. His body had been buried by a rock fall.

In Washington, a Senate Labor-Management subcommittee headed by Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) sent a representative to the blast scene to open a Congressional inquiry.

Humphrey said the subcommittee hopes to gather information for possible new mine safety legislation.

Lewis May Call Stoppage

Before going down the mine today, Lewis said "I shall be here until I am satisfied the investigation is being properly conducted."

In answer to reports he might call a 10-day work stoppage in the nation's coal mines as a memorial to the dead men, the bushy-browed president of the United Mine Workers said, "That's a rumor and I don't answer rumors."

Only a few hours later it was learned that an Indiana mine was idle today due to the absence of its 460 employes. This was the Talley Dale mine near Terre Haute, one of the largest of the 70 union mines in Indiana.

Story Of House Santa Claus Forgot Told In Mass. Court

LAWRENCE, Mass., Dec. 26. (AP)—The story of the house Santa Claus forgot was told in District Court today.

It was Christmas Eve. But it was not Santa who came to the apartment of Mrs. Florence Houle, 28, in Lawrence's tenement district. Her husband, also 28, is a soldier at Phoenix, Arizona. Policewoman Beatrice Clarke had been told something was wrong at the Houle tenement.

And this is what she told Special Justice William H. Daly today:

She found four little grey-eyed boys ranging in age from one year to eight—alone in the unheated rooms. Outdoors the temperature was below freezing. In the house there was not even a crust of bread—and no fuel.

Baby William, one year old, wore a tiny jacket. He had no other garment and was barefoot. His feet and hands were swollen, red, with cold.

Eight-year-old Robert shivered in sweater and pants. Ronald, 5, and Daniel, 5, huddled beneath some coats on a couch. There were neither sheets nor blankets in the rooms.

Fearing the boys might have suffered frostbite, Policewoman Clarke tried to dress them in what garments she could find, to send them to a hospital.

It was then Mrs. Houle appeared—well dressed, but under the influence of liquor, Policewoman Clarke testified. She added that when the mother tried to interfere with the removal of the children she was arrested.

Mrs. Houle pleaded guilty to a drunkenness charge in court today and was held in $300 bail by Judge Daly pending the filing by police of other charges.

Policewoman Clarke quoted Mrs. Houle as saying she received a $145 monthly allotment from her husband for the family's support.

Today, at Burke Memorial Hospital, attendants said the boys hadn't suffered frost bite and were doing well.

Kennan Named Russia Envoy

Kirk's Retirement Request Is Granted

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 26 (AP) — President Truman today named George F. Kennan to be ambassador to Russia almost at the same time that Pravda, authoritative voice of the Communist Party, was vigorously attacking the diplomat.

Joseph Short, press secretary, said Mr. Truman had "reluctantly agreed to accede" to Ambassador Alan Kirk's request for retirement.

Kennan is the originator of the administration's containment policy to meet the threat of Russian aggression.

Despite the attack in Pravda today, Short said the Kremlin had agreed to accept Kennan as ambassador to Moscow. Pravda called him a supporter of anti-Soviet organizations.

Career Diplomat

Kennan, a career diplomat, entered the State Department in September, 1926. He was director of the department's policy planning staff from March, 1948 to January, 1950. He also served as counselor for the State Department, leaving that post in September, 1950, when he went on leave.

Since that time he has been associated with the Institute for Advanced Studies at Princeton University and the Ford Foundation.

His work with the Ford Foundation was the basis of the Pravda attack today. The Soviet newspaper said Kennan "was in direct charge of the foundation's subsidizing of anti-Soviet organizations."

"In the current year," Pravda said, "the most generous appropriations from this fund have been given for activization of underground activity of various anti-Soviet agents and the conduct of subversive anti-Soviet propoganda, in particular radio propaganda."

Foundation Aids Exiles

The attack was contained in a dispatch from New York and was the first mention of Kennan's name in the Communist press since it became known a month ago that Mr. Truman was considering his appointment.

The Ford Foundation set aside $200,000 last May to help exiles from Russia to settle in the United States. Pravda said a published appeal of the Committee for Assistance was intended to mobilize assistance for fleeing criminals and was evidence of a U. S. government policy to support and bless subversive activities against Russia.

Kennan resigned his post with the Ford committee on Nov. 23.

Snow Hits Travel And Production

[By The Associated Press]

Travel and production slowed down in some snow-burdened sections of the icy north yesterday.

Thousand of workers were idle.

The Hudson Motor Car Company in Detroit laid off 6,000 men. Trains and trucks couldn't bring enough car parts to the plant.

Two Janesville, Wis., factories—the Fisher Body Division of General Motors and Chevrolet—were forced to close because of a shortage of materials, and 2,500 workers were sent home.

A lack of parts from suppliers caused the layoff of 200 to 300 employes of Thor Corporation in Cicero, a suburb of Chicago.

Chicago, the nation's rail hub and Detroit, the world's motor car capital, struggled to throw off strait jackets of snow.

Detroit has had a record of 32 inches of it since Nov. 1, the bulk of it in the last 13 days. Chicago has had a record 33.4 inch fall so far this month.

Thousands of cars were trapped in both cities.

Gracie Fields, Radio Repairman To Wed

ISLE OF CAPRI, Italy, Dec. 26 (AP) — Gracie Fields today called her friends to her villa; Canzone Del Mare (Song of the Sea) and sang, "I'm In Love, Love." Then she introduced the fiance she said she will marry in February, Romanian-born Abraham Boris Alberovich, Capri's radio repairman for 20 years.

The romance is something which could have come right out of one of Gracie's comedies.

The comedienne, who will be 54 next month, said she called for someone to repair her radio set and fell in "love at first sight" with the good-looking, sun-tanned, blonde, blue-eyed Alberovich, 48.

Vogeler Raises "Ransom" Fund

Robert Vogeler, who served 17 months in a Hungarian prison as an American "spy," said last night he would refund private donations to a $120,000 fund for freeing four fliers downed in Hungary as soon as he had "definite proof" they had been released. Vogeler, shown above with his wife, Lucille, launched a drive for funds before the government said it would pay the fliers' fines

Fairmont Man, 45, Held In Drowning Of Wife And Baby

Drove Car Into River; Claims Suicide Pact

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Dec. 26 (AP)—A 45-year-old Fairmont man was charged with murder tonight in the drowning of his wife and one-year-old daughter in the Monongahela River.

Police Chief John R. Austin said the warrant was obtained against Howard Patterson Daugherty, 45, who told officers he drove his 1950-model car into the stream last night in a pre-arranged suicide pact.

The dead were Mildred Bruce Daugherty, 35, former Fairmont beauty parlor operator, and Peggy Louise Daugherty, the couple's daughter. Austin quoted Daugherty that he and his wife had been estranged for 11 months.

Held Without Bond

The murder warrant was sworn out by Austin before Magistrate H. Pete Hamilton and served on Daugherty late today in the Marion County Jail, where he was being held without bond.

Daugherty, a World War II veteran, formerly was employed at a grocery warehouse here, but told police he quit his job because he was "nervous and upset," Austin said.

The police chief said Daugherty told this story of the drownings, which occurred about 10 p. m. yesterday at Hoult, three miles north of Fairmont:

The man met his wife and daughter about 6 p. m. by prearrangement, and they drove for several hours inspecting possible places to carry out their suicide agreement.

Swam Out Through Window

The couple made two trips along a short stretch of roadway paralleling the river at Hoult, and Daugherty was quoted that he drove the car into the stream as he headed back toward Fairmont on the second trip.

As the vehicle settled beneath the surface some 20 feet from shore, Daugherty managed to roll down a window and swim to safety. He shouted once or twice, but did not visit any house in the neighborhood in search of assistance.

He then walked to his home in Fairmont's Graham Heights Addition, picked up a pack of cigarets and continued to the county jail to report the happenings.

Halley To Wed Nurse

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (AP) — City Council President Rudolph Halley will be married tomorrow to Miss Janice Brosh, 31, a nurse who cared for him during an illness last April.

The former counsel of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee said the wedding will be in the chambers of Presiding Justice David W. Peck of the appellate division of the State Supreme Court.

Woman Spanked By Mate Kills Self

SHREVEPORT, La., Dec. 26. (AP)—Mrs. Sybil Harris Thompson, 40, enraged by a spanking her husband gave her on Christmas Eve, shot herself to death.

Dr. Charles S. Boone, deputy Caddo Parish coroner, gave a verdict of suicide.

Detective E. L. Fesdervand and M. G. Darnell found the woman's body lying on the floor of her home with a .38 automatic pistol next to her left hand. She had been shot through the left breast.

Prisoners Slash Heel Tendons

BUFORD, Ga., Dec. 26. (AP)—About 30 inmates of Georgia's Rock Quarry Prison for incorrigibles slashed their heel tendons yesterday after a big Christmas dinner "to get out of work," Warden Hubert L. Smith said today.

The prison physician promptly sewed the cuts and the prisoners were placed in solitary confinement, the warden added. He said only a few of the cuts were deep and added that all probably would be back at work soon.

Warden Smith said the prisoners, who comprise about one-fifth of Rock Quarry's complement, began slashing their tendons following a holiday repast which included turkey and all the trimmings with pie for dessert.

One prisoner obtained a razor blade, he related, slashed his heel, and the blade was passed to the others in rapid succession.

The group was reported as objecting to limited visiting privileges and the lack of newspapers, radios and magazines in the prison.

Mystery Blast Kills Prominent Negro Leader

Wife Hurt As Florida Home Is Ripped Open

MIMS, Fla., Dec. 26 (AP)—A prominent negro leader was killed and his wife seriously hurt by a mysterious blast which ripped open their isolated one-story frame home near here Christmas night.

He was Harry T. Moore, 46, negro school teacher and official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

His wife, Harriet, school teacher at Lake Park near West Palm Beach, was given a 50-50 chance for recovery. Moore's daughter and his mother, home for the holidays from their school teaching jobs in other counties, were asleep in adjoining bedrooms but escaped injury.

Gov. Warren Criticized

In New York, Executive Secretary Walter White of the NAACP, linked the blast with "a reign of terror and violence which has afflicted the state of Florida in recent months."

"Although repeatedly appealed to, Gov. Fuller Warren has consistently refused to take any steps to uphold law and order in that state," White said in a statement. "Nor has the federal government taken effective action to bring the perpetrators of these crimes to justice."

Governor Sends Investigator

He said Moore's "murder" could not be considered apart from disorders resulting from the widely known Lake County rape case, the bombing of Jewish synagogues and and a negro housing development in Miami.

Warren said at Tallahassee he was sending an investigator here immediately. His action came prior to the dispatch of telegrams by the NAACP in New York asking the governor and U. S. Attorney General Howard McGrath to take immediate affirmative action.

Big Green Diary Crops Up At Wanger's Arraignment

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Dec. 26 (AP)—A big green diary cropped up today as Movie Maker Walter Wanger was arraigned on a charge of shooting his wife's agent with intent to kill.

Wanger's attorney, Jerry Giesler, also took note of the announced unwillingness of the agent, Jennings Lang, to prosecute by winning an order putting Lang under a tentative $2,500 appearance bond.

And he won a delay for entering his client's plea to the charge, telling the judge he hasn't yet had time to study the grand jury indictment.

Lang, 39, was subpoenaed to court today for the arraignment, but he didn't appear. He is home abed, recovering from a bullet wound in the groin inflicted, Wanger said, "because he tried to break up my home."

Both Lang and Wanger's wife, Joan Bennett, 41, have denied that theirs was more than a business relationship. Lang told reporters that it was all a misunderstanding and that he'd like to forget about the shooting.

The green diary, which Giesler said is "thick as a bible," hadn't been mentioned in the case before. Giesler told the court he wanted assurance that it, and certain reports in custody of the district attorney, will be available for his inspection but not for Lang's. Deputy District Attorney Adolph Alexander agreed. The reports presumably are those of private detectives hired by Wanger. Police said the reports were found in the producer's car after the shooting.

Red Hungary Accepts Offer To Pay Fines

Decision To Yield Arouses Senators

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26 (AP) — Freedom for four American fliers imprisoned in Communist Hungary appeared near tonight as the United States agreed to pay $120,000 in fines and Hungary reportedly accepted the cash offer.

Barring a last-minute hitch, a Hungarian legation official indicated that the U. S. airmen would be released shortly.

On Capitol Hill, announcement of the U. S. decision to yield to the Red terms was greeted with congressional protests against "international blackmail."

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) called for a "complete investigation" of the episode through the United Nations, and declared:

"In substance, this is an act of aggression against the United States and its people."

Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo) called Hungary's action a "dastardly shakedown."

Divergence of Opinion

There was a wide divergence of opinion among Congress members and others on whether the United States should have submitted to the Communist cash-for-freedom terms.

Generally speaking, however, the initial reaction was that the government had a clear responsibility to gain the fliers' release as the first consideration and then decide on what counter steps, if any, should be taken.

The State Department gave no indication of any retaliatory measures in the immediate offing. President Truman had summed up the government's dilemma earlier when he remarked to newsmen, "What can you do?"

Madame Zsuzsanna Szucs, press attache at the Hungarian legation here, told newsmen her government has accepted the United States offer to pay the $120,000 in court fines.

She said, however, that the release of the fliers "cannot be expected before Thursday" because of the three-day Christmas holiday in Hungary.

Case Taken To Kremlin

Madame Szucs said this word was wired to the legation today from the Budapest government. She said the legation had no further information on the fliers.

The U. S. offer was submitted to the Red regime at 1 p. m., E.S.T., yesterday.

Dispatches from Budapest, the Hungarian capital, said earlier there was reason to believe the four Americans had already been released or would be freed shortly.

The airmen, flying an unarmed U. S. Air Force plane, were forced down on Hungarian soil by Soviet fighters on Nov. 19 when they became lost over Hungary en route from Germany to Yugoslavia.

American officials, clearly discerning a Soviet hand in Hungary's action, reportedly had taken up the case directly with the Kremlin last Saturday.

It was understood that Hugh Cummings, U. S. charge d'affaires in Moscow, warned the Soviet government then that strong adverse public opinion was rising in the United States.

Reds Broadcast Letters By Dean

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26 (AP) — The Peiping radio today broadcast letters which it said Maj. Gen. William F. Dean had sent to North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung and to Dean's wife and daughter in Berkeley and San Francisco.

The letter to Kim expressed "my sincere appreciation for treatment I have been accorded" as a prisoner of the Reds in North Korea.

The Associated Press, which heard the letters via its San Francisco listening post, read them to Mrs. Dean in Berkeley. She said they sounded authentic.

The family letters said he had "no complaints" and asked whether he had yet become a grandfather. He has. His daughter has a 9-month-old son, Robert Dean Williams.

U. S. AGREES TO 'RANSOM' FLIERS

Report 152 Others Escaped; Truce Line Trial Period's Extension Seen

MUNSAN, Korea, Thursday, Dec. 27 (AP)—The Communists Wednesday admitted they had captured 1,058 Americans not previously listed, but said 571 were dead and gave no assurance the others were alive.

The U. N. command called the report a "shocking disclosure." The Allied negotiators had demanded to know the fate of the 1,058, whose names were missing from a list of 3,198 Americans the Reds produced Dec. 18.

The approaching end of the 30-day cease-fire line trial period found the armistice discussions still deadlocked over the prisoner exchance issue and plans for supervising any truce.

That deadline expires at midnight tonight (10 a. m., Thursday, E.S.T.) If no final armistice agreement is reached by then—and the outlook is hopeless—then the provisional cease-fire line drawn Nov. 27 goes out the window.

Extension Is Expected

The deadline could be extended by mutual agreement, but a U. N. spokesman said neither side has proposed one.

(Diplomatic sources in Washington said Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme U. N. commander, has been authorized to extend the agreement if he sees fit. These sources said they expected both sides to agree to an extension.)

Barring an extension, another line reflecting any changes in battle positions, would have to be drawn when an armistice finally is signed. This opens the way to possible resumption of heavy fighting. The ground war has been quiet through most of the past 30 days.

Subcommittees on both prisoner exchange and truce supervision went back to work against this deadline in sessions opening at 11 a. m. (9 p. m. Wednesday, E.S.T.)

No Escapees Reached Safety

The U. N. command at Wednesday's meeting took issue with the Red list of Americans.

Of the 1,058 on the list, the Communists said 571 died, 152 escaped. three were released. They professed to be trying to find out what happened to the other 332.

The U. N. said that of the 155 said to have escaped or been released, not one reached Allied lines.

The Communists asserted those who died succumbed to illness or wounds, or perished from air attacks or artillery fire as they were being marched from the front.

1913 Encyclopedia Upsets Russians

MOSCOW, Dec. 26 (AP) — The Literary Gazette complained today that "second hand bookshops" are still selling an encyclopedia for children which was published in 1913.

It complained further that this encyclopedia tells children such things as this: That Tsar Nicholas loved his people; that the Italian Marconi invented the wireless; that the Civil War in the United States freed negro slaves.

The Gazette urged hurry on the task of getting out a new encyclopedia for children.

USW's Leaders To Make Strike Decision Today

Steel Union Seen Extending Deadline

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 26 (AP)—Tomorrow is the day of decision in the steel dispute. Leaders of the CIO United Steelworkers meet here to decide whether the new year will bring a nationwide steel strike.

Optimism mounted over chances for continued production of defense-essential steel as members of the USW executive board and wage-policy committee began arriving for sessions starting at 10 a. m. (ES).

President Philip Murray of the USW and the CIO hasn't tipped his hand but he is widely expected to ask the union's governing bodies to authorize continued production at least until Jan. 3. On that date, the union will hold a special international convention at Atlantic City to debate the USW's future course.

Knotty Problem

If the optimists are right, the convention may authorize a stay-on-the-job policy to continue in effect until the USW finds out what kind of a contract settlement is recommended by the Wage Stabilization Board.

It's a knotty problem. The union wants an 18½ cent hourly pay boost for workers now averaging $1.93, a guaranteed annual wage, union shop, elimination of geographical pay inequities, improved premium and incentive pay and other concessions. The USW claims the pay boost is made necessary by higher living costs. It accuses U. S. Steel Corp., the industry leader, with filibustering instead of bargaining.

The industry says federal wage and price controls tie its hands and that no wage boost can be made unless the companies can write higher price tags for its goods. Industry spokesmen say a wage increase would only add to the inflationary pressure. They have made no pay offer.

OPS Raps Both Sides

Government officials have been studying the controls picture to see what they might approve. On the eve of the USW meetings, it was learned the Office of Price Stabilization doesn't agree with either side.

A private OPS memorandum says steel company profits are high enough to justfy their making a "reasonable" pay boost without upping prices. It also contends steelworkers wages are high enough for the men to be satisfied with a pay increase which falls within present federal controls.

U. S. War Casualties Increase To 103,418

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26 (AP)—Announced U. S. battle casualties in Korea reached 103,418 today, an increase of 409 since last week.

The Defense Department's weekly summary based on notifications to families through last Friday reported:

Killed in action, 15,804; wounded, 74,813, and missing, 12,801.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26 (AP) — The Peiping radio today alleged the U. S. Seventh Fleet was ferrying 70,000 Chinese Nationalist troops to Thailand en route to North Burma "to carry out large-scale disturbances against our borders."

Egyptian Police, Students Clash

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 26 (AP)—Angry demonstrations against the royal palace and the Western powers broke out today at the first clear indication that King Farouk does not see eye-to-eye with his government in its troubles with the British.

Police used tear gas to break up a student mob of about 5,000 in Alexandria which shouted slogans against Hafez Afifi Pasha, a pro-Western banker appointed by the King Monday night to head his royal cabinet.

Seven police were reported injured by stones and two students were hurt.

In Cairo a bigger crowd massed at Fuad University and shouted against Afafi Pasha, who acts as the king's advisor and contact man with government but has no executive authority.

Fuad and Mohammed Ali Pasha Universities in Cairo and Farouk University in Alexandria were ordered closed indefinitely, and emergency police squads took up stations throughout Cairo in a state of alert.

Other scattered demonstrations, with some of the crowd carrying staves, occurred in Cairo.

The Hudson Motor Car Company in Detroit laid off 6,000 men. Trains and trucks couldn't bring enough car parts to the plant.

Two Janesville, Wis., factories—the Fisher Body Division of General Motors and Chevrolet — were forced to close because of a shortage of materials, and 2,500 workers were sent home.

A lack of parts from suppliers caused the layoff of 200 to 300 employes of Thor Corporation in Cicero, a suburb of Chicago.

Chicago, the nation's rail hub and Detroit, the world's motor car capital, struggled to throw off strait jackets of snow.

Detroit has had a record of 32 inches of it since Nov. 1, the bulk of it in the last 13 days. Chicago has had a record 33.4 inch fall so far this month.

Thousands of cars were trapped in both cities.

Robert Vogeler, who served 17 months in a Hungarian prison as an American "spy," said last night he would refund private donations to a $120,000 fund for freeing four fliers downed in Hungary as soon as he had "definite proof" they had been released. Vogeler, shown above with his wife, Lucille, launched a drive for funds before the government said it would pay the fliers' fines

Fairmont Man, 45, Held In Drowning Of Wife And Baby

Drove Car Into River; Claims Suicide Pact

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Dec. 26 (AP)—A 45-year-old Fairmont man was charged with murder tonight in the drowning of his wife and one-year-old daughter in the Monongahela River.

Police Chief John R. Austin said the warrant was obtained against Howard Patterson Daugherty, 45, who told officers he drove his 1950-model car into the stream last night in a pre-arranged suicide pact.

The dead were Mildred Bruce Daugherty, 35, former Fairmont beauty parlor operator, and Peggy Louise Daugherty, the couple's daughter. Austin quoted Daugherty that he and his wife had been estranged for 11 months.

Held Without Bond

The murder warrant was sworn out by Austin before Magistrate H. Pete Hamilton and served on Daugherty late today in the Marion County Jail, where he was being held without bond.

Daugherty, a World War II veteran, formerly was employed at a grocery warehouse here, but told police he quit his job because he was "nervous and upset," Austin said.

The police chief said Daugherty told this story of the drownings, which occurred about 10 p. m. yesterday at Hoult, three miles north of Fairmont:

The man met his wife and daughter about 6 p. m. by prearrangement, and they drove for several hours inspecting possible places to carry out their suicide agreement.

Swam Out Through Window

The couple made two trips along a short stretch of roadway paralleling the river at Hoult, and Daugherty was quoted that he drove the car into the stream as he headed back toward Fairmont on the second trip.

As the vehicle settled beneath the surface some 20 feet from shore, Daugherty managed to roll down a window and swim to safety. He shouted once or twice, but did not visit any house in the neighborhood in search of assistance.

He then walked to his home in Fairmont's Graham Heights Addition, picked up a pack of cigarets and continued to the county jail to report the happenings.

SHREVEPORT, La., Dec. 26. (AP)—Mrs. Sybil Harris Thompson, 40, enraged by a spanking her husband gave her on Christmas Eve, shot herself to death.

Dr. Charles S. Boone, deputy Caddo Parish coroner, gave a verdict of suicide.

Detective E. L. Fesdervand and M. G. Darnell found the woman's body lying on the floor of her home with a .38 automatic pistol next to her left hand. She had been shot through the left breast.

Prisoners Slash Heel Tendons

BUFORD, Ga., Dec. 26. (AP)—About 30 inmates of Georgia's Rock Quarry Prison for incorrigibles slashed their heel tendons yesterday after a big Christmas dinner "to get out of work," Warden Hubert L. Smith said today.

The prison physician promptly sewed the cuts and the prisoners were placed in solitary confinement, the warden added. He said only a few of the cuts were deep and added that all probably would be back at work soon.

Warden Smith said the prisoners, who comprise about one-fifth of Rock Quarry's complement, began slashing their tendons following a holiday repast which included turkey and all the trimmings with pie for dessert.

One prisoner obtained a razor blade, he related, slashed his heel, and the blade was passed to the others in rapid succession.

The group was reported as objecting to limited visiting privileges and the lack of newspapers, radios and magazines in the prison.

Mystery Blast Kills Prominent Negro Leader

Wife Hurt As Florida Home Is Ripped Open

MIMS, Fla., Dec. 26 (AP)—A prominent negro leader was killed and his wife seriously hurt by a mysterious blast which ripped open their isolated one-story frame home near here Christmas night.

He was Harry T. Moore, 46, negro school teacher and official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

His wife, Harriet, school teacher at Lake Park near West Palm Beach, was given a 50-50 chance for recovery. Moore's daughter and his mother, home for the holidays from their school teaching jobs in other counties, were asleep in adjoining bedrooms but escaped injury.

Gov. Warren Criticized

In New York, Executive Secretary Walter White of the NAACP, linked the blast with "a reign of terror and violence which has afflicted the state of Florida in recent months."

"Although repeatedly appealed to, Gov. Fuller Warren has consistently refused to take any steps to uphold law and order in that state," White said in a statement. "Nor has the federal government taken effective action to bring the perpetrators of these crimes to justice."

Governor Sends Investigator

He said Moore's "murder" could not be considered apart from disorders resulting from the widely known Lake County rape case, the bombing of Jewish synagogues and and a negro housing development in Miami.

Warren said at Tallahassee he was sending an investigator here immediately. His action came prior to the dispatch of telegrams by the NAACP in New York asking the governor and U. S. Attorney General Howard McGrath to take immediate affirmative action.

Big Green Diary Crops Up At Wanger's Arraignment

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Dec. 26 (AP)—A big green diary cropped up today as Movie Maker Walter Wanger was arraigned on a charge of shooting his wife's agent with intent to kill.

Wanger's attorney, Jerry Giesler, also took note of the announced unwillingness of the agent, Jennings Lang, to prosecute by winning an order putting Lang under a tentative $2,500 appearance bond.

And he won a delay for entering his client's plea to the charge, telling the judge he hasn't yet had time to study the grand jury indictment.

Lang, 39, was subpoenaed to court today for the arraignment, but he didn't appear. He is home abed, recovering from a bullet wound in the groin inflicted, Wanger said, "because he tried to break up my home."

Both Lang and Wanger's wife, Joan Bennett, 41, have denied that theirs was more than a business relationship. Lang told reporters that it was all a misunderstanding and that he'd like to forget about the shooting.

The green diary, which Giesler said is "thick as a bible," hadn't been mentioned in the case before. Giesler told the court he wanted assurance that it, and certain reports in custody of the district attorney, will be available for his inspection but not for Lang's. Deputy District Attorney Adolph Alexander agreed. The reports presumably are those of private detectives hired by Wanger. Police said the reports were found in the producer's car after the shooting.

Red Hungary Accepts Offer To Pay Fines

Decision To Yield Arouses Senators

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26 (AP) — Freedom for four American fliers imprisoned in Communist Hungary appeared near tonight as the United States agreed to pay $120,000 in fines and Hungary reportedly accepted the cash offer.

Barring a last-minute hitch, a Hungarian legation official indicated that the U. S. airmen would be released shortly.

On Capitol Hill, announcement of the U. S. decision to yield to the Red terms was greeted with congressional protests against "international blackmail."

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) called for a "complete investigation" of the episode through the United Nations, and declared:

"In substance, this is an act of aggression against the United States and its people."

Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo) called Hungary's action a "dastardly shakedown."

Divergence of Opinion

There was a wide divergence of opinion among Congress members and others on whether the United States should have submitted to the Communist cash-for-freedom terms.

Generally speaking, however, the initial reaction was that the government had a clear responsibility to gain the fliers' release as the first consideration and then decide on what counter steps, if any, should be taken.

The State Department gave no indication of any retaliatory measures in the immediate offing. President Truman had summed up the government's dilemma earlier when he remarked to newsmen, "What can you do?"

Madame Zsuzsanna Szucs, press attache at the Hungarian legation here, told newsmen her government has accepted the United States offer to pay the $120,000 in court fines.

She said, however, that the release of the fliers "cannot be expected before Thursday" because of the three-day Christmas holiday in Hungary.

Case Taken To Kremlin

Madame Szucs said this word was wired to the legation today from the Budapest government. She said the legation had no further information on the fliers.

The U. S. offer was submitted to the Red regime at 1 p. m., E.S.T., yesterday.

Dispatches from Budapest, the Hungarian capital, said earlier there was reason to believe the four Americans had already been released or would be freed shortly.

The airmen, flying an unarmed U. S. Air Force plane, were forced down on Hungarian soil by Soviet fighters on Nov. 19 when they became lost over Hungary en route from Germany to Yugoslavia.

American officials, clearly discerning a Soviet hand in Hungary's action, reportedly had taken up the case directly with the Kremlin last Saturday.

It was understood that Hugh Cummings, U. S. charge d'affaires in Moscow, warned the Soviet government then that strong adverse public opinion was rising in the United States.

Reds Broadcast Letters By Dean

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26 (AP) — The Peiping radio today broadcast letters which it said Maj. Gen. William F. Dean had sent to North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung and to Dean's wife and daughter in Berkeley and San Francisco.

The letter to Kim expressed "my sincere appreciation for treatment I have been accorded" as a prisoner of the Reds in North Korea.

The Associated Press, which heard the letters via its San Francisco listening post, read them to Mrs. Dean in Berkeley. She said they sounded authentic.

The family letters said he had "no complaints" and asked whether he had yet become a grandfather. He has. His daughter has a 9-month-old son, Robert Dean Williams.

Tax Liens Filed On Properties Of Teitelbaums

CHICAGO, Dec. 26 (AP)—The government today filed a tax lien on the property of Abraham Teitelbaum, Chicago attorney who testified at the recent federal income tax scandals investigation.

Iiens also were filed against the properties of Teitelbaum's wife, his law partner, and his partner's wife. The liens charged that the four owe more than half a million dollars in back taxes, penalties and interest..

Teitelbaum, former lawyer for the Capone family, told a House investigating committee early this month he had been a target of an attempted $500,000 shakedown by two men claiming to be in league with a "clique" of high Washington figures.

Dunlap Ordered Liens Filed

The tax liens were filed on orders received from Internal Revenue Commissioner John B. Dunlap.

They were filed by John T. Jarecki, collector of internal revenue at Chicago.

Jarecki charged in three liens that Teitelbaum and his wife, Esther, owe a total of $325,395 in taxes, interest and penalties from 1944 to 1948.

Teitelbaum's law partner, Paul R. Simon, and his wife, Bessie, were charged in two liens with owing $193,092 in taxes, penalties and interest from 1942 to 1947.

Teitelbaum is a well-to-do lawyer who is seldom seen in court. His activities center around real estate transactions and counseling in labor relations.

Represented Capones

In 1940, Teitelbaum, now 45, represented Al Capone, late gang leader, when Capone was trying to compromise his his income taxes with the government. He also represented Capone's brother, Ralph, in a recent income tax case.

In his testimony before a House subcommittee Dec. 4, Teitelbaum said that Bert K. Naster and Frank Nathan told him he would be in bad "income tax trouble" and might face imprisonment unless he paid them $500,000. Both men denied Teitelbaum's charges.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 26 (AP)—William (Little Willie) Adams, negro political and sports figure in Baltimore, pleaded for a new trial today and said a jury which convicted him last week should not have been allowed to hear testimony he gave the Senate crime investigators.

Broward County lifeguards reported thot 3,500 people received first aid treatment Monday and 1,680 Tuesday. Most of them had been swimming at Fort Lauderdale.

Capt. Earl Pinder, chief of the Miami Beach lifeguards, estimated 3,000 persons had their stings swabbed with ammonia at first aid stations at Miami Beach.

The Portuguese man-O' War, a type of jellyfish, apparently was blown shoreward in great numbers from warm Gulf stream waters.

Auto Insurance Rate Hike Looms

BALTIMORE, Dec. 26. (AP)—Higher automobile insurance rates are in prespect for Maryland car owners.

The state insurance commissioner said today the National Automobile Underwriters Association has been discussing higher rates with him but as yet has filed no schedule.

There were indications the rates might go up about 24 per cent on fire, theft, collision and so-called comprehensive coverage in the counties outside Baltimore.

The prospective increase in Baltimore is somewhat less percentagewise but the rates in the city are already higher.

These same rates were reduced last April by 15 per cent in the counties and nine per cent in Baltimore. In April 1950 there was a 6.5 per cent reduction. The proposed increases would bring the rates back up to about what they were two years ago.

No change is contemplated in the rates on liability insurance to cover property damage done or persons hurt by your car. There rates were increased about 20 per cent in June.

The higher cost of repairing damaged automobiles is given by the insurances companies as the main reason for an increase.

Tax Liens Filed On Properties Of Teitelbaums

CHICAGO, Dec. 26 (AP)—The government today filed a tax lien on the property of Abraham Teitelbaum, Chicago attorney who testified at the recent federal income tax scandals investigation.

Iiens also were filed against the properties of Teitelbaum's wife, his law partner, and his partner's wife. The liens charged that the four owe more than half a million dollars in back taxes, penalties and interest..

Teitelbaum, former lawyer for the Capone family, told a House investigating committee early this month he had been a target of an attempted $500,000 shakedown by two men claiming to be in league with a "clique" of high Washington figures.

Dunlap Ordered Liens Filed

The tax liens were filed on orders received from Internal Revenue Commissioner John B. Dunlap.

They were filed by John T. Jarecki, collector of internal revenue at Chicago.

Jarecki charged in three liens that Teitelbaum and his wife, Esther, owe a total of $325,395 in taxes, interest and penalties from 1944 to 1948.

Teitelbaum's law partner, Paul R. Simon, and his wife, Bessie, were charged in two liens with owing $193,092 in taxes, penalties and interest from 1942 to 1947.

Teitelbaum is a well-to-do lawyer who is seldom seen in court. His activities center around real estate transactions and counseling in labor relations.

Represented Capones

In 1940, Teitelbaum, now 45, represented Al Capone, late gang leader, when Capone was trying to compromise his his income taxes with the government. He also represented Capone's brother, Ralph, in a recent income tax case.

In his testimony before a House subcommittee Dec. 4, Teitelbaum said that Bert K. Naster and Frank Nathan told him he would be in bad "income tax trouble" and might face imprisonment unless he paid them $500,000. Both men denied Teitelbaum's charges.

"Little Willie" Adams Pleads For New Trial

BALTIMORE, Dec. 26 (AP)—William (Little Willie) Adams, negro political and sports figure in Baltimore, pleaded for a new trial today and said a jury which convicted him last week should not have been allowed to hear testimony he gave the Senate crime investigators.

Adams and Walter Rouse, another negro, were convicted of conspiracy to violate the gamblin laws after a two-day trial in criminal court last week.

Baltimore's Supreme Bench, made up of the judges who preside over the various branches of the state courts in Baltimore, will consider the new trial motion early next year.

Auto Insurance Rate Hike Looms

BALTIMORE, Dec. 26. (AP)—Higher automobile insurance rates are in prespect for Maryland car owners.

The state insurance commissioner said today the National Automobile Underwriters Association has been discussing higher rates with him but as yet has filed no schedule.

There were indications the rates might go up about 24 per cent on fire, theft, collision and so-called comprehensive coverage in the counties outside Baltimore.

The prospective increase in Baltimore is somewhat less percentagewise but the rates in the city are already higher.

These same rates were reduced last April by 15 per cent in the counties and nine per cent in Baltimore. In April 1950 there was a 6.5 per cent reduction. The proposed increases would bring the rates back up to about what they were two years ago.

No change is contemplated in the rates on liability insurance to cover property damage done or persons hurt by your car. There rates were increased about 20 per cent in June.

The higher cost of repairing damaged automobiles is given by the insurances companies as the main reason for an increase.

"Ike" Still Evasive

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 26 (AP) — He didn't say yes and he didn't say no—that was the answer Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower gave 354 citizens of suburban Bryan Athyn who asked him to run for president on the Republican ticket.

The general—through an aide—wrote to George H. Woodard, chairman of the Bryan Athyn "Americans for Eisenhower Committee," expressing his appreciation for the community's confidence in him.

Draft Board Gets Holiday Greeting

GREENFIELD, Mass., Dec. 26 (AP) — Draft board members aren't sure whether it's a velvet knock or an overflowing of the Christmas spirit.

"Roses are red, violets are blue.

"You've probably forgotten us but we remember you."

It was signed by five men, now in Germany, drafted here last March.

Woman Who Silenced Radio With Gun Fined

MT. VERNON, Ill., Dec. 26 (AP)—A Mt. Vernon woman was fined in court here today for turning off the radio-with a pistol.

Mrs. Susie Norman told Justice of the Peace W. O. Page that her husband was playing the radio too loudly Christmas Eve. When he refused to turn it down, she took the family pistol and fired it, cutting the radio cord.

Her husband called the city police who arrested Mrs. Norman and charged her with disorderly conduct.

One Killed, Eight Hurt In Auto-Bus Collision

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Dec. 26 (AP)—One person died and eight others were injured—one critically—in an auto-bus collision eight miles east of here tonight on U. S. Route 40.

State police said Edsel Good Nicholas, 22, Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., was killed outright when the car he was driving crossed Route 40 in the path of a Greyhound bus en route from Washington to Pittsburgh.

The car was demolished by the impact. The bus continued on, left the road and ran into a tree.

Taking Own Life Proves Difficult

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 26 (AP)—Police list Horace Paul Hayden, 50, Oakland, Calif., as one of the most persistent would-be suicides on their records.

Officers reported this sequence of events:

Last Friday he slashed his wrists 20 times, but was patched up at a hospital.

Last Sunday he ran in front of a speeding automobile, and got a traffic citation for jaywalking.

Yesterday he hurled himself in front of a street car, but the motorman halted it in time. Then he turned and ran into an intersection against a red light, but escaped being hit.

He did it again, and was knocked down but only supericially bruised.

Last night he cut his wrists again, opened a window on the third floor of a hotel and jumped. He was dead when ambulance attendants picked him up.

Two More Area Soldiers Are Listed In POW Camp

Two nearby Pennsylvania soldiers previously reported missing in action have their names on the Communist list of UN prisoners of war.

They are Pfc. Louis Omerzo, Somerset, and Pfc. Harry W. Hoover, Osterburg, Pa.

Pfc. Omerzo, a prisoner in the Pyok-Dong POW camp, is a brother of Mrs. Mary Mullen, Route 1, Somerset.

The 19-year-old soldier was serving with a medical company of Ninth Infantry Regiment of the Second Division when reported missing during the latter part of November 1950.

Pfc. Omerzo enlisted in the Army in 1948 while a stuednt in Berlin-Brothersvalley High School. Following training at Fort Lewis, Wash., he was shipped overseas with the Second Division. He served in Japan before being sent to the combat zone.

He is one of a family of nine children, one of whom is Pfc. Mike Omerzo who is stationed with the Air Force in Alaska.

Pfc. Hoover, husband of Mrs. Evelyn Hoover, of the Bedford county town, entered the Army in August 1950 and trained at Fort Meade and Fort Jackson, S. C., before receiving his overseas assignment.

Prior to entering the service, Pfc. Hoover was employed in the steel mills in Johnstown, Pa.

The soldier's parents received a letter on October 1 mailed through Communist outlets in China in which he told of being a prisoner of war in Northern Korea.

At that time, he said he was in good health and was being well treated by the Chinese Communist volunteers. The letter was mailed through the Chinese People's Committee for World Peace.

Four Receive Appointments At Council Meet

Four appointments and a salary increase got the approval of the Mayor and Council at its meeting yesterday morning.

Miss Mary E. Clay, secretary to Mayor Thomas S. Post, was appointed secretary of the Evitts Creek Water Company at a salary of $100 a year. She replaces Mrs. Ivan Frye, resigned.

Harry Jamison will serve as sanitary inspector temporarily during the absence of Walter E. Kline, effective January 1.

Dennison Appointed

Walter P. Dennison was appointed a regular member of the Police Department effective December 15; and Conley C. Hammond a member of the Fire Department effective yesterday. Both have completed probationary periods.

Mrs. Vivian L. Turley, records clerk in the Police Department, received approval of a salary increase to $175 a month effective January 1. This is commensurate to the $13 boost received by other city employes recently.

Two checks totaling $43,500 were ordered paid the Treasurer of the United States in conjunction with flood control work. One for $3,500 was for the property condemnation proceedings in Baltimore against Theodore Shaffer, et. al., and another for $40,000 as an advance requested by the Army engineers for surveys and engineering work on the third phase of the project.

Pay On Friday

A check for $62.50 was also ordered for the National Institute of Municipal Law Officers, Washington, D. C., for service fees.

Referred to Commissioner William H. Buchholtz for report was a request for a contribution from the city by the Allegany County Rheumatic Fever and Heart Association.

City employes will receive checks for the last two weeks of December Friday afternoon, the council ordered.

Water consumption for the week ending Sunday was 92,040,000 gallons as compared to 88,840,000 a year ago. The daily average was 13,148,000. The water level at Lake Gordon is one foot, two inches below the crest of the spillway and at Lake Koon 25 feet below.

Police Probing Wrecked Cars

Two cars, one reported stolen and the other being used without authorization were wrecked Tuesday night and yesterday morning, State Police said.

In the Allegany county jail, is William Ravenscroft, 28, formerly of near Oldtown and now a resident of Baltimore.

He has been charged with unauthorized use of an automobile belonging to Robert Cummings of Baltimore and is awaiting authorities to take him back there to face trial, State Police said.

Ravenscroft was arrested at his former home Tuesday night after he had wrecked the 1950 sedan in Paw Paw, W. Va., at the Potomac River bridge, according to Trooper First Class William F. Baker.

In another case, Lionel Martin reported at 11:51 p. m. Tuesday to Keyser City Police that his 1946 coupe was stolen from in front of his home.

Maryland State Police were notified and the coupe was found wrecked and abandoned on McMullen Highway at 12:17 a.m. yesterday.

Utility Official Given Promotion

Harry Hammond, former assistant plant superintendent at the Cumberland River Station of the Potomac Edison Company, has been named plant superintendent of the R. Paul Station at Williamsport.

Hammond takes his new post after serving as superintendent of the new Riverton, Va., Station. He has been with the company since 1935.

C. L. Brown, who held a position at Cumberland during his 16 years of service with the PE, has been named supervisor of all small power stations.

The new Williamsport power plant superintendent was employed by the PE in 1935 as assistant district engineer in Winchester, Va.

Two years later he was made district engineer and in 1943 he was transferred to Cumberland as plant engineer. From 1944 to 1949 he was assistant superintendent at the River Plant here.

He replaces Cecil McVay who was recently named assistant superintendent of power stations.

Brown has been with the company 16 years and was hired as a repairman's helper. He has been promoted to various offices in the Williamsport, Cumberland and Security power stations including relief operator and watch engineer.

Two More Area Soldiers Are Listed In POW Camp

Two nearby Pennsylvania soldiers previously reported missing in action have their names on the Communist list of UN prisoners of war.

They are Pfc. Louis Omerzo, Somerset, and Pfc. Harry W. Hoover, Osterburg, Pa.

Pfc. Omerzo, a prisoner in the Pyok-Dong POW camp, is a brother of Mrs. Mary Mullen, Route 1, Somerset.

The 19-year-old soldier was serving with a medical company of Ninth Infantry Regiment of the Second Division when reported missing during the latter part of November 1950.

Pfc. Omerzo enlisted in the Army in 1948 while a stuednt in Berlin-Brothersvalley High School. Following training at Fort Lewis, Wash., he was shipped overseas with the Second Division. He served in Japan before being sent to the combat zone.

He is one of a family of nine children, one of whom is Pfc. Mike Omerzo who is stationed with the Air Force in Alaska.

Pfc. Hoover, husband of Mrs. Evelyn Hoover, of the Bedford county town, entered the Army in August 1950 and trained at Fort Meade and Fort Jackson, S. C., before receiving his overseas assignment.

Prior to entering the service, Pfc. Hoover was employed in the steel mills in Johnstown, Pa.

The soldier's parents received a letter on October 1 mailed through Communist outlets in China in which he told of being a prisoner of war in Northern Korea.

At that time, he said he was in good health and was being well treated by the Chinese Communist volunteers. The letter was mailed through the Chinese People's Committee for World Peace.

Explosives, Poison Gas Pose Highway Problem

"The hauling of explosives, poison gas and related materials over Maryland highways is becoming more and more of a hazard to the safety of motorists," according to Washington L. Cleveland, secretary of the Washington branch of the American Automobile Association.

Spain And Defense

Definitive negotiations between Washington and Madrid on use by the United States of air and naval bases in Spain are expected early in 1952. The Defense Department is now working out final recommendations, based on the findings of an American military survey mission which went to Spain last summer after exploratory talks on bases between General Franco and the late Admiral Forrest P. Sherman.

Few details on positions to be taken by the United States in the forthcoming negotiations are at present available but it is generally believed that any future defense arrangements with Spain will be based on the principle of mutual aid. In return for the use of its bases, Spain expects to obtain modern military equipment for its armed forces and support for the Spanish economy. Congress already has appropriated $100 million for economic, technical, and military aid to Spain—for use if, when and as the President sees fit.

American military leaders long have considered Spain strategically important to the general defense of Western Europe. Until recently, primary emphasis was placed on Spain's worth as a base from which Allied forces might launch a counteroffensive if countries above the Pyrenees should be overrun. Now that Germany and Yugoslavia have become the frontier posts of West European defense, Spain takes its place as an "area of last resort." In the conduct of air and naval operations, however, bases on Spanish soil undoubtedly remain of prime importance for defense of the West.

United States naval officers consider Spanish bases valuable for anti-submarine warfare in both the Atlantic and the Mediterranean. Behind the Pyrenees Mountains are many protected plains suitable for air bases in a region where good flying weather usually prevails. Spain's principal airfields are near Madrid and Barcelona; in addition it has about 40 military airfields. Assistant Secretary of State Perkins told a Senate committee last July that the United States wishes initially to use certain Spanish facilities and not to build new bases. To do that, he said, some improvements will have to be made in Spanish military installations and transport facilities.

Aside from strategic bases, Spain's major potential military asset is its large army, estimated variously between 350,000 and 400,000. But the present fighting ability of the Spanish ground forces (also the air force and the small Spanish navy) is severely limited by lack of modern equipment. In any event, the extent to which Spain's forces might participate in European defense is ultimately up to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

High American defense officials favor admitting Spain to NATO on purely military grounds but the question at present is primarily political. Spain can be invited to join NATO only if all the present member states consent. And several European members, notably France and Great Britain, have voiced strong objections. West European Socialists, British Labor party members, and trade union leaders still oppose any intimate association with Franco's dictatorship on ideological grounds.

Washington's problem for the immediate future is to work out a mutually-acceptable bilateral program with Madrid for the use of Spanish bases. Initially, such a program might well involve an investment in certain airfields, port and transportation facilities, and fuel for strategic uses. Limited military aid also might be given to train and equip some Spanish forces for defense. Some additional aid for the Spanish civilian economy seems also to be essential.

In view of Spain's economic decline since the civil war, an ultimate expenditure of large sums may be required if Spain is to be converted into a dependable ally. Close supervision of the uses made of American aid funds will probably be necessary to accomplish U. S. military objectives and to ensure some benefit for the Spanish people.

Small Businesses

During the period of United States participation in World War II, more than 500,000 small businesses disappeared. Shortages of materials, demands for rapid production and quick action on war contracts, a prewar trend toward concentration in a few corporations of great size, all contributed to their demise.

Thousands of one-man businesses closed as their owners entered the armed servces or elected to take war jobs. A similar development, although not as far-reaching, occurred during World War I.

In both cases there were recoveries. Congress has long been concerned to encourage and protect small businesses, so essential to the preservation of the spirit of free enterprise. In the Defense Act, Congress wrote a mandate to to encourage small business participation in the mobilization program.

The Small Defense Plants Administration is struggling against the momentum toward big business in rearmament. Adminstrator Telford Taylor demands more action and less talk about defense contracts for small business. He has expressed his views in vigorous letters to Deense Secretary Lovett and to heads of all procurement agencies.

Joint action to spread defense contracts, in Mr. Taylor's opinion, would help to meet the need for dispersing industry and overcoming production slowdowns. Promotional and informational activities are commendable, but what is wanted is contracts, ordered at the highest procurement levels.

Small businesses are classified as those having fewer than 500 workers. This is a "primitive and unsatisfactory" classification, Administrator Taylor holds, taking no account of "whether the concern in questions makes steel, jewelry or C rations." Among other changes, he would make contract allocations to specific areas and industries so that the "greatest hardships" can be eliminated.

As the defense program gets into faster operation, small businesses are bound to suffer. Some are not adaptable to defense production. Others cannot obtain materials. Stil others, under the impact of inflation and higher taxes, will lose customers where the business caters to what might be called the amenities.

The intent of Congress to protect small business is clear. To distribute defense contracts to small businesses is another matter. It was so in both world wars and it is so now. Small businesses is part of the American tradition, part of America's strength. Its interests ought not to be lost in the bureaucratic shuffle.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Glaucoma: Increased Eyeball Tension

Glaucoma should be of interest to everyone over 40; it is the leading cause of blindness among adults. The disease can be treated successfully when detected early but this is more easily said than done because the victim may be robbed of sight without warning and without pain.

Increased pressure in the eye describes glaucoma to a T. The eye is shaped like a grape and most of it is filled with a thick jelly-like fluid. When pressure is just right the shape of the orbit is maintained yet it feels soft and is slightly compressible. With a rise in tension the structure becomes hard and firm; it cannot stretch like a balloon because the outer coat is too thick and tough. This means that something within must give way and here lies the danger of glaucoma.

The retina is soft and sensitive to pressure and so is the optic nerve which is attached to the rear of the globe and connects the eye with the brain. At first the increased pressure has little effect on these structures, but, as it mounts, the retinal nerve fibers begin to degenerate; those on the edge are affected initially so that the field of vision becomes limited to what can be seen directly ahead. Later the front or central part goes and in this respect the statement is apropos that "glaucoma squeezes the sight out of your eyes."

Early diagnosis is important because once sight is destroyed it cannot be restored. Prevention would not be difficult if every individual over 40 would have a complete eye examination every two years and report to the physician whenever certain symptoms occur.

The acute type of glaucoma strikes suddenly, with rapid failure of sight and with or without severe pain in and around the eyes. It is as tho a fog suddenly descended so that the individual is unable to see the fingers of an outstretched arm.

The chronic type is more common. It develops slowly, has a tendency to come and go, and usually is painless. All these factors make the disease seem trivial at first and many victims postpone a visit to the physician until the condition is far advanced. Some of these men and women are unwilling to have a full examination, but continue to try glasses that seem to work for a while. Actually, if frequent changes of glasses do not help vision, then investigation of glaucoma is in order. Another symptom is the inability of the eyes to adjust to darkened rooms such as theaters. Loss of side vision, fogginess, and rainbow colored halos around lights also are significant. All these signs are warnings that chronic glaucoma may exist.

A competent ophthalmologist has the equipment to test for glaucoma and also the ability to treat the condition and check its progress. There are several medicines to reduce tension; if they fail the physician can resort to operation, which usually will do the trick; but the individual also must do his part. Pressure within the eyeball is influenced by many of the same factors that affect blood pressure. Emotional upsets, for example, boost tension and the victim, therefore, should avoid excitement, anger, worry, and over-fatigue. It also may be necessary to limit the time spent at movies or in watching television and to give up coffee. These restrictions are trivial compared with the consequences.

TOMORROW: Diabetes and the pancreas.

BONE DISTURBANCE

L. W. writes: I never heard of Osgood-Schlatter disease but the doctor says that is the cause of my boy's sore knee. Can you tell me something about it?

REPLY

There are several conditions in which the circulation to the growing portion of the bone is disturbed. Osgood-Schlatter disease is one. The cause is not too well understood but in many cases immobilizing the leg is all that is needed. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on this type of disturbance.

RIB FRACTURE

L. P. writes: How long is a person usually laid up with a broken floating rib?

REPLY

If the chest is strapped, the victim can be up and about. Ribs usually heal in several weeks.

WHY NOT MARRY?

T. R. writes: Is it safe for a girl to marry and have children if her mother died of tuberculosis? X-rays show spots on the girl's lungs but her doctor tells her she does not have the disease.

REPLY

Why not believe the physician when he says the young woman does not have tuberculosis? Her attitude suggests (1) that she is afraid of marriage and is using her mother's death as an excuse, or (2) that she has a phobia about the disease.

Di Salle Memo Says Steel Industry Can Absorb Increases; Recommends Against Steel Price Hike; Criticizes Attempt To Break Wage Ceilings

WASHINGTON.—Price Administrator Mike Di Salle has written an important confidential memorandum to Roger Putnam, economic stabilization administrator, stating categorically that the steel industry is able to absorb any wage increase without boosting prices.

Simultaneously, Mr. Di Salle urged that the government take a vigorous, forthright stand against any high wage increases which would set a precedent for John L. Lewis and labor leaders in other industries.

"Steel industry profits," Di Salle wrote his chief in the confidential memo, "are running far above the industry earnings standard which ESA has instructed me to use as a test for decisions on price increases. The excess over that standard is so large that the industry clearly can absorb any reasonably probable wage increase, with a substantial margin left over for other cost increases.

"If a price increase were granted in spite of the industry's ability to absorb," Di Salle continued, "the most serious consequences for the stabilization program must be envisaged."

DiSalle was equally tough toward labor and critical of its attempt to break wage ceilings. However, he prepared a study of steel earnings showing that as of today the industry is making 32 per cent return on their net worth investment, compared with a 20.3 per cent return in 1947-49. The study also showed that after paying a possible 15 per cent wage increase, the steel companies would still make a billion dollars a year more than they made in the 1947-49 period which has been taken as the standard period for measuring profits.

Nevertheless, DiSalle opposed a high wage increase to steelworkers because it would destroy the wage-price freeze policy.

His confidential memo to new Economic Stabilizer Putnam, who took office Dec. 1, was dated Nov. 28. In transmitting it Di Salle said: "I am sorry that your initiation into the problem of price control must begin with the most difficult issue we have faced since the decision to impose the general price freeze last January."

Because the Di Salle memo goes to the vitals of the most important economic dispute in the nation, this column has obtained a copy and publishes salient portions as follows:

"The steel wage negotiations and the resulting steel price problem mark the most severe crisis which wage and price stabilization have yet faced.

"Both parties to these negotiations have now declared open warfare upon the standards prescribed to apply to the increases they seek. The steelworkers union has recently made clear its contempt for present WSB policies and its intention not merely to 'bend' but to 'break' them. The companies have been equally forthright in their insistence on a complete psas-through of any wage increase . . .

"Many in the government refuse to become alarmed at this open attack. 'Let us wait,' they say, 'until the parties have completed negotiation. We do not know that we will be presented with a request to approve unapprovable increases, either of wages or prices. We clearly cannot comment on a case that is not even in court.'

"It is with this view that I take vigorous disagreement. The parties to any steel wage negotiations are expected to act, and they always do, in consideration of a public interest. Their concept of the public interest (or what they conceive the public's view of the public interest to be) is always present at the bargaining table; and if this interest has been expressed in an administration wage or price policy, it is almost visibly there.

"In the present case, it is obviously crucial that the public interest in economic stabilization take a major role—overriding considerations of economic gain or loss, of pride and politics, of inter- or intra-union or company rivalry . . .

"I contend that the government must again declare its policies—as forcefully, and in as much detail, as possible. Such a declaration will have a direct and major influence on the outcome of the wage negotiations. And even if it should fail to have such influence, it will rally national support for the showdown that must thereafter follow.

"Our preliminary review of publicly available figures indicates that steel industry profits are running far above the industry earnings standard which ESA has instructed us to use as a test for decisions on price increases other than those more specifically required by law. The excess over that standard is so large that the industry clearly can absorb any reasonably probable wage increase, with a substantial margin left for other cost increases. Past experience indicates, however, that the industry will strenuously resist any wage increase without simultaneous assurance of a price increase. If a price increase were granted in spite of the industry's ability to absorb, the most serious consequences for the stabilization program must be envisaged-including the following:

"(A) The industry earnings standard would have to be abandoned. It does not seem possible that any other standard requiring cost absorption could be substituted . . .

"(B) The wage increase agreed to by the companies in all probability would be larger if they knew it must be absorbed, and this settlement would form a pattern for a new wave of substantial wage increases . . .

"(C) The wage and price increases resulting from such developments during the first half of 1952 would be substantially larger than the effect of any of the congressional amendments that we have so vigorously opposed. Moreover, the escalation in these cases would have no time limit as the Capehart Amendment now does . . .

"(D) The combination of a wage and price increase in the steel industry with the implied acceptance of general cost pass-through would quickly change price expectations of businessmen and probably also of consumers. This might be sufficient to stimulate a buying wave of large proportions . . .

"I am confident that a fair but firm wage policy can effectively prevent any steel wage increase which would have major inflationary consequences . . ."

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—President Truman's query, "What can you do?"—when asked by newsmen what the U. S. government intended to do about four American flyers imprisoned in Hungary—illustrates the bankruptcy of ideas and frustration characteristic of the spineless behavior of the Department of State in similar incidents.

One indignity after the other has been heaped on the department because there has been no policy of firmness in the past. Naturally the Communists now find that blackmail and extortion pay off.

There are, of course, many things the U. S. Government can do. There are many things that other Presidents of the United States and other Secretaries of State have done in the past when American citizens have been taken prisoner or otherwise molested by foreign governments.

Usual Steps Cited

Historically, the first step is a demand for release. And if no favorable action is forthcoming, it is customary to issue a further demand requiring compliance within a time limit of 48 hours. Failure to pay heed to such an ultimatum results in a severance of diplomatic relations or in the imposition of similar penalties against the citizens of that foreign government which violates freedom of movement for the nationals of the United States.

In the present instance the natural course for the United States to pursue is to pay the ransom at once and secure the immediate release of the prisoners. This is the usual method of handling kidnapping affairs, because it insures the prompt return of the persons kidnapped.

Once the release is effected, however, the United States can issue a warning that, unless adequate assurances are received promptly that any other flyers brought down by accidents in Hungarian territory in the future will be immediately released, there will be no further diplomatic relations with Hungary.

Another step that could be taken would be to impose upon the Hungarian legation in Washington and on all Hungarian consulates throughout the United States restrictions upon their movements outside of their legation and consulates for a certain period of time unless the ransom money is promptly paid back. Any members of the Hungarian legation who violated such restrictions would be subject to large fines, possibly equal to those imposed on the American flyers.

The trouble with the whole situation is that the Department of State has pursued a soft policy whenever the Communists have heretofore arrested Americans. The Vogeler case is an example of how the United States previously truckled to the satellite government of Hungary. Likewise, failure to act promptly to effect the release of William Oatis, an American newspaperman held by Czechoslovakia, is another flagrant instance of a lack of policy in Washington.

Gubichev Release Damaging

Most damaging of all was the release by the American government of the Soviet agent Gubichev, who was caught in an espionage tangle in this country but nevertheless was released and deported to Russia. He was not even brought to trial. It was reported at the time that Gubichev was released in exchange for some advantage to the United States, possibly in connection with the Vogeler case, but no information has ever been made available to confirm that fact. It is believed, therefore, that Gubichev was released without anything being obtained in return, and that the State Department has been concealing the facts about one of the worst mistakes in recent years in handling arrests of Communists.

As long as the Communists think the American government will not take drastic action, they will continue to challenge American policy at every turn and will seek methods to bring humiliation on the U. S. Government before the European world, where the battle on the propaganda front has a vital relationship to the growth or dimunition of support for Russia inside France, Italy and Germany. Sooner or later the American government will have to stand up to that challenge or face a constant deterioration of American prestige throughout the world.

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

Summing Up: Eisenhower's Success

It is astonishing to return from a three-month journey of observation abroad to find a great many people convinced that General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower's mission in Europe has been a failure. The impression of a total lack of any real accomplishment in Europe, of the whole European defense effort bogged down in confusion and inertia, seems to be almost universal. It is simpley not true. The truth is that Eisenhower has scored a downright startling success.

It is hardly surprising that most Americans should be unaware of what the Eisenhower mission is really accomplishing. Until very recently, the European leaders themselves had no idea how much was really being done. These men came to the recent defense talks in Rome in a mood of near despair, miserably reluctant to ask their governments to make the greater effort which is required in the period immediately ahead.

Gen. Eisenhower's brilliant deputy, Gen. Alfred Gruenther, altered this whole atmosphere of gloom at a single stroke. At a secret briefing he showed the European leaders in hard terms what had already been accomplished. He described how much more could be accomplished in the near future with a determined effort. And when he had finished he left the Europeans convinced that the job of building a a real defense of Western Europe could be done, and ready to get on with the job.

Consider, first, what has already been done. As of today, Eisenhower has under his command some 26 divisions, the great majority already organized in conditions of combat readiness. He has a functioning, rational supply system for those divisions, and a still inadequate but growing tactical air force.

Overcame Many Barriers

Almost this whole by no means contemptible little army has been created in less than 12 months, as it were out of thin air. When Eisenhower arrived on the European scene he found no more than seven divisions worthy of the name. Even these divisions existed in part on paper. They had no real tactical air support, and they were scattered about in tactically maingless positions, often with their supply depots between them and the potential enemy. In brief, there was simply no real defense in Western Europe at all, and every European knew it.

What has already been accomplished can be summed up in a single sentence. The Soviets cannot now launch a surprise attack in Europe. A year ago, the Red army was in a position to lunge forward at the word of command. Without a day's preparation, Soviet forces could have started a rapid, virtually unopposed march to the Atlantic. This is no longer so.

The existing NATO forces constitute more ground strength than elsewhere. This means, to quote one estimate from a highly expert source, that a full two months of preparation and reinforcement would be required before a successful Soviet offensive could be launched. These preparations would be detected soon, well before the fatal hour struck.

Fundamental Importance

The importance of this change in the European military situation is absolutely fundamental. It means that for the first time since the war Europeans can begin to feel some sense of security—not for the whole future certainly — but for tomorrow, the next day, even the next month. This limited but entirely real advance toward security is already having a profound though partly invisible effect in Europe.

Moreover, the advance is continuing. To the European defense leaders, Guenther outlined hard, specific plans for a 40-division defense force by the end of next year, and an army in fully 90 divisions when the peak of the defense effort was reached. This means simply that a real defense of Western Europe can be achieved. And this in turn means that the time is coming when Europeans on the Continent need no longer feel themselves hosttages to the Kremlin, as they have in fact been ever since the war ended.

You can sense the difference this has made all over Europe. You can sense it, for example, in a French infantry company mess, where the officers are suddenly beginning to talk as though the defense of France is something to be discussed seriously. You can sense it also in such capitals as Paris and Bonn, where project for European unity based on a Franco-German political, economic and military marriage has suddenly ceased to be the mere wishful nonsense.

In short, although the change has been slow, and has been attended by such inevitable confusion that almost no one has noticed it, Eisenhower's mission has profoundly altered the whole European atmosphere. It need hardly be said that the whole forward process could be thrown into reverse by any one of a number of developments—especially if the crumbling of the Western alliance's exposed flanks as in the Middle East, continues unabated. The Western alliance is very, very far from being over the hump. Yet the hump is at least now in plain sight. And this is a great deal more than it seemed at all reasonable to expect when Gen. Eisenhower took up his great task less than a year ago.

He Hit Back

John B. Trevor is a fine American who has been active in a large number of patriotic organizations. He organized and headed "The American Coalition of Patriotic Societies," a group of patriotic organizations going back to colonial times. He was smeared as a Fascist because he was and is a patriot. It has become a trick of the internationalists in our midst to call all patriots "America Firsteers" or "Fascists." By this device, they drove that self-sacrificing American, Charles A. Lindbergh, from public life.

It is curious that Americans have permitted the smearers to make ordinary patriotism a word of opprobrium. Love of country should be anywhere a normal human trait. It is like a discussion I once heard in which the question was asked, "Don't we need a President who knows something of Europe?"

The natural reply was: "We need a President who knows something about the United States of America!"

To get back to John Trevor, he was attacked in a document prepared by something called a Bureau of Applied Social Research of Columbia University, which was used by the United World Federalists, Inc. In an article entitled "The 'New Internationalism' under attack."

Trevor hit back and got an apology from Columbia University and the United World Federalists, Inc. The trouble with such apologies is that they are not seen or noted while the attack creates an atmosphere and an attitude unfavorable to the prescuted. This often grows in size and sounds worse than the original statement. As I respect John B. Trover's person and regard his patriotism highly, I wish to quote the whole of the apolgy from Columbia University:

"Dear Mr. Trevor:

"On behalf of Columbia University I wish to express profound rgeret that you were caused injury by the report entitled, 'The New Internationalism Under Attack" which was issued by the our Bureau of Applied Social Research.

"On behalf of the university I repudiate any statements in the report implying that you were pro-Nazi or pro-Fascist, or that you were associated with any of the individuals, committees, groups or organizations referred to on Page 57 thereof, other than the organizations referred to as the Coalition of Patriotic Societies. I also repudiate any other statements embodied in our report from which any inference might be drawn adversely reflecting upon your character, reputation and patriotism.

"You may make such use of this letter as you deem necessary.

Very truly yours,

GRAYSON KIRK,
Vice President and Provost"

As for the World Federalists, their statement, too long to include in full here, ends with these paragrahps:

"United World Federalists, Inc., sincerely regrets any injury and inconvenience which its circulation of such document has caused you, and apologizes for any part it may have had in the distribution of such document and of the reprints of a portion thereof which appeard in 'Public Opinion Quarterly.'

"United World Fedaralists will not make any further distribution of such document. United World Federalists, Inc., also will make every effort to place a copy of this letter in the hands of all persons known to it to have purchased or received copies of such document from it, and will request such persons to return such documents or to delete Page 56 and 57 thereform."

Honest differences are to be respected but the smear is never justifed when unsupported by facts. There is an outcry because Senator Joe McCarthy attacks Communists, although his attacks usually, in time, have proved to have substance.

I have written more than 30 articles on the "Amerasia Case," over a period of years; yet when Senator Tydings held his hearings, the "Amerasia Case" was soft-pedalled and the State Department cleared, including John S. Service, who has now at long last been dismsised. There was a great defense of all these people and opposition expressed to those who fought valiantly to bring the "Amerasia Case" to the fore.

On the other side, it is different. When honest and patriotic men are smeared as Fascists, without the slightest basis in fact, there is usually no outcry. Not only Communists but so-called Liberals have engaged in this sport to their heart's delight. They vilify men as Fascists, anti-Semites, anti-Negro, who are nothing of the sort and whose greatst crime often is that they love their country, its Constitution and its traditions. Such men have taken a terrible beating during the past 20 years. In fact, so vociferous has been the antagonism that often those who could have contributed much to their country have retired to privacy to void smear.

Spain And Defense

Definitive negotiations between Washington and Madrid on use by the United States of air and naval bases in Spain are expected early in 1952. The Defense Department is now working out final recommendations, based on the findings of an American military survey mission which went to Spain last summer after exploratory talks on bases between General Franco and the late Admiral Forrest P. Sherman.

Few details on positions to be taken by the United States in the forthcoming negotiations are at present available but it is generally believed that any future defense arrangements with Spain will be based on the principle of mutual aid. In return for the use of its bases, Spain expects to obtain modern military equipment for its armed forces and support for the Spanish economy. Congress already has appropriated $100 million for economic, technical, and military aid to Spain—for use if, when and as the President sees fit.

American military leaders long have considered Spain strategically important to the general defense of Western Europe. Until recently, primary emphasis was placed on Spain's worth as a base from which Allied forces might launch a counteroffensive if countries above the Pyrenees should be overrun. Now that Germany and Yugoslavia have become the frontier posts of West European defense, Spain takes its place as an "area of last resort." In the conduct of air and naval operations, however, bases on Spanish soil undoubtedly remain of prime importance for defense of the West.

United States naval officers consider Spanish bases valuable for anti-submarine warfare in both the Atlantic and the Mediterranean. Behind the Pyrenees Mountains are many protected plains suitable for air bases in a region where good flying weather usually prevails. Spain's principal airfields are near Madrid and Barcelona; in addition it has about 40 military airfields. Assistant Secretary of State Perkins told a Senate committee last July that the United States wishes initially to use certain Spanish facilities and not to build new bases. To do that, he said, some improvements will have to be made in Spanish military installations and transport facilities.

Aside from strategic bases, Spain's major potential military asset is its large army, estimated variously between 350,000 and 400,000. But the present fighting ability of the Spanish ground forces (also the air force and the small Spanish navy) is severely limited by lack of modern equipment. In any event, the extent to which Spain's forces might participate in European defense is ultimately up to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

High American defense officials favor admitting Spain to NATO on purely military grounds but the question at present is primarily political. Spain can be invited to join NATO only if all the present member states consent. And several European members, notably France and Great Britain, have voiced strong objections. West European Socialists, British Labor party members, and trade union leaders still oppose any intimate association with Franco's dictatorship on ideological grounds.

Washington's problem for the immediate future is to work out a mutually-acceptable bilateral program with Madrid for the use of Spanish bases. Initially, such a program might well involve an investment in certain airfields, port and transportation facilities, and fuel for strategic uses. Limited military aid also might be given to train and equip some Spanish forces for defense. Some additional aid for the Spanish civilian economy seems also to be essential.

In view of Spain's economic decline since the civil war, an ultimate expenditure of large sums may be required if Spain is to be converted into a dependable ally. Close supervision of the uses made of American aid funds will probably be necessary to accomplish U. S. military objectives and to ensure some benefit for the Spanish people.

Small Businesses

During the period of United States participation in World War II, more than 500,000 small businesses disappeared. Shortages of materials, demands for rapid production and quick action on war contracts, a prewar trend toward concentration in a few corporations of great size, all contributed to their demise.

Thousands of one-man businesses closed as their owners entered the armed serves or elected to take war jobs. A similar development, although not as far-reaching, occurred during World War I.

In both cases there were recoveries. Congress has long been concerned to encourage and protect small businesses, so essential to the preservation of the spirit of free enterprise. In the Defense Act, Congress wrote a mandate to to encourage small business participation in the mobilization program.

The Small Defense Plants Administration is struggling against the momentum toward big business in rearmament. Adminstrator Telford Taylor demands more action and less talk about defense contracts for small business. He has expressed his views in vigorous letters to Deense Secretary Lovett and to heads of all procurement agencies.

Joint action to spread defense contracts, in Mr. Taylor's opinion, would help to meet the need for dispersing industry and overcoming production slowdowns. Promotional and informational activities are commendable, but what is wanted is contracts, ordered at the highest procurement levels.

Small businesses are classified as those having fewer than 500 workers. This is a "primitive and unsatisfactory" classification, Administrator Taylor holds, taking no account of "whether the concern in questions makes steel, jewelry or C rations." Among other changes, he would make contract allocations to specific areas and industries so that the "greatest hardships" can be eliminated.

As the defense program gets into faster operation, small businesses are bound to suffer. Some are not adaptable to defense production. Others cannot obtain materials. Stil others, under the impact of inflation and higher taxes, will lose customers where the business caters to what might be called the amenities.

The intent of Congress to protect small business is clear. To distribute defense contracts to small businesses is another matter. It was so in both world wars and it is so now. Small businesses is part of the American tradition, part of America's strength. Its interests ought not to be lost in the bureaucratic shuffle.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Glaucoma: Increased Eyeball Tension

Glaucoma should be of interest to everyone over 40; it is the leading cause of blindness among adults. The disease can be treated successfully when detected early but this is more easily said than done because the victim may be robbed of sight without warning and without pain.

Increased pressure in the eye describes glaucoma to a T. The eye is shaped like a grape and most of it is filled with a thick jelly-like fluid. When pressure is just right the shape of the orbit is maintained yet it feels soft and is slightly compressible. With a rise in tension the structure becomes hard and firm; it cannot stretch like a balloon because the outer coat is too thick and tough. This means that something within must give way and here lies the danger of glaucoma.

The retina is soft and sensitive to pressure and so is the optic nerve which is attached to the rear of the globe and connects the eye with the brain. At first the increased pressure has little effect on these structures, but, as it mounts, the retinal nerve fibers begin to degenerate; those on the edge are affected initially so that the field of vision becomes limited to what can be seen directly ahead. Later the front or central part goes and in this respect the statement is apropos that "glaucoma squeezes the sight out of your eyes."

Early diagnosis is important because once sight is destroyed it cannot be restored. Prevention would not be difficult if every individual over 40 would have a complete eye examination every two years and report to the physician whenever certain symptoms occur.

The acute type of glaucoma strikes suddenly, with rapid failure of sight and with or without severe pain in and around the eyes. It is as tho a fog suddenly descended so that the individual is unable to see the fingers of an outstretched arm.

The chronic type is more common. It develops slowly, has a tendency to come and go, and usually is painless. All these factors make the disease seem trivial at first and many victims postpone a visit to the physician until the condition is far advanced. Some of these men and women are unwilling to have a full examination, but continue to try glasses that seem to work for a while. Actually, if frequent changes of glasses do not help vision, then investigation of glaucoma is in order. Another symptom is the inability of the eyes to adjust to darkened rooms such as theaters. Loss of side vision, fogginess, and rainbow colored halos around lights also are significant. All these signs are warnings that chronic glaucoma may exist.

A competent ophthalmologist has the equipment to test for glaucoma and also the ability to treat the condition and check its progress. There are several medicines to reduce tension; if they fail the physician can resort to operation, which usually will do the trick; but the individual also must do his part. Pressure within the eyeball is influenced by many of the same factors that affect blood pressure. Emotional upsets, for example, boost tension and the victim, therefore, should avoid excitement, anger, worry, and over-fatigue. It also may be necessary to limit the time spent at movies or in watching television and to give up coffee. These restrictions are trivial compared with the consequences.

TOMORROW: Diabetes and the pancreas.

BONE DISTURBANCE

L. W. writes: I never heard of Osgood-Schlatter disease but the doctor says that is the cause of my boy's sore knee. Can you tell me something about it?

REPLY

There are several conditions in which the circulation to the growing portion of the bone is disturbed. Osgood-Schlatter disease is one. The cause is not too well understood but in many cases immobilizing the leg is all that is needed. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on this type of disturbance.

RIB FRACTURE

L. P. writes: How long is a person usually laid up with a broken floating rib?

REPLY

If the chest is strapped, the victim can be up and about. Ribs usually heal in several weeks.

WHY NOT MARRY?

T. R. writes: Is it safe for a girl to marry and have children if her mother died of tuberculosis? X-rays show spots on the girl's lungs but her doctor tells her she does not have the disease.

REPLY

Why not believe the physician when he says the young woman does not have tuberculosis? Her attitude suggests (1) that she is afraid of marriage and is using her mother's death as an excuse, or (2) that she has a phobia about the disease.

Di Salle Memo Says Steel Industry Can Absorb Increases; Recommends Against Steel Price Hike; Criticizes Attempt To Break Wage Ceilings

WASHINGTON.—Price Administrator Mike Di Salle has written an important confidential memorandum to Roger Putnam, economic stabilization administrator, stating categorically that the steel industry is able to absorb any wage increase without boosting prices.

Simultaneously, Mr. Di Salle urged that the government take a vigorous, forthright stand against any high wage increases which would set a precedent for John L. Lewis and labor leaders in other industries.

"Steel industry profits," Di Salle wrote his chief in the confidential memo, "are running far above the industry earnings standard which ESA has instructed me to use as a test for decisions on price increases. The excess over that standard is so large that the industry clearly can absorb any reasonably probable wage increase, with a substantial margin left over for other cost increases.

"If a price increase were granted in spite of the industry's ability to absorb," Di Salle continued, "the most serious consequences for the stabilization program must be envisaged."

DiSalle was equally tough toward labor and critical of its attempt to break wage ceilings. However, he prepared a study of steel earnings showing that as of today the industry is making 32 per cent return on their net worth investment, compared with a 20.3 per cent return in 1947-49. The study also showed that after paying a possible 15 per cent wage increase, the steel companies would still make a billion dollars a year more than they made in the 1947-49 period which has been taken as the standard period for measuring profits.

Nevertheless, DiSalle opposed a high wage increase to steelworkers because it would destroy the wage-price freeze policy.

His confidential memo to new Economic Stabilizer Putnam, who took office Dec. 1, was dated Nov. 28. In transmitting it Di Salle said: "I am sorry that your initiation into the problem of price control must begin with the most difficult issue we have faced since the decision to impose the general price freeze last January."

Because the Di Salle memo goes to the vitals of the most important economic dispute in the nation, this column has obtained a copy and publishes salient portions as follows:

"The steel wage negotiations and the resulting steel price problem mark the most severe crisis which wage and price stabilization have yet faced.

"Both parties to these negotiations have now declared open warfare upon the standards prescribed to apply to the increases they seek. The steelworkers union has recently made clear its contempt for present WSB policies and its intention not merely to 'bend' but to 'break' them. The companies have been equally forthright in their insistence on a complete psas-through of any wage increase . . .

"Many in the government refuse to become alarmed at this open attack. 'Let us wait,' they say, 'until the parties have completed negotiation. We do not know that we will be presented with a request to approve unapprovable increases, either of wages or prices. We clearly cannot comment on a case that is not even in court.'

"It is with this view that I take vigorous disagreement. The parties to any steel wage negotiations are expected to act, and they always do, in consideration of a public interest. Their concept of the public interest (or what they conceive the public's view of the public interest to be) is always present at the bargaining table; and if this interest has been expressed in an administration wage or price policy, it is almost visibly there.

"In the present case, it is obviously crucial that the public interest in economic stabilization take a major role—overriding considerations of economic gain or loss, of pride and politics, of inter- or intra-union or company rivalry . . .

"I contend that the government must again declare its policies—as forcefully, and in as much detail, as possible. Such a declaration will have a direct and major influence on the outcome of the wage negotiations. And even if it should fail to have such influence, it will rally national support for the showdown that must thereafter follow.

"Our preliminary review of publicly available figures indicates that steel industry profits are running far above the industry earnings standard which ESA has instructed us to use as a test for decisions on price increases other than those more specifically required by law. The excess over that standard is so large that the industry clearly can absorb any reasonably probable wage increase, with a substantial margin left for other cost increases. Past experience indicates, however, that the industry will strenuously resist any wage increase without simultaneous assurance of a price increase. If a price increase were granted in spite of the industry's ability to absorb, the most serious consequences for the stabilization program must be envisaged-including the following:

"(A) The industry earnings standard would have to be abandoned. It does not seem possible that any other standard requiring cost absorption could be substituted . . .

"(B) The wage increase agreed to by the companies in all probability would be larger if they knew it must be absorbed, and this settlement would form a pattern for a new wave of substantial wage increases . . .

"(C) The wage and price increases resulting from such developments during the first half of 1952 would be substantially larger than the effect of any of the congressional amendments that we have so vigorously opposed. Moreover, the escalation in these cases would have no time limit as the Capehart Amendment now does . . .

"(D) The combination of a wage and price increase in the steel industry with the implied acceptance of general cost pass-through would quickly change price expectations of businessmen and probably also of consumers. This might be sufficient to stimulate a buying wave of large proportions . . .

"I am confident that a fair but firm wage policy can effectively prevent any steel wage increase which would have major inflationary consequences . . ."

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—President Truman's query, "What can you do?"—when asked by newsmen what the U. S. government intended to do about four American flyers imprisoned in Hungary—illustrates the bankruptcy of ideas and frustration characteristic of the spineless behavior of the Department of State in similar incidents.

One indignity after the other has been heaped on the department because there has been no policy of firmness in the past. Naturally the Communists now find that blackmail and extortion pay off.

There are, of course, many things the U. S. Government can do. There are many things that other Presidents of the United States and other Secretaries of State have done in the past when American citizens have been taken prisoner or otherwise molested by foreign governments.

Usual Steps Cited

Historically, the first step is a demand for release. And if no favorable action is forthcoming, it is customary to issue a further demand requiring compliance within a time limit of 48 hours. Failure to pay heed to such an ultimatum results in a severance of diplomatic relations or in the imposition of similar penalties against the citizens of that foreign government which violates freedom of movement for the nationals of the United States.

In the present instance the natural course for the United States to pursue is to pay the ransom at once and secure the immediate release of the prisoners. This is the usual method of handling kidnapping affairs, because it insures the prompt return of the persons kidnapped.

Once the release is effected, however, the United States can issue a warning that, unless adequate assurances are received promptly that any other flyers brought down by accidents in Hungarian territory in the future will be immediately released, there will be no further diplomatic relations with Hungary.

Another step that could be taken would be to impose upon the Hungarian legation in Washington and on all Hungarian consulates throughout the United States restrictions upon their movements outside of their legation and consulates for a certain period of time unless the ransom money is promptly paid back. Any members of the Hungarian legation who violated such restrictions would be subject to large fines, possibly equal to those imposed on the American flyers.

The trouble with the whole situation is that the Department of State has pursued a soft policy whenever the Communists have heretofore arrested Americans. The Vogeler case is an example of how the United States previously truckled to the satellite government of Hungary. Likewise, failure to act promptly to effect the release of William Oatis, an American newspaperman held by Czechoslovakia, is another flagrant instance of a lack of policy in Washington.

Gubichev Release Damaging

Most damaging of all was the release by the American government of the Soviet agent Gubichev, who was caught in an espionage tangle in this country but nevertheless was released and deported to Russia. He was not even brought to trial. It was reported at the time that Gubichev was released in exchange for some advantage to the United States, possibly in connection with the Vogeler case, but no information has ever been made available to confirm that fact. It is believed, therefore, that Gubichev was released without anything being obtained in return, and that the State Department has been concealing the facts about one of the worst mistakes in recent years in handling arrests of Communists.

As long as the Communists think the American government will not take drastic action, they will continue to challenge American policy at every turn and will seek methods to bring humiliation on the U. S. Government before the European world, where the battle on the propaganda front has a vital relationship to the growth or dimunition of support for Russia inside France, Italy and Germany. Sooner or later the American government will have to stand up to that challenge or face a constant deterioration of American prestige throughout the world.

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

Summing Up: Eisenhower's Success

It is astonishing to return from a three-month journey of observation abroad to find a great many people convinced that General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower's mission in Europe has been a failure. The impression of a total lack of any real accomplishment in Europe, of the whole European defense effort bogged down in confusion and inertia, seems to be almost universal. It is simpley not true. The truth is that Eisenhower has scored a downright startling success.

It is hardly surprising that most Americans should be unaware of what the Eisenhower mission is really accomplishing. Until very recently, the European leaders themselves had no idea how much was really being done. These men came to the recent defense talks in Rome in a mood of near despair, miserably reluctant to ask their governments to make the greater effort which is required in the period immediately ahead.

Gen. Eisenhower's brilliant deputy, Gen. Alfred Gruenther, altered this whole atmosphere of gloom at a single stroke. At a secret briefing he showed the European leaders in hard terms what had already been accomplished. He described how much more could be accomplished in the near future with a determined effort. And when he had finished he left the Europeans convinced that the job of building a real defense of Western Europe could be done, and ready to get on with the job.

Consider, first, what has already been done. As of today, Eisenhower has under his command some 26 divisions, the great majority already organized in conditions of combat readiness. He has a functioning, rational supply system for those divisions, and a still inadequate but growing tactical air force.

Overcame Many Barriers

Almost this whole by no means contemptible little army has been created in less than 12 months, as it were out of thin air. When Eisenhower arrived on the European scene he found no more than seven divisions worthy of the name. Even these divisions existed in part on paper. They had no real tactical air support, and they were scattered about in tactically maingless positions, often with their supply depots between them and the potential enemy. In brief, there was simply no real defense in Western Europe at all, and every European knew it.

What has already been accomplished can be summed up in a single sentence. The Soviets cannot now launch a surprise attack in Europe. A year ago, the Red army was in a position to lunge forward at the word of command. Without a day's preparation, Soviet forces could have started a rapid, virtually unopposed march to the Atlantic. This is no longer so.

The existing NATO forces constitute more ground strength than elsewhere. This means, to quote one estimate from a highly expert source, that a full two months of preparation and reinforcement would be required before a successful Soviet offensive could be launched. These preparations would be detected soon, well before the fatal hour struck.

Fundamental Importance

The importance of this change in the European military situation is absolutely fundamental. It means that for the first time since the war Europeans can begin to feel some sense of security—not for the whole future certainly — but for tomorrow, the next day, even the next month. This limited but entirely real advance toward security is already having a profound though partly invisible effect in Europe.

Moreover, the advance is continuing. To the European defense leaders, Guenther outlined hard, specific plans for a 40-division defense force by the end of next year, and an army in fully 90 divisions when the peak of the defense effort was reached. This means simply that a real defense of Western Europe can be achieved. And this in turn means that the time is coming when Europeans on the Continent need no longer feel themselves hosttages to the Kremlin, as they have in fact been ever since the war ended.

You can sense the difference this has made all over Europe. You can sense it, for example, in a French infantry company mess, where the officers are suddenly beginning to talk as though the defense of France is something to be discussed seriously. You can sense it also in such capitals as Paris and Bonn, where project for European unity based on a Franco-German political, economic and military marriage has suddenly ceased to be the mere wishful nonsense.

In short, although the change has been slow, and has been attended by such inevitable confusion that almost no one has noticed it, Eisenhower's mission has profoundly altered the whole European atmosphere. It need hardly be said that the whole forward process could be thrown into reverse by any one of a number of developments—especially if the crumbling of the Western alliance's exposed flanks as in the Middle East, continues unabated. The Western alliance is very, very far from being over the hump. Yet the hump is at least now in plain sight. And this is a great deal more than it seemed at all reasonable to expect when Gen. Eisenhower took up his great task less than a year ago.

"United World Federalists, Inc., sincerely regrets any injury and inconvenience which its circulation of such document has caused you, and apologizes for any part it may have had in the distribution of such document and of the reprints of a portion thereof which appeard in 'Public Opinion Quarterly.'

"United World Fedaralists will not make any further distribution of such document. United World Federalists, Inc., also will make every effort to place a copy of this letter in the hands of all persons known to it to have purchased or received copies of such document from it, and will request such persons to return such documents or to delete Page 56 and 57 thereform."

Honest differences are to be respected but the smear is never justified when unsupported by facts. There is an outcry because Senator Joe McCarthy attacks Communists, although his attacks usually, in time, have proved to have substance.

I have written more than 30 articles on the "Amerasia Case," over a period of years; yet when Senator Tydings held his hearings, the "Amerasia Case" was soft-pedalled and the State Department cleared, including John S. Service, who has now at long last been dismsised. There was a great defense of all these people and opposition expressed to those who fought valiantly to bring the "Amerasia Case" to the fore.

On the other side, it is different. When honest and patriotic men are smeared as Fascists, without the slightest basis in fact, there is usually no outcry. Not only Communists but so-called Liberals have engaged in this sport to their heart's delight. They vilify men as Fascists, anti-Semites, anti-Negro, who are nothing of the sort and whose greatst crime often is that they love their country, its Constitution and its traditions. Such men have taken a terrible beating during the past 20 years. In fact, so vociferous has been the antagonism that often those who could have contributed much to their country have retired to privacy to void smear.

Spain And Defense

Definitive negotiations between Washington and Madrid on use by the United States of air and naval bases in Spain are expected early in 1952. The Defense Department is now working out final recommendations, based on the findings of an American military survey mission which went to Spain last summer after exploratory talks on bases between General Franco and the late Admiral Forrest P. Sherman.

Few details on positions to be taken by the United States in the forthcoming negotiations are at present available but it is generally believed that any future defense arrangements with Spain will be based on the principle of mutual aid. In return for the use of its bases, Spain expects to obtain modern military equipment for its armed forces and support for the Spanish economy. Congress already has appropriated $100 million for economic, technical, and military aid to Spain—for use if, when and as the President sees fit.

American military leaders long have considered Spain strategically important to the general defense of Western Europe. Until recently, primary emphasis was placed on Spain's worth as a base from which Allied forces might launch a counteroffensive if countries above the Pyrenees should be overrun. Now that Germany and Yugoslavia have become the frontier posts of West European defense, Spain takes its place as an "area of last resort." In the conduct of air and naval operations, however, bases on Spanish soil undoubtedly remain of prime importance for defense of the West.

United States naval officers consider Spanish bases valuable for anti-submarine warfare in both the Atlantic and the Mediterranean. Behind the Pyrenees Mountains are many protected plains suitable for air bases in a region where good flying weather usually prevails. Spain's principal airfields are near Madrid and Barcelona; in addition it has about 40 military airfields. Assistant Secretary of State Perkins told a Senate committee last July that the United States wishes initially to use certain Spanish facilities and not to build new bases. To do that, he said, some improvements will have to be made in Spanish military installations and transport facilities.

Aside from strategic bases, Spain's major potential military asset is its large army, estimated variously between 350,000 and 400,000. But the present fighting ability of the Spanish ground forces (also the air force and the small Spanish navy) is severely limited by lack of modern equipment. In any event, the extent to which Spain's forces might participate in European defense is ultimately up to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

High American defense officials favor admitting Spain to NATO on purely military grounds but the question at present is primarily political. Spain can be invited to join NATO only if all the present member states consent. And several European members, notably France and Great Britain, have voiced strong objections. West European Socialists, British Labor party members, and trade union leaders still oppose any intimate association with Franco's dictatorship on ideological grounds.

Washington's problem for the immediate future is to work out a mutually-acceptable bilateral program with Madrid for the use of Spanish bases. Initially, such a program might well involve an investment in certain airfields, port and transportation facilities, and fuel for strategic uses. Limited military aid also might be given to train and equip some Spanish forces for defense. Some additional aid for the Spanish civilian economy seems also to be essential.

In view of Spain's economic decline since the civil war, an ultimate expenditure of large sums may be required if Spain is to be converted into a dependable ally. Close supervision of the uses made of American aid funds will probably be necessary to accomplish U. S. military objectives and to ensure some benefit for the Spanish people.

Small Businesses

During the period of United States participation in World War II, more than 500,000 small businesses disappeared. Shortages of materials, demands for rapid production and quick action on war contracts, a prewar trend toward concentration in a few corporations of great size, all contributed to their demise.

Thousands of one-man businesses closed as their owners entered the armed servces or elected to take war jobs. A similar development, although not as far-reaching, occurred during World War I.

In both cases there were recoveries. Congress has long been concerned to encourage and protect small businesses, so essential to the preservation of the spirit of free enterprise. In the Defense Act, Congress wrote a mandate to to encourage small business participation in the mobilization program.

The Small Defense Plants Administration is struggling against the momentum toward big business in rearmament. Adminstrator Telford Taylor demands more action and less talk about defense contracts for small business. He has expressed his views in vigorous letters to Deense Secretary Lovett and to heads of all procurement agencies.

Joint action to spread defense contracts, in Mr. Taylor's opinion, would help to meet the need for dispersing industry and overcoming production slowdowns. Promotional and informational activities are commendable, but what is wanted is contracts, ordered at the highest procurement levels.

Small businesses are classified as those having fewer than 500 workers. This is a "primitive and unsatisfactory" classification, Administrator Taylor holds, taking no account of "whether the concern in questions makes steel, jewelry or C rations." Among other changes, he would make contract allocations to specific areas and industries so that the "greatest hardships" can be eliminated.

As the defense program gets into faster operation, small businesses are bound to suffer. Some are not adaptable to defense production. Others cannot obtain materials. Stil others, under the impact of inflation and higher taxes, will lose customers where the business caters to what might be called the amenities.

The intent of Congress to protect small business is clear. To distribute defense contracts to small businesses is another matter. It was so in both world wars and it is so now. Small businesses is part of the American tradition, part of America's strength. Its interests ought not to be lost in the bureaucratic shuffle.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Glaucoma: Increased Eyeball Tension

Glaucoma should be of interest to everyone over 40; it is the leading cause of blindness among adults. The disease can be treated successfully when detected early but this is more easily said than done because the victim may be robbed of sight without warning and without pain.

Increased pressure in the eye describes glaucoma to a T. The eye is shaped like a grape and most of it is filled with a thick jelly-like fluid. When pressure is just right the shape of the orbit is maintained yet it feels soft and is slightly compressible. With a rise in tension the structure becomes hard and firm; it cannot stretch like a balloon because the outer coat is too thick and tough. This means that something within must give way and here lies the danger of glaucoma.

The retina is soft and sensitive to pressure and so is the optic nerve which is attached to the rear of the globe and connects the eye with the brain. At first the increased pressure has little effect on these structures, but, as it mounts, the retinal nerve fibers begin to degenerate; those on the edge are affected initially so that the field of vision becomes limited to what can be seen directly ahead. Later the front or central part goes and in this respect the statement is apropos that "glaucoma squeezes the sight out of your eyes."

Early diagnosis is important because once sight is destroyed it cannot be restored. Prevention would not be difficult if every individual over 40 would have a complete eye examination every two years and report to the physician whenever certain symptoms occur.

The acute type of glaucoma strikes suddenly, with rapid failure of sight and with or without severe pain in and around the eyes. It is as tho a fog suddenly descended so that the individual is unable to see the fingers of an outstretched arm.

The chronic type is more common. It develops slowly, has a tendency to come and go, and usually is painless. All these factors make the disease seem trivial at first and many victims postpone a visit to the physician until the condition is far advanced. Some of these men and women are unwilling to have a full examination, but continue to try glasses that seem to work for a while. Actually, if frequent changes of glasses do not help vision, then investigation of glaucoma is in order. Another symptom is the inability of the eyes to adjust to darkened rooms such as theaters. Loss of side vision, fogginess, and rainbow colored halos around lights also are significant. All these signs are warnings that chronic glaucoma may exist.

A competent ophthalmologist has the equipment to test for glaucoma and also the ability to treat the condition and check its progress. There are several medicines to reduce tension; if they fail the physician can resort to operation, which usually will do the trick; but the individual also must do his part. Pressure within the eyeball is influenced by many of the same factors that affect blood pressure. Emotional upsets, for example, boost tension and the victim, therefore, should avoid excitement, anger, worry, and over-fatigue. It also may be necessary to limit the time spent at movies or in watching television and to give up coffee. These restrictions are trivial compared with the consequences.

TOMORROW: Diabetes and the pancreas.

BONE DISTURBANCE

L. W. writes: I never heard of Osgood-Schlatter disease but the doctor says that is the cause of my boy's sore knee. Can you tell me something about it?

REPLY

There are several conditions in which the circulation to the growing portion of the bone is disturbed. Osgood-Schlatter disease is one. The cause is not too well understood but in many cases immobilizing the leg is all that is needed. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on this type of disturbance.

RIB FRACTURE

L. P. writes: How long is a person usually laid up with a broken floating rib?

REPLY

If the chest is strapped, the victim can be up and about. Ribs usually heal in several weeks.

WHY NOT MARRY?

T. R. writes: Is it safe for a girl to marry and have children if her mother died of tuberculosis? X-rays show spots on the girl's lungs but her doctor tells her she does not have the disease.

REPLY

Why not believe the physician when he says the young woman does not have tuberculosis? Her attitude suggests (1) that she is afraid of marriage and is using her mother's death as an excuse, or (2) that she has a phobia about the disease.

Di Salle Memo Says Steel Industry Can Absorb Increases; Recommends Against Steel Price Hike; Criticizes Attempt To Break Wage Ceilings

WASHINGTON.—Price Administrator Mike Di Salle has written an important confidential memorandum to Roger Putnam, economic stabilization administrator, stating categorically that the steel industry is able to absorb any wage increase without boosting prices.

Simultaneously, Mr. Di Salle urged that the government take a vigorous, forthright stand against any high wage increases which would set a precedent for John L. Lewis and labor leaders in other industries.

"Steel industry profits," Di Salle wrote his chief in the confidential memo, "are running far above the industry earnings standard which ESA has instructed me to use as a test for decisions on price increases. The excess over that standard is so large that the industry clearly can absorb any reasonably probable wage increase, with a substantial margin left over for other cost increases.

"If a price increase were granted in spite of the industry's ability to absorb," Di Salle continued, "the most serious consequences for the stabilization program must be envisaged."

DiSalle was equally tough toward labor and critical of its attempt to break wage ceilings. However, he prepared a study of steel earnings showing that as of today the industry is making 32 per cent return on their net worth investment, compared with a 20.3 per cent return in 1947-49. The study also showed that after paying a possible 15 per cent wage increase, the steel companies would still make a billion dollars a year more than they made in the 1947-49 period which has been taken as the standard period for measuring profits.

Nevertheless, DiSalle opposed a high wage increase to steelworkers because it would destroy the wage-price freeze policy.

His confidential memo to new Economic Stabilizer Putnam, who took office Dec. 1, was dated Nov. 28. In transmitting it Di Salle said: "I am sorry that your initiation into the problem of price control must begin with the most difficult issue we have faced since the decision to impose the general price freeze last January."

Because the Di Salle memo goes to the vitals of the most important economic dispute in the nation, this column has obtained a copy and publishes salient portions as follows:

"The steel wage negotiations and the resulting steel price problem mark the most severe crisis which wage and price stabilization have yet faced.

"Both parties to these negotiations have now declared open warfare upon the standards prescribed to apply to the increases they seek. The steelworkers union has recently made clear its contempt for present WSB policies and its intention not merely to 'bend' but to 'break' them. The companies have been equally forthright in their insistence on a complete psas-through of any wage increase . . .

"Many in the government refuse to become alarmed at this open attack. 'Let us wait,' they say, 'until the parties have completed negotiation. We do not know that we will be presented with a request to approve unapprovable increases, either of wages or prices. We clearly cannot comment on a case that is not even in court.'

"It is with this view that I take vigorous disagreement. The parties to any steel wage negotiations are expected to act, and they always do, in consideration of a public interest. Their concept of the public interest (or what they conceive the public's view of the public interest to be) is always present at the bargaining table; and if this interest has been expressed in an administration wage or price policy, it is almost visibly there.

"In the present case, it is obviously crucial that the public interest in economic stabilization take a major role—overriding considerations of economic gain or loss, of pride and politics, of inter- or intra-union or company rivalry . . .

"I contend that the government must again declare its policies—as forcefully, and in as much detail, as possible. Such a declaration will have a direct and major influence on the outcome of the wage negotiations. And even if it should fail to have such influence, it will rally national support for the showdown that must thereafter follow.

"Our preliminary review of publicly available figures indicates that steel industry profits are running far above the industry earnings standard which ESA has instructed us to use as a test for decisions on price increases other than those more specifically required by law. The excess over that standard is so large that the industry clearly can absorb any reasonably probable wage increase, with a substantial margin left for other cost increases. Past experience indicates, however, that the industry will strenuously resist any wage increase without simultaneous assurance of a price increase. If a price increase were granted in spite of the industry's ability to absorb, the most serious consequences for the stabilization program must be envisaged-including the following:

"(A) The industry earnings standard would have to be abandoned. It does not seem possible that any other standard requiring cost absorption could be substituted . . .

"(B) The wage increase agreed to by the companies in all probability would be larger if they knew it must be absorbed, and this settlement would form a pattern for a new wave of substantial wage increases . . .

"(C) The wage and price increases resulting from such developments during the first half of 1952 would be substantially larger than the effect of any of the congressional amendments that we have so vigorously opposed. Moreover, the escalation in these cases would have no time limit as the Capehart Amendment now does . . .

"(D) The combination of a wage and price increase in the steel industry with the implied acceptance of general cost pass-through would quickly change price expectations of businessmen and probably also of consumers. This might be sufficient to stimulate a buying wave of large proportions . . .

"I am confident that a fair but firm wage policy can effectively prevent any steel wage increase which would have major inflationary consequences . . ."

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—President Truman's query, "What can you do?"—when asked by newsmen what the U. S. government intended to do about four American flyers imprisoned in Hungary—illustrates the bankruptcy of ideas and frustration characteristic of the spineless behavior of the Department of State in similar incidents.

One indignity after the other has been heaped on the department because there has been no policy of firmness in the past. Naturally the Communists now find that blackmail and extortion pay off.

There are, of course, many things the U. S. Government can do. There are many things that other Presidents of the United States and other Secretaries of State have done in the past when American citizens have been taken prisoner or otherwise molested by foreign governments.

Usual Steps Cited

Historically, the first step is a demand for release. And if no favorable action is forthcoming, it is customary to issue a further demand requiring compliance within a time limit of 48 hours. Failure to pay heed to such an ultimatum results in a severance of diplomatic relations or in the imposition of similar penalties against the citizens of that foreign government which violates freedom of movement for the nationals of the United States.

In the present instance the natural course for the United States to pursue is to pay the ransom at once and secure the immediate release of the prisoners. This is the usual method of handling kidnapping affairs, because it insures the prompt return of the persons kidnapped.

Once the release is effected, however, the United States can issue a warning that, unless adequate assurances are received promptly that any other flyers brought down by accidents in Hungarian territory in the future will be immediately released, there will be no further diplomatic relations with Hungary.

Another step that could be taken would be to impose upon the Hungarian legation in Washington and on all Hungarian consulates throughout the United States restrictions upon their movements outside of their legation and consulates for a certain period of time unless the ransom money is promptly paid back. Any members of the Hungarian legation who violated such restrictions would be subject to large fines, possibly equal to those imposed on the American flyers.

The trouble with the whole situation is that the Department of State has pursued a soft policy whenever the Communists have heretofore arrested Americans. The Vogeler case is an example of how the United States previously truckled to the satellite government of Hungary. Likewise, failure to act promptly to effect the release of William Oatis, an American newspaperman held by Czechoslovakia, is another flagrant instance of a lack of policy in Washington.

Gubichev Release Damaging

Most damaging of all was the release by the American government of the Soviet agent Gubichev, who was caught in an espionage tangle in this country but nevertheless was released and deported to Russia. He was not even brought to trial. It was reported at the time that Gubichev was released in exchange for some advantage to the United States, possibly in connection with the Vogeler case, but no information has ever been made available to confirm that fact. It is believed, therefore, that Gubichev was released without anything being obtained in return, and that the State Department has been concealing the facts about one of the worst mistakes in recent years in handling arrests of Communists.

As long as the Communists think the American government will not take drastic action, they will continue to challenge American policy at every turn and will seek methods to bring humiliation on the U. S. Government before the European world, where the battle on the propaganda front has a vital relationship to the growth or dimunition of support for Russia inside France, Italy and Germany. Sooner or later the American government will have to stand up to that challenge or face a constant deterioration of American prestige throughout the world.

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

Summing Up: Eisenhower's Success

It is astonishing to return from a three-month journey of observation abroad to find a great many people convinced that General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower's mission in Europe has been a failure. The impression of a total lack of any real accomplishment in Europe, of the whole European defense effort bogged down in confusion and inertia, seems to be almost universal. It is simpley not true. The truth is that Eisenhower has scored a downright startling success.

It is hardly surprising that most Americans should be unaware of what the Eisenhower mission is really accomplishing. Until very recently, the European leaders themselves had no idea how much was really being done. These men came to the recent defense talks in Rome in a mood of near despair, miserably reluctant to ask their governments to make the greater effort which is required in the period immediately ahead.

Gen. Eisenhower's brilliant deputy, Gen. Alfred Gruenther, altered this whole atmosphere of gloom at a single stroke. At a secret briefing he showed the European leaders in hard terms what had already been accomplished. He described how much more could be accomplished in the near future with a determined effort. And when he had finished he left the Europeans convinced that the job of building a a real defense of Western Europe could be done, and ready to get on with the job.

Consider, first, what has already been done. As of today, Eisenhower has under his command some 26 divisions, the great majority already organized in conditions of combat readiness. He has a functioning, rational supply system for those divisions, and a still inadequate but growing tactical air force.

Overcame Many Barriers

Almost this whole by no means contemptible little army has been created in less than 12 months, as it were out of thin air. When Eisenhower arrived on the European scene he found no more than seven divisions worthy of the name. Even these divisions existed in part on paper. They had no real tactical air support, and they were scattered about in tactically maingless positions, often with their supply depots between them and the potential enemy. In brief, there was simply no real defense in Western Europe at all, and every European knew it.

What has already been accomplished can be summed up in a single sentence. The Soviets cannot now launch a surprise attack in Europe. A year ago, the Red army was in a position to lunge forward at the word of command. Without a day's preparation, Soviet forces could have started a rapid, virtually unopposed march to the Atlantic. This is no longer so.

The existing NATO forces constitute more ground strength than elsewhere. This means, to quote one estimate from a highly expert source, that a full two months of preparation and reinforcement would be required before a successful Soviet offensive could be launched. These preparations would be detected soon, well before the fatal hour struck.

Fundamental Importance

The importance of this change in the European military situation is absolutely fundamental. It means that for the first time since the war Europeans can begin to feel some sense of security—not for the whole future certainly — but for tomorrow, the next day, even the next month. This limited but entirely real advance toward security is already having a profound though partly invisible effect in Europe.

Moreover, the advance is continuing. To the European defense leaders, Guenther outlined hard, specific plans for a 40-division defense force by the end of next year, and an army in fully 90 divisions when the peak of the defense effort was reached. This means simply that a real defense of Western Europe can be achieved. And this in turn means that the time is coming when Europeans on the Continent need no longer feel themselves hosttages to the Kremlin, as they have in fact been ever since the war ended.

You can sense the difference this has made all over Europe. You can sense it, for example, in a French infantry company mess, where the officers are suddenly beginning to talk as though the defense of France is something to be discussed seriously. You can sense it also in such capitals as Paris and Bonn, where project for European unity based on a Franco-German political, economic and military marriage has suddenly ceased to be the mere wishful nonsense.

In short, although the change has been slow, and has been attended by such inevitable confusion that almost no one has noticed it, Eisenhower's mission has profoundly altered the whole European atmosphere. It need hardly be said that the whole forward process could be thrown into reverse by any one of a number of developments—especially if the crumbling of the Western alliance's exposed flanks as in the Middle East, continues unabated. The Western alliance is very, very far from being over the hump. Yet the hump is at least now in plain sight. And this is a great deal more than it seemed at all reasonable to expect when Gen. Eisenhower took up his great task less than a year ago.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

He Hit Back

John B. Trevor is a fine American who has been active in a large number of patriotic organizations. He organized and headed "The American Coalition of Patriotic Societies," a group of patriotic organizations going back to colonial times. He was smeared as a Fascist because he was and is a patriot. It has become a trick of the internationalists in our midst to call all patriots "America Firsteers" or "Fascists." By this device, they drove that self-sacrificing American, Charles A. Lindbergh, from public life.

It is curious that Americans have permitted the smearers to make ordinary patriotism a word of opprobrium. Love of country should be anywhere a normal human trait. It is like a discussion I once heard in which the question was asked, "Don't we need a President who knows something of Europe?"

The natural reply was: "We need a President who knows something about the United States of America!"

To get back to John Trevor, he was attacked in a document prepared by something called a Bureau of Applied Social Research of Columbia University, which was used by the United World Federalists, Inc. In an article entitled "The 'New Internationalism' under attack."

Trevor hit back and got an apology from Columbia University and the United World Federalists, Inc. The trouble with such apologies is that they are not seen or noted while the attack creates an atmosphere and an attitude unfavorable to the prescuted. This often grows in size and sounds worse than the original statement. As I respect John B. Trover's person and regard his patriotism highly, I wish to quote the whole of the apolgy from Columbia University:

"Dear Mr. Trevor:

"On behalf of Columbia University I wish to express profound rgeret that you were caused injury by the report entitled, 'The New Internationalism Under Attack" which was issued by the our Bureau of Applied Social Research.

"On behalf of the university I repudiate any statements in the report implying that you were pro-Nazi or pro-Fascist, or that you were associated with any of the individuals, committees, groups or organizations referred to on Page 57 thereof, other than the organizations referred to as the Coalition of Patriotic Societies. I also repudiate any other statements embodied in our report from which any inference might be drawn adversely reflecting upon your character, reputation and patriotism.

"You may make such use of this letter as you deem necessary.

Very truly yours,

GRAYSON KIRK,
Vice President and Provost"

As for the World Federalists, their statement, too long to include in full here, ends with these paragrahps:

"United World Federalists, Inc., sincerely regrets any injury and inconvenience which its circulation of such document has caused you, and apologizes for any part it may have had in the distribution of such document and of the reprints of a portion thereof which appeard in 'Public Opinion Quarterly.'

"United World Fedaralists will not make any further distribution of such document. United World Federalists, Inc., also will make every effort to place a copy of this letter in the hands of all persons known to it to have purchased or received copies of such document from it, and will request such persons to return such documents or to delete Page 56 and 57 thereform."

Honest differences are to be respected but the smear is never justifed when unsupported by facts. There is an outcry because Senator Joe McCarthy attacks Communists, although his attacks usually, in time, have proved to have substance.

I have written more than 30 articles on the "Amerasia Case," over a period of years; yet when Senator Tydings held his hearings, the "Amerasia Case" was soft-pedalled and the State Department cleared, including John S. Service, who has now at long last been dismsised. There was a great defense of all these people and opposition expressed to those who fought valiantly to bring the "Amerasia Case" to the fore.

On the other side, it is different When honest and patriotic men are smeared as Fascists, without the slightest basis in fact, there is usually no outcry. Not only Communists but so-called Liberals have engaged in this sport to their heart's delight. They vilify men as Fascists, anti-Semites, anti-Negro, who are nothing of the sort and whose greatst crime often is that they love their country, its Constitution and its traditions. Such men have taken a terrible beating during the past 2 years. In fact, so vociferous has been the antagonism that often those who could have contributed much to their country have retired to privacy to void smear.

Production, Spending And Saving Hit All-Time High

Cumberland Still On Critical List

By FRANK TRAGLE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26 (AP)—The American people produced more, saved more and spent more in 1951 than in any other year in history, Secretary of Labor Tobin said today.

And, he added in a year-end report, the 1951 record probably will be broken in 1952.

Despite stresses and strains, he said, the nation's economy maintained a remarkable stability in 1951.

"At the end of 1950," he said, "raw material prices had risen 12 per cent in six months and the consumers price (cost of living) index was rising at the rate of one per cent a month.

"But at the end of 1951, raw material prices were the same or lower than they were at the beginning of the year and the consumers price index had risen only about three per cent since February."

Though they earned more money, the American people did not go overboard in their spending, he said. There was little scare buying, he reported, and consumers saved eight dollars out of every hundred in 1951 as compared with five dollars out of every hundred in 1950.

The total output of goods and services in 1951 was nearly 10 per cent more than in 1950, he said, and at least five per cent higher than the previous all-time peak year of 1944.

He said that less time was lost through strikes during 1951 than in any previous postwar year.

"Under the influence of the manpower program," he added, "employment reached an all-time high of 62,600,000 in August, with unemployment down to 1,600,000. Average employment for the year was a million above 1950, and average unemployment was 40 per cent less.

"Our manpower proved adequate to meet the needs of the Armed Forces, to staff defense industry and to sustain a high level of civilian activity. No product was lost in 1951 because of manpower shortages."

Tobin emphasized however that although employment was up nationally, there still were a score of hard-hit areas where there was severe unemployment. These areas were:

Brockton, Fall River, Lawrence and Lowell, Mass.; Manchester, N. H.; Providence, R. I.; Atlantic City, N. J.; New York City; Altoona, Pottsville, Scranton, Uniontown-Connellsville, and Wilkes-Barre-Hazleton, Pa.; Cumberland, Md.; Asheville, N. C.; Crab Orchard, Ill.; Terre Haute and Vincennes, Ind.; and Beaumont-Port Arthur and Laredo, Texas.

In these area there were labor shortages:

Hartford, Conn.; Aiken, S. C., and Augusta, Ga.; Davenport, Iowa and Rock Island-Moline, Ill.; Indianapolis, Ind., and Wichita, Kas.

Rep. Beall

Deal measures he couldn't get otherwise but would have given him a straight-jacket control over our entire economy including condemnation of property, allocation of materials which could have put any man out of business, and placing the Government in direct competition with private businesses through Government corporations. Congress refused to give him such power.

Policies Cause Inflation

"No . . . we do not have inflation and a back-burden taxation because Congress refused its duty. We have these things because of the fiscal policies of the present Administration.

"There has not been one real attempt by the President to balance the budget and reduce the public debt.

"That has occurred just once in the last 19 years when the 80th Congress, called the worst in history by Mr. Truman on his whistle-stop tour, balanced the budget, reduced taxes and retired seven billion dollars of the national debt.

"In the appropriations of this year so far, the military is the largest with a little over 57½ billion dollars. Many Congressmen feel that this appropriation contains a lot of water that could be squeezed out. What has convinced them is that there are almost as many Generals and Admirals in the Pentagon as there were during the height of World War II. There are almost as many civilian Defense Department employes in the Pentagon as there were during that war when we had 12 million men under arms.

Four Pairs White Gloves

"Recently there came to light the fact that the Air Force had ordered four pairs of white dress gloves apiece for every man in that force. This order was rescinded.

"The armed forces are buying dried eggs at $1.40 a pound while the Agriculture Department is trying to sell their stock at $1.03 a pound. The armed forces won't buy the Agriculutre Department eggs because they aren't packaged right yet the Agriculture Department sets the regulations. This sort of thing goes on throughout the whole Governmental set-up.

"The Hoover Reorganization Plans if put into effect would save at least five billion dollars a year. About half of them have been enacted but so far this session the President has not presented one of them for Congress to enact.

Billions In Foreign Aid

"We have appropriated over seven and one-half billion dollars for foreign aid this year and yet we find our European allies dragging their feet economically and militarily although figures reveal that most of them have production figures around 50 per cent greater than before the war.

"Each of the executive departments requested higher budgets than ever and in an attempt to prevent further increases Congress passed the Jensen amendment and the Whitten amendment in order to prevent excessive hiring of Federal employes at inflated salaries, particularly in the new agencies springing up all over Washington.

"All this has been done in order to keep down Federal expenditures.

"For every dollar the Government spends, a corresponding dollar must be taken from the taxpayers' pockets.

"For the first time in peacetime history, this nation's tax bill outstrips its grocery bill. Taxes last year were fifty-seven billion dollars and the food bill was fifty-two and one-half billion dollars. Taxes for this year will total around seventy-five billion against a food bill of fifty-five billion.

Taxes are actually taking food out of people's mouths.

"Yet we find that the OPS is spending $100,000 in a sort of Micky Mouse movie to convince the people with their own money that price control is good.

"It was this same agency that put out the first order under the President's black-out of news executive order refusing the public any information that might tend to embarrass the OPS.

Something To Be Done

"So much corroupton is being revealed, so many socialistic schemes are being tried that the people are clamoring for something to be done.

"The President did it. He issued the most sweeping order classifying information that is to be given the public of any President in history. It is much broader than any World War II rules during the height of the war.

"It not only covers the Department of Defense but such outfits as the Fish and Wildlife Services and the Smithsonian Institute. From now on, if any bureaucrat wants to keep his activities from the public all he has to do is to say it is classified information. It can spoon-feed the public as it sees fit.

"Every newspaper and newspaper organization is up in arms about this order and it is hoped that public opinion and our free press will soon nullify it.

"What the Second Session of the 82nd Congress will bring forth is anybody's guess at present. But what will be presented by the President is a foregone conclusion....all the Fair Deal schemes which have been refused in the past....more spending....and higher taxes.

More Controls Coming

"Unless the international picture changes, more men will be drafted from their schools and homes, Universal military training will become a reality. More controls will be requested.

"The pinch of rearmament will begin to be felt.

"We should stop fooling the people. Tell them the truth.

"Government never creates wealth. It can only spend what it takes in taxation from the people.

"We are in the position we are in today because the socilalistic planners wanted it that way. We are in the midst of the bloodless revolution by leveling off through taxation.

"We are spending enormous sums for reamament because of the disaster of our foreign policy.

"We are witnessing one of the greatest exposures of waste, inefficiency, bribery and corruption in our lifetime, in high government places.

"There has been no attempt to balance the budget and reduce the national debt.

Cost Is Plenty

"Since the Prendergast machine has moved to Washington it has cost the people of this country 400 billion dollars. For that money we have received a creeping socialism, created inflation, communist infiltration, the lowest morality in public office, confusion, disaster and 100,000 casualties in Korea.

"The people have good cause to wonder how much of their tax money goes for political patronage, party favoritism, incompetence, dishonesty, waste and extravagance.

"They have a right to know.... and they will know. It's time to call a halt."

This afternoon, Rep. Beall will address about 800 farmers from Carroll and Frederick Counties at the annual meeting of the Farm Bureau in the Frederick High School.

Mr. Beall recently indicated his intentions of seeking his party's nomination for United States Senate in 1952.

PCL To End Runs At Martinsburg

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 26 (AP)—Gardner W. Pierce, president of the Potomac Coach Lines here, said tonight its bus service in and around Martinsburg would be discontinued by the first of the year. He blamed lack of patronage and "bad breaks of the weather" which caused breakdowns.

Pierce said he would notify the Public Service Commission of the shut-down tomorrow.

The runs extended to the Pinecrest, Shepherdstown and Charles Town. Pierce said the Pinecrest route was being discontinued "Immediately," and the other runs would be taken off December 31.

He and two other Martinsburg men—Floyd Wilburn and Edgar Albright—jointly purchased the line last May from the Potomac Motor Coach Lines of Hagerstown.

Recently, Pierce said, he purchased Wilburn's one-third interest. Albright now is dead, and his one-third interest is being held by his widow.

The line was started about four years ago by Robert L. Emery. The franchise was handled briefly by the Mellon National Bank of Pittsburgh before being taken over by the Hagerstown interest.

Pierce said someone else probably would try to make another go at the route but added he did not know now who it might be.

Production, Spending And Saving Hit All-Time High

Cumberland Still On Critical List

By FRANK TRAGLE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26 (AP)—The American people produced more, saved more and spent more in 1951 than in any other year in history, Secretary of Labor Tobin said today.

And, he added in a year-end report, the 1951 record probably will be broken in 1952.

Despite stresses and strains, he said, the nation's economy maintained a remarkable stability in 1951.

"At the end of 1950," he said, "raw material prices had risen 12 per cent in six months and the consumers price (cost of living) index was rising at the rate of one per cent a month.

"But at the end of 1951, raw material prices were the same or lower than they were at the beginning of the year and the consumers price index had risen only about three per cent since February."

Though they earned more money, the American people did not go overboard in their spending, he said. There was little scare buying, he reported, and consumers saved eight dollars out of every hundred in 1951 as compared with five dollars out of every hundred in 1950.

The total output of goods and services in 1951 was nearly 10 per cent more than in 1950, he said, and at least five per cent higher than the previous all-time peak year of 1944.

He said that less time was lost through strikes during 1951 than in any previous postwar year.

"Under the influence of the manpower program," he added, "employment reached an all-time high of 62,600,000 in August, with unemployment down to 1,600,000. Average employment for the year was a million above 1950, and average unemployment was 40 per cent less.

"Our manpower proved adequate to meet the needs of the Armed Forces, to staff defense industry and to sustain a high level of civilian activity. No product was lost in 1951 because of manpower shortages."

Tobin emphasized however that although employment was up nationally, there still were a score of hard-hit areas where there was severe unemployment. These areas were:

Brockton, Fall River, Lawrence and Lowell, Mass.; Manchester, N. H.; Providence, R. I.; Atlantic City, N. J.; New York City; Altoona, Pottsville, Scranton, Uniontown-Connellsville, and Wilkes-Barre-Hazleton, Pa.; Cumberland, Md.; Asheville, N. C.; Crab Orchard, Ill., Terre Haute and Vincennes, Ind.; and Beaumont-Port Arthur and Laredo, Texas.

In these area there were labor shortages:

Deal measures he couldn't get otherwise but would have given him a straight-jacket control over our entire economy including condemnation of property, allocation of materials which could have put any man out of business, and placing the Government in direct competition with private businesses through Government corporations. Congress refused to give him such power.

Policies Cause Inflation

"No . . . we do not have inflation and a back-burden taxation because Congress refused its duty. We have these things because of the fiscal policies of the present Administration.

"There has not been one real attempt by the President to balance the budget and reduce the public debt.

"That has occurred just once in the last 19 years when the 80th Congress, called the worst in history by Mr. Truman on his whistle-stop tour, balanced the budget, reduced taxes and retired seven billion dollars of the national debt.

There are almost as many civilian Defense Department employes in the Pentagon as there were during that war when we had 12 million men under arms.

Four Pairs White Gloves

"Recently there came to light the fact that the Air Force had ordered four pairs of white dress gloves apiece for every man in that force. This order was rescinded.

"The armed forces are buying dried eggs at $1.40 a pound while the Agriculture Department is trying to sell their stock at $1.03 a pound. The armed forces won't buy the Agriculutre Department eggs because they aren't packaged right yet the Agriculture Department sets the regulations. This sort of thing goes on throughout the whole Governmental set-up.

"The Hoover Reorganization Plans if put into effect would save at least five billion dollars a year. About half of them have been enacted but so far this session the President has not presented one of them for Congress to enact.

Billions In Foreign Aid

"We have appropriated over seven and one-half billion dollars for foreign aid this year and yet we find our European allies dragging their feet economically and militarily although figures reveal that most of them have production figures around 50 per cent greater than before the war.

"Each of the executive departments requested higher budgets than ever and in an attempt to prevent further increases Congress passed the Jensen amendment and the Whitten amendment in order to prevent excessive hiring of Federal employes at inflated salaries, particularly in the new agencies springing up all over Washington.

"All this has been done in order to keep down Federal expenditures.

"For every dollar the Government spends, a corresponding dollar must be taken from the taxpayers' pockets.

"For the first time in peacetime history, this nation's tax bill outstrips its grocery bill. Taxes last year were fifty-seven billion dollars and the food bill was fifty-two and one-half billion dollars. Taxes for this year will total around seventy-five billion against a food bill of fifty-five billion.

Taxes are actually taking food out of people's mouths.

"Yet we find that the OPS is spending $100,000 in a sort of Micky Mouse movie to convince the people with their own money that price control is good.

"It was this same agency that put out the first order under the President's black-out of news executive order refusing the public any information that might tend to embarrass the OPS.

Something To Be Done

"So much corruption is being revealed, so many socialistic schemes are being tried that the people are clamoring for something to be done.

"The President did it. He issued the most sweeping order classifying information that is to be given the public of any President in history. It is much broader than any World War II rules during the height of the war.

"It not only covers the Department of Defense but such outfits as the Fish and Wildlife Services and the Smithsonian Institute. From now on, if any bureaucrat wants to keep his activities from the public all he has to do is to say it is classified information. It can spoon-feed the public as it sees fit.

"Every newspaper and newspaper organization is up in arms about this order and it is hoped that public opinion and our free press will soon nullify it.

"What the Second Session of the 82nd Congress will bring forth is anybody's guess at present. But what will be presented by the President is a foregone conclusion....all the Fair Deal schemes which have been refused in the past....more spending....and higher taxes.

More Controls Coming

"Unless the international picture changes, more men will be drafted from their schools and homes, Universal military training will become a reality. More controls will be requested.

"The pinch of rearmament will begin to be felt.

"We should stop fooling the people. Tell them the truth.

"Government never creates wealth. It can only spend what it takes in taxation from the people.

"We are in the position we are in today because the socilalistic planners wanted it that way. We are in the midst of the bloodless revolution by leveling off through taxation.

"We are spending enormous sums for reamament because of the disaster of our foreign policy.

"We are witnessing one of the greatest exposures of waste, inefficiency, bribery and corruption in our lifetime, in high government places.

"There has been no attempt to balance the budget and reduce the national debt.

Cost Is Plenty

"Since the Prendergast machine has moved to Washington it has cost the people of this country 400 billion dollars. For that money we have received a creeping socialism, created inflation, communist infiltration, the lowest morality in public office, confusion, disaster and 100,000 casualties in Korea.

"The people have good cause to wonder how much of their tax money goes for political patronage, party favoritism, incompetence, dishonesty, waste and extravagance.

"They have a right to know.... and they will know. It's time to call a halt."

This afternoon, Rep. Beall will address about 800 farmers from Carroll and Frederick Counties at the annual meeting of the Farm Bureau in the Frederick High School.

Mr. Beall recently indicated his intentions of seeking his party's nomination for United States Senate in 1952.

PCL To End Runs At Martinsburg

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 26 (AP)—Gardner W. Pierce, president of the Potomac Coach Lines here, said tonight its bus service in and around Martinsburg would be discontinued by the first of the year. He blamed lack of patronage and "bad breaks of the weather" which caused breakdowns.

Pierce said he would notify the Public Service Commission of the shut-down tomorrow.

The runs extended to the Pinecrest, Shepherdstown and Charles Town. Pierce said the Pinecrest route was being discontinued "Immediately," and the other runs would be taken off December 31.

He and two other Martinsburg men—Floyd Wilburn and Edgar Albright—jointly purchased the line last May from the Potomac Motor Coach Lines of Hagerstown.

Recently, Pierce said, he purchased Wilburn's one-third interest. Albright now is dead, and his one-third interest is being held by his widow.

The line was started about four years ago by Robert L. Emery. The franchise was handled briefly by the Mellon National Bank of Pittsburgh before being taken over by the Hagerstown interest.

Pierce said someone else probably would try to make another go at the route but added he did not know now who it might be.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK—If you are in the swing of things in this town, going to all the hit shows, visiting the best saloons and mingling with all the wonderful and horrible people who go to make up the top-drawer of New Yorkers, sooner or later you meet Thyra Samter Winslow. It's a genuine pleasure.

Thyra is a small, dark, pretty piece of perpetual motion who is the envy of most of America's professional writers because she has in her time accomplished the impossible daily double—she has sold any number of serious stories, beautifully told and full of wind, rain and unhappy endings, and she has, sold any number of formula, boy-gets-girl tales to the slick magazines.

The remarkable thing about her is that she manages to be everywhere and do everything and still have time to write. She's always at the new plays, with handsome young escorts, always at the new cafe shows and always popping off to some foreign land for a couple of weeks.

Meanwhile, she does drama criticism for two magazines, writes her short stories and a flood of articles and still finds time to give and go to endless parties. Cholly Knickerbocker has called her "a perennial glamor girl" and it is my personal belief that the word vivacious was coined for hre.

The latest grist from Thyra's smoking mill is a just - published book called "Think Yourself Thin," whose logical premise seems to be that the best way to lose weight is to pay attention to what you eat.

As a man who now looks like a pregnant stringbean (credit John Barrymore), I plan to read this through completely, but at present I am fascinated by one chapter. This chapter confirms a belief I always have held—that a lot of people eat too much simply because they're unhappy.

Thyra says that over-eaters include the "emotional wrecks"—who look fat and unemotional but are not.

"They are seething inside, dissatisfied, worried, miserable, frightened," she explains. "Things go wrong—and they eat. They can't get the job they'd like to have, so they take out their emotions on puddings and apple pies. It's so comforting to eat a box of butter creams when things go wring!"

This, I think, is a theory that has not been advanced too often and is completely sound. I recall in my youth, an eon or two ago, quarreling with a girl over the way she cut her toenails or something and storming out of her house in anger—only to return 10 minutes later and find her standing in the kitchen with beetled brows stuffing herself with cake . . . which she hated.

This is carried to an even more logical conclusion over in Lindy's Restaurant, where nightly you will find pale and fat press agents mournfully filling themselves with piece after piece of cheesecake just because they have lost an account.

"There are so many things the worrier can do," Thyra suggests helpfully. "He can mix with people, learn a new vocation." She obviously is not referring to those press agents, who, if all the gossip columns suddenly were suspended, would never earn a dollar for the rest of their lives. They are highly conditioned, ah . . . specialists.

Mostly, Thyra points out, it's women who over-eat because of unhappy love affairs. "When I'm happy," a well-known actress told her, "I don't think about eating. But I fall in love and things don't go so well. So I stay at home and eat. I run to the refrigerator—when the telephone doesn't ring. I eat chocolates when I stay home in the evening."

Thyra also says that girls who are apt to be a little plump often stuff themselves with food to explain away their unpopularity with men.

"As she becomes fat—which she will, sure as fate, if she turns to rich foods for solace—she has a fine alibi for her unpopularity," Thyra writes. "She is unpopular because she is fat So she hides behind her fat. Her extra weight is her screen, her comfort, her excuse for everything."

Thyra, of course, is aiming this book at the out-of-town market. She knows, as we all do, that there are no fat, gross women in New York. We have here only the finest, fairest specimens of American womanhood, and I love them all. Or try to, anyway.

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

"Oh, what a wonderful pudding!" exclaimed Bob Cratchet as he served his family and guests.

"Oh, what a lot of calories!" exclaimed my hostess, dipping deep into the bowl of hard sauce.

But what went through my mind was, "Oh, what a shame to let weight worries steal the enjoyment of holiday feasts!"

Figure Tricks

Anyone can hold down weight and partake of Yule fare without mental flagellation if just a bit of cleverness is exercised. All you need do is substitute a few non-fattening recipes for the calorie-loaded ones. You can find them in any cook book. The three that follow were worked out by my own dietetic experts:

Low-calorie canape: Into one pound of uncreamed cottage cheese pour spiced vegetable juice, add a clove of minced garlic and stir until the mixture is just spreadable. Spread on whole wheat melba or crackers. It's a delicious tidbit worthy of any party!

Non-fattening mayonnaise: To one container of yogurt milk (custard variety will do but the milk-type is preferable) add a finely chopped green pepper, one minced onion, four minced stuffed olives, an done minced dill or sour pickle. This makes a dressing of the thousand-island type that can be mixed with salads and slaws of all kinds. Guests are sure to want the recipe pronto!

Slimmer's Whipped Cream

Dieter's whipped cream: What? A whipped cream for dieters? You bet! Put a quarter cup of skim milk powder in a large mixing bowl. Add one and one-half teaspoons of lemon juice and a half-teaspoon of vanilla. Sprinkle a quarter cup of skim mik powder on top this mixture. Beat furiously unti it is very stiff. Then sprinkle the top with one tablespoon of fine sugar and beat again until the the mixture holds in stiff peaks. It's a topping fit for a king and with only a very few calories to a cupful!

Don't give up your party foods. Just smarten up and "defatten" whatever and wherever you can!

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

His Last Wise Crack

Harold Ross, the brilliant editor of the New Yorker magazine, was being wheeled in for a serious lung operation — the same as was performed on the King of England. Fifteen minutes before he had been playing cribbage. He turned to a friend who was with him.

John Wheeler

"If I don't make it," he said, "have the funeral at Campell's chapel. I have been there so much lately as a spectator, it seems like a second home to me."

It was his last ride. He didn't come back. This writer had known him since he was on the Stars and Stripes in World War I. He was a colorful combination — a mean, sweet, gruff, bitter, sarcastic guy with character and complete integrity when it came to journalism.

The New Yorker was Ross' brain child. The idea originally was to print inside stories that don't see the light of day which newspaper reporters are supposed to sit around and tell after hours in a saloon. It was not possible to stick to this pattern, but out of it came a sparkling magazine which reflected the mind of its editor. At first he had a hard struggle and, after a few issues, its backer, Raoul Fleishmann, was disappointed as he did not have unlimited funds to put into it.

A meeting was held at the Princeton Club in New York to discuss the future of the venture, and the gloom was pretty thick. In fact, Mr. Fleischmann, according to reliable reports, was ready to throw in the sponge and write it off as a failure. Ross argued to let him try a few more issues, I think four. The situation changed, the weekly turned the corner, and has now become a big success and very prosperous, but it was a close squeeze.

If you should judge a man by the enemies he makes, Ross must have been rich. He had plenty. He once published a profile about Billy Rose which got under his sensitive skin and was intended to. The showman burned up. He showed me a letter he addressed to the New Yorker editor. I quote from memory:

"Of course, I could write a piece about you in my column, but I have too big a circulation to waste it. I could say you are the only man in New York who can eat a tomato through a tennis racket, and probably in the U. S. A."

This referred to Ross' widely separated and projecting front teeth. Notwithstanding these, he had three beautiful wives, all of whom I knew. This seemed to be one of his weaknesses, getting married every little while. In my opinion, he was a guy who should have stayed single, but he never asked me for advice.

He published a profile about Walter Winchell and brought in Sherman Billingsley, a close friend of the columnist and proprietor of the Stork Club. The result was a feud with Winchell and Ross was barred from Mr. B's joint. The velvet rope stuck if he tried to enter which he didn't. Of course, he took it in his stride, realizing there are lots of other restaurants in New York and did not do a Josephine Baker. Henry Luce, the magazine publisher, once printed something about the New Yorker Ross didn't like, and he let him have both barrels in a seething piece.

He was a prodigiously hard worker. He believed it hurt his weekly to let Readers Digest reprint articles and called off a lucrative deal when the contract ran out. Once he published a three-part profile of Roy Howard, the newspaper tycoon, written by a former employe. Before it appeared, we were all at dinner at Westbrook Pegler's house.

"How about that profile, Harold?" Mr. Howard inquired somewhat anxiously.

"Roy, you haven't a thing in the world to worry about," was the answer.

Later I saw the hero of the piece. To say he was displeased is an understantement.

"Some day," he announced, "I'll get Ross out on the end of a limb and saw it off."

It's too late now. He can put his saw away." And what will the magaine be without its great editor — like Hamlet without Hamzlet?

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK—If you are in the swing of things in this town, going to all the hit shows, visiting the best saloons and mingling with all the wonderful and horrible people who go to make up the top drawer of New Yorkers, sooner or later you meet Thyra Samter Winslow. It's a genuine pleasure.

Thyra is a small, dark, pretty piece of perpetual motion who is the envy of most of America's professional writers because she has in her time accomplished the impossible daily double—she has sold any number of serious stories, beautifully told and full of wind, rain and unhappy endings, and she has sold any number of formula, boy-gets-girl tales to the slick magazines.

The remarkable thing about her is that she manages to be everywhere and do everything and still have time to write. She's always at the new plays, with handsome young escorts, always at the new cafe shows and always popping off to some foreign land for a couple of weeks.

Meanwhile, she does drama criticism for two magazines, writes her short stories and a flood of articles and still finds time to give and go to endless parties. Cholly Knickerbocker has called her "a perennial glamor girl" and it is my personal belief that the word vivacious was coined for hre.

The latest grist from Thyra's smoking mill is a just - published book called "Think Yourself Thin," whose logical premise seems to be that the best way to lose weight is to pay attention to what you eat.

As a man who now looks like a pregnant stringbean (credit John Barrymore), I plan to read this through completely, but at present I am fascinated by one chapter. This chapter confirms a belief I always have held—that a lot of people eat too much simply because they're unhappy.

Thyra says that over-eaters include the "emotional wrecks"—who look fat and unemotional but are not.

"They are seething inside, dissatisfied, worried, miserable, frightened," she explains. "Things go wrong—and they eat. They can't get the job they'd like to have, so they take out their emotions on puddings and apple pies. It's so comforting to eat a box of butter creams when things go wring!"

This, I think, is a theory that has not been advanced too often and is completely sound. I recall in my youth, an eon or two ago, quarreling with a girl over the way she cut her toenails or something and storming out of her house in anger—only to return 10 minutes later and find her standing in the kitchen with beetled brows stuffing herself with cake . . . which she hated.

This is carried to an even more logical conclusion over in Lindy's Restaurant, where nightly you will find pale and fat press agents mournfully filling themselves with piece after piece of cheesecake just because they have lost an account.

"There are so many things the worrier can do," Thyra suggests helpfully. "He can mix with people, learn a new vocation." She obviously is not referring to those press agents, who, if all the gossip columns suddenly were suspended, would never earn a dollar for the rest of their lives. They are highly conditioned, ah . . . specialists.

Mostly, Thyra points out, it's women who over-eat because of unhappy love affairs. "When I'm happy," a well-known actress told her, "I don't think about eating. But I fall in love and things don't go so well. So I stay at home and eat. I run to the refrigerator—when the telephone doesn't ring. I eat chocolates when I stay home in the evening."

Thyra also says that girls who are apt to be a little plump often stuff themselves with food to explain away their unpopularity with men.

"As she becomes fat—which she will, sure as fate, if she turns to rich foods for solace—she has a fine alibi for her unpopularity," Thyra writes. "She is unpopular because she is fat So she hides behind her fat. Her extra weight is her screen, her comfort, her excuse for everything."

Thyra, of course, is aiming this book at the out-of-town market. She knows, as we all do, that there are no fat, gross women in New York. We have here only the finest, fairest specimens of American womanhood, and I love them all. Or try to, anyway.

Try these three party trimmings—so delicious, tempting and yet contrived to shave the calories!

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

"Oh, what a wonderful pudding!" exclaimed Bob Cratchet as he served his family and guests.

"Oh, what a lot of calories!" exclaimed my hostess, dipping deep into the bowl of hard sauce.

But what went through my mind was, "Oh, what a shame to let weight worries steal the enjoyment of holiday feasts!"

Figure Tricks

Anyone can hold down weight and partake of Yule fare without mental flagellation if just a bit of cleverness is exercised. All you need do is substitute a few non-fattening recipes for the calorie-loaded ones. You can find them in any cook book. The three that follow were worked out by my own dietetic experts:

Low-calorie canape: Into one pound of uncreamed cottage cheese pour spiced vegetable juice, add a clove of minced garlic and stir until the mixture is just spreadable. Spread on whole wheat melba or crackers. It's a delicious tidbit worthy of any party!

Non-fattening mayonnaise: To one container of yogurt milk (custard variety will do but the milk-type is preferable) add a finely chopped green pepper, one minced onion, four minced stuffed olives, an done minced dill or sour pickle. This makes a dressing of the thousand-island type that can be mixed with salads and slaws of all kinds. Guests are sure to want the recipe pronto!

Slimmer's Whipped Cream

Dieter's whipped cream: What? A whipped cream for dieters? You bet! Put a quarter cup of skim milk powder in a large mixing bowl. Add one and one-half teaspoons of lemon juice and a half-teaspoon of vanilla. Sprinkle a quarter cup of skim mik powder on top this mixture. Beat furiousy unti it is very stiff. Then sprinkle the top with one tablespoon of fine sugar and beat again until the the mixture holds in stiff peaks. It's a topping fit for a king and with only a very few calories to a cup-ful!

Don't give up your party foods. Just smarten up and "defatten" whatever and wherever you can!

P. S. from J. R. P.

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

His Last Wise Crack

Harold Ross, the brilliant editor of the New Yorker magazine, was being wheeled in for a serious lung operation — the same as was performed on the King of England. Fifteen minutes before he had been playing cribbage. He turned to a friend who was with him.

John Wheeler

"If I don't make it," he said, "have the funeral at Campell's chapel. I have been there so much lately as a spectator, it seems like a second home to me."

It was his last ride. He didn't come back. This writer had known him since he was on the Stars and Stripes in World War I. He was a colorful combination — a mean, sweet, gruff, bitter, sarcastic guy with character and complete integrity when it came to journalism.

The New Yorker was Ross' brain child. The idea originally was to print inside stories that don't see the light of day which newspaper reporters are supposed to sit around and tell after hours in a saloon. It was not possible to stick to this pattern, but out of it came a sparkling magazine which reflected the mind of its editor. At first he had a hard struggle and, after a few issues, its backer, Raoul Fleishmann, was disappointed as he did not have unlimited funds to put into it.

A meeting was held at the Princeton Club in New York to discuss the future of the venture, and the gloom was pretty thick. In fact, Mr. Fleischmann, according to reliable reports, was ready to throw in the sponge and write it off as a failure. Ross argued to let him try a few more issues, I think four. The situation changed, the weekly turned the corner, and has now become a big success and very prosperous, but it was a close squeeze.

If you should judge a man by the enemies he makes, Ross must have been nrich. He had plenty. He once published a profile about Billy Rose which got under his sensitive skin and was intended to. The showman burned up. He showed me a letter he addressed to the New Yorker editor. I quote from memory:

"Of course, I could write a piece about you in my column, but I have too big a circulation to waste it. I could say you are the only man in New York who can eat a tomato through a tennis racket, and probably in the U. S. A."

This referred to Ross' widely separated and projecting front teeth. Notwithstanding these, he had three beautiful wives, all of whom I knew. This seemed to be one of his weaknesses, getting married every little while. In my opinion, he was a guy who should have stayed single, but he never asked me for advice.

He published a profile about Walter Winchell and brought in Sherman Billingsley, a close friend of the columnist and proprietor of the Stork Club. The result was a feud with Winchell and Ross was barred from Mr. B's joint. The velvet rope stuck if he tried to enter which he didn't. Of course, he took it in his stride, realizing there are lots of other restaurants in New York and did not do a Josephine Baker. Henry Luce, the magazine publisher, once printed something about the New Yorker Ross didn't like, and he let him have both barrels in a seething piece.

He was a prodigiously hard worker. He believed it hurt his weekly to let Readers Digest reprint articles and called off a lucrative deal when the contract ran out. American Expert Suggests Planned Family Check For Burgeoning India

By SELIG S. HARRISON

NEW DELHI—(AP)—An American expert thinks government-sponsored family planning measures could bring "substantial results" in checking India's population growth rate within a decade.

Dr. Abraham Stone, vice-president of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, returned from a month's tour of India under Indian government auspices with reports of "keen interest" in the family planning.

"Everywhere I went people in all walks of life appeared intensely aware of the need for limiting the size of the family," he said in an interview.

"Even village women are now eager for information. And they have reason to be. I have seen many girls of 26 with as many as eight or even more living children."

En route to the United States, Dr. Stone will spend 10 days in Ceylon at the request of the Ceylon government. After reaching the U. S. early January he will submit a formal report on his Indian trip to the World Health Organization.

The Indian government's National Council of Medical Research already has accepted a major recommendation Dr. Stone will include in his report. The council set up a new committee to study the "medical and technical aspects of human reproduction."

For the long run Dr. Stone outlined a three-point program:

1. Mass education under government direction to arouse full consciousness of the need for family planning.

2. Establishment of family planning clinics "everywhere where there is an obstetrical or gynecological department in a hospital, and in conjunction with every maternity and child welfare station."

3. Research by the new committee of the government's Council of Medical Research to discover new methods of controlling family size which are "inexpensive and simple enough for use on a mass scale."

Dr. Stone praised the "progressive attitude" of the Indian government toward family planning. No other government has yet approached the WHO for family planning advice.

The opposition of the late Mahatma Gandhi to birth control achieved through any means but self-control has marred general acceptance of Indian family planning movements in the past. Prime Minister Nehru, however, has been one of the outspoken proponents of family planning.

India's 1951 census showed a population of 356,891,624, minus disputed Kashmir. On the basis of fertility and death rate statistics, Census Chief R. A. Gopalaswami estimated that the figure jumps at a 9,744 rate every 24 hours. The increase since 1941 was 42,061,576. By the most conservative projection, India's population unchecked would reach 442,000,000 by 1991.

FOR HOLIDAY EVENINGS—Is this New York dress of gray and pale yellow nylon tulle with wide gray tulle scarf, by Filcol. The closely-moulded bodice, roundly-shirred above a pointed midriff, is gray. The wide skirt combines the two shades over layers of gray tulle and gray taffeta.

Rec Director Job Still Open

The Cumberland Recreation Board has delayed the selection of a recreation director pending the interviews of three more applicants.

C. Van Roby, chairman of the board, said yesterday two applicants have been interviewed, with others scheduled after the first of the year.

For the time being, the recreation program is being conducted by Ray Hull and Charles Bryce, teachers at Fort Hill High School.

These two men are supervising the basketball leagues which were set up by Edmund F. Hoey, city recreation director who resigned effective December 31 to take a position in Baltimore county.

Other activities of the department are being held up pending the selection of a recreation director. Roby said all candidates will be screened thoroughly before the name is presented to the Mayor and Council.

The names for applicants were forwarded by the National Recreation Board.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 26. (INS)—The biggest money maker of 1951 for Darryl Zanuck was "David and Bathsheba" starring Susan Hayward and Gregory Peck. So what could be more natural than for Darryl to reunite his "Lucky Stars" in the one picture he will personally produce in 1952, "The Snows of Kilimanjaro?"

The "David and Bathsheba" movie was more Greg's than Susan's—but wait until you see her as Jane Frohman in "A Song in My Heart." Not only is Darryl doing raves but all the New York bosses are strong for the redhead.

Henry King will direct and the picture goes into production January 14, shortly after the Zanucks return from the holidays in Sun Valley.

On Jan. 8 there will be a big try made to get the Navy to approve the making of "Caine Mutiny" as a motion picture. Herman Wouk, the author, leaves New York, and Stanley Roberts, who scripted the adaptation, leaves Hollywood to meet in Washington. They'll confer with the Navy brass on that day.

The completed script will be submitted for approval and it's hoped that the treatment will be acceptable. In the past the story never really did get to the top men.

If the Navy says okay to proceed, the picture will be put into production on the Columbia lot by Stanley Kramer.

Deanna Durbin writes from Saint Paul, in the south of France, where she is living with her husband, Charles David, her daughter, Jessica, and baby Peter:

"Bless your heart, Louella, you have always been as nice to me as you could considering my hectic life and career. Now you say you'd like to hear something of the truth about my plans.

"They've handed out more misinformation to the few fans I have left than would fill a volume about the fat I've been putting on, or the cruel dieting my husband puts me through, or the fights we are having in public, or the recordings I have sent to MGM trying to get a contract. All wild inventions

!"Since I left Hollywood I've had time to relax, travel, get married and have Peter. I take care of Peter exclusively if for no other reason than I've never enjoyed anything so much. This may not advance me professionally, but it certainly keeps my voice in training. Peter loves lullabies. My parents are coming over next spring, and we plan to return to the U. S. A. with them. Until then, fondly, Deanna."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Bob Arthur's parents are here from Aberdeen, Washington, to spend the holiday season with him and to meet his best irl friend, Wanda Hendrix. Yes, this is a serious romance.

There was a lot of talk that Moira Shearer was on the MGM lot and that perhaps it was to do "Invitation to a Dance" with Gene Kelly. When I asked Arthur Freed he said, "It's a good idea. We wish it were true, but apparently she was confused with another ballet dancer who may do the picture."

Jeanette Briggs writes to say that her reconciliation with Mike Mazurki failed. Sorry to hear it.

Jane Meadows, who is the daughter of an Episcopal minister, recently read the Declaration of Independence of the State of Israel to 10,000 people, backed by 20 cantors. The ambassador from Israel complimented Jane by saying he had seldom heard this declaration read in a more moving manner.

Are John Payne and Lina Romay getting serious? They are seeing a lot of each other.

Ruth Roman at the very last minute was allowed to take that trip to New York with her husband, Mortimer Hall. She suffered a chipped elbow bone a few weeks ago and at first the doctor said no.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

I0OF Kiddie Party Set For Friday

The annual kiddies party, sponsored by Odd Fellows and Rebekah lodges in Cumberland, which was postponed from last Friday night, will be held this Friday at 7:45 p. m. in the form of a Year End Party.

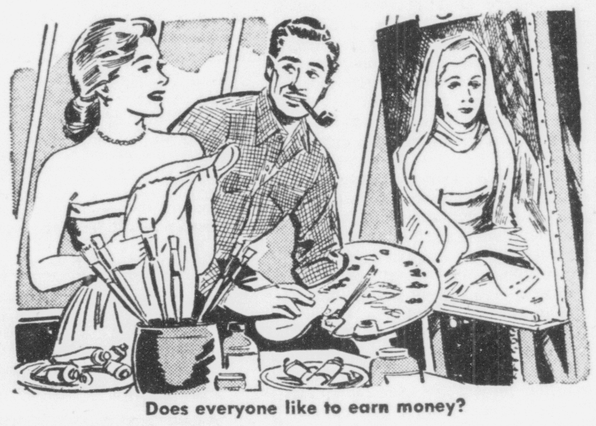
Mary Catherine Steckman's Dance Studio will present a routine; movies will be shown and group singing will be led by A. Florian Wilson.

Impersonators of Father Time and the New Year will distribute a treat to the children. All Odd Fellows and friends with their families are invited. Refreshments will be served.

"DE-BARKING" SURGERY SAVES DOGS—Reduced to silent adoration by an operation that made them "barkless," Joe and Honey, two spaniels, affectionately indicate their gratitude to their master, Lloyd Sagon. He saved their lives when a San Francisco judge ordered them destroyed after neighbors had complained that the howling dogs kept them awake.

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist



Does everyone like to earn money?

Answer: Nearly everyone likes to get money, but there are a lot of people who dislike being obliged to earn it so intensely that they prefer living in relative poverty. I have known artists and scholars who would rather starve than think of their work from the standpoint of its "market value," and many a woman who has earned a good salary is happier finding "someone to support her," even though she may work harder and have less than she did when she was single. To face the fact that your life depends upon the value which society attaches to it takes more courage and real independence than these people ever achieve.

There are three kinds of totem poles: the personal pole; one to commemorate some great event, and a kind of tombstone.

Do hallucinations prove a person insane?

Answer: They show that he has lost contact with reality at one point, but not always completely or permanently. All of us experience hallucinations (see and hear things which don't really exist) in our dreams, but recognize that they were unreal when we wake up. Most hallucinations embody the fulfillment of some overwhelming need or desire, as when bereaved persons "see" the loved one whom they cannot accept having lost. But phenomena of this sort generally don't last long. A person who continually hears voices or sees things and people which are unreal to everyone else is in a condition which requires psychiatric treatment.

Does it matter who gives mental tests?

Answer: Very much, writes Edith Lord of the University of Southern California, in Psychological Monographs. Administrators who gave Rohrschach tests to a number of sophomores were asked to adopt different attitudes—neutral, friendly and unfriendly. "Subjects who were coldly received tended to misunderstand and made errors in following directions. Subjects warmly greeted did not misunderstand, request repetition or make errors in following directions." More than half the measurable difference between students' responses to the tests were traceable to a difference in the examiners, and the same was true of variations in performance.

American Expert Suggests Planned Family Check For Burgeoning India

By SELIG S. HARRISON

NEW DELHI—(AP)—An American expert thinks government-sponsored family planning measures could bring "substantial results" in checking India's population growth rate within a decade.

Dr. Abraham Stone, vice-president of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, returned from a month's tour of India under Indian government auspices with reports of "keen interest" in the family planning.

"Everywhere I went people in all walks of life appeared intensely aware of the need for limiting the size of the family," he said in an interview.

"Even village women are now eager for information. And they have reason to be. I have seen many girls of 26 with as many as eight or even more living children."

En route to the United States, Dr. Stone will spend 10 days in Ceylon at the request of the Ceylon government. After reaching the U. S. early January he will submit a formal report on his Indian trip to the World Health Organization.

The Indian government's National Council of Medical Research already has accepted a major recommendation Dr. Stone will include in his report. The council set up a new committee to study the "medical and technical aspects of human reproduction."

For the long run Dr. Stone outlined a three-point program:

1. Mass education under government direction to arouse full consciousness of the need for family planning.

2. Establishment of family planning clinics "everywhere where there is an obstetrical or gynecological department in a hospital, and in conjunction with every maternity and child welfare station."

3. Research by the new committee of the government's Council of Medical Research to discover new methods of controlling family size which are "inexpensive and simple enough for use on a mass scale."

Dr. Stone praised the "progressive attitude" of the Indian government toward family planning. No other government has yet approached the WHO for family planning advice.

The opposition of the late Mahatma Gandhi to birth control achieved through any means but self-control has marred general acceptance of Indian family planning movements in the past. Prime Minister Nehru, however, has been one of the outspoken proponents of family planning.

India's 1951 census showed a population of 356,891,624, minus disputed Kashmir. On the basis of fertility and death rate statistics, Census Chief R. A. Gopalaswami estimated that the figure jumps at a 9,744 rate every 24 hours. The increase since 1941 was 42,061,576. By the most conservative projection, India's population unchecked would reach 442,000,000 by 1991.

Rec Director Job Still Open

The Cumberland Recreation Board has delayed the selection of a recreation director pending the interviews of three more applicants.

C. Van Roby, chairman of the board, said yesterday two applicants have been interviewed, with others scheduled after the first of the year.

For the time being, the recreation program is being conducted by Ray Hull and Charles Bryce, teachers at Fort Hill High School.

These two men are supervising the basketball leagues which were set up by Edmund F. Hoey, city recreation director who resigned effective December 31 to take a position in Baltimore county.

Other activities of the department are being held up pending the selection of a recreation director. Roby said all candidates will be screened thoroughly before the name is presented to the Mayor and Council.

The names for applicants were forwarded by the National Recreation Board.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 26. (INS)—The biggest money maker of 1951 for Darryl Zanuck was "David and Bathsheba" starring Susan Hayward and Gregory Peck. So what could be more natural than for Darryl to reunite his "Lucky Stars" in the one picture he will personally produce in 1952, "The Snows of Kilimanjaro?"

The "David and Bathsheba" movie was more Greg's than Susan's—but wait until you see her as Jane Frohman in "A Song in My Heart." Not only is Darryl doing raves but all the New York bosses are strong for the redhead.

Henry King will direct and the picture goes into production January 14, shortly after the Zanucks return from the holidays in Sun Valley.

On Jan. 8 there will be a big try made to get the Navy to approve the making of "Caine Mutiny" as a motion picture. Herman Wouk, the author, leaves New York, and Stanley Roberts, who scripted the adaptation, leaves Hollywood to meet in Washington. They'll confer with the Navy brass on that day.

The completed script will be submitted for approval and it's hoped that the treatment will be acceptable. In the past the story never really did get to the top men.

If the Navy says okay to proceed, the picture will be put into production on the Columbia lot by Stanley Kramer.

Deanna Durbin writes from Saint Paul, in the south of France, where she is living with her husband, Charles David, her daughter, Jessica, and baby Peter:

"Bless your heart, Louella, you have always been as nice to me as you could considering my hectic life and career. Now you say you'd like to hear something of the truth about my plans.

"They've handed out more misinformation to the few fans I have left than would fill a volume about the fat I've been putting on, or the cruel dieting my husband puts me through, or the fights we are having in public, or the recordings I have sent to MGM trying to get a contract. All wild inventions

!"Since I left Hollywood I've had time to relax, travel, get married and have Peter. I take care of Peter exclusively if for no other reason than I've never enjoyed anything so much. This may not advance me professionally, but it certainly keeps my voice in training. Peter loves lullabies. My parents are coming over next spring, and we plan to return to the U. S. A. with them. Until then, fondly, Deanna."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Bob Arthur's parents are here from Aberdeen, Washington, to spend the holiday season with him and to meet his best irl friend, Wanda Hendrix. Yes, this is a serious romance.

There was a lot of talk that Moira Shearer was on the MGM lot and that perhaps it was to do "Invitation to a Dance" with Gene Kelly. When I asked Arthur Freed he said, "It's a good idea. We wish it were true, but apparently she was confused with another ballet dancer who may do the picture."

Jeanette Briggs writes to say that her reconciliation with Mike Mazurki failed. Sorry to hear it.

Jane Meadows, who is the daughter of an Episcopal minister, recently read the Declaration of Independence of the State of Israel to 10,000 people, backed by 20 cantors. The ambassador from Israel complimented Jane by saying he had seldom heard this declaration read in a more moving manner.

Are John Payne and Lina Romay getting serious? They are seeing a lot of each other.

Ruth Roman at the very last minute was allowed to take that trip to New York with her husband, Mortimer Hall. She suffered a chipped elbow bone a few weeks ago and at first the doctor said no.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

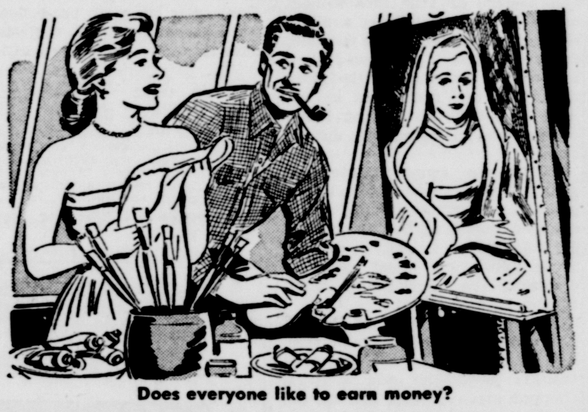
Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist



Does everyone like to earn money?

Answer: Nearly everyone likes to get money, but there are a lot of people who dislike being obliged to earn it so intensely that they prefer living in relative poverty. I have known artists and scholars who would rather starve than think of their work from the standpoint of its "market value," and many a woman who has earned a good salary is happier finding "someone to support her," even though she may work harder and have less than she did when she was single. To face the fact that your life depends upon the value which society attaches to it takes more courage and real independence than these people ever achieve.

There are three kinds of totem poles: the personal pole; one to commemorate some great event, and a kind of tombstone.

Do hallucinations prove a person insane?

Answer: They show that he has lost contact with reality at one point, but not always completely or permanently. All of us experience hallucinations (see and hear things which don't really exist) in our dreams, but recognize that they were unreal when we wake up. Most hallucinations embody the fulfillment of some overwhelming need or desire, as when bereaved persons "see" the loved one whom they cannot accept having lost. But phenomena of this sort generally don't last long. A person who continually hears voices or sees things and people which are unreal to everyone else is in a condition which reouires psychiatric treatment.

Does it matter who gives mental tests?

Answer: Very much, writes Edith Lord of the University of Southern California, in Psychological Monographs. Administrators who gave Rohrschach tests to a number of sophomores were asked to adopt different attitudes—neutral, friendly and unfriendly. "Subjects who were coldly received tended to misunderstand and made errors in following directions. Subjects warmly greeted did not misunderstand, request repetition or make errors in following directions." More than half the measurable difference between students' responses to the tests were traceable to a difference in the examiners, and the same was true of variations in performance.

Bill Lee Named 4th Player Of Year; Alumni Tops AHS

First Lineman To Win Annual K Of C Award

Brehany Presents Guard With Watch; Others Get Sweaters

Bill Lee, versatile all-city, all-county and all-state guard from Fort Hill High School, last night was presented with an engraved gold wrist watch by Cumberland Council No. 586, Knights of Columbus as the city's Player of the Year for 1951.

The handsome gift was bestowed upon the tall football star by Bill Brehany, former Ridgeley High cage and grid luminary who was outstanding as a passer this season in the Southern Conference while playing for Virginia Military Institute.

Sisk Not Present

The presentation took place last night on the stage of the Maryland Theatre at which seven other outstanding athletes from Fort Hill, Allegany and LaSalle also were present. They were the other stars who, throughout the past football season, were named as Players of the Week by the selection committee of the K. of C. Only Ronnie Sisk, quarterback from AHS, was missing. Sisk had to play basketball for the Campers last night against an Alumni team.

Other players were Richard Beard, Leonard White, and Dave Ritter of Fort Hill, Ray Brown and Bobby Arnone of LaSalle, and Joe Hager and Gene Horton of Allegany. All were presented with white coat sweaters symbolic of their selection as Players of the Week. The letters of the boy's schools were on the fronts of the sweaters while those going to youths selected more than once had a star or stars placed on the sleeves. These indicated the number of times the gridder was picked as an outstanding player.

Dick Beard and Ronnie Sisk were the only players to receive the award more than once, Beard being named three times during the season and Sisk twice.

The sweaters were given to the boys by Joe Love, grand knight of the council.

Brehany gave a short talk before making the presentation after J. Suter Kegg, chairman of the selections committee, had announced the winner. The VMI star was the second former winner of a K. of C. sweater to return to Cumberland for the presentations. Tommy Powers, former AHS football great and a graduate of Duke University made the presentation last year.

First Lineman To Win

Lee, a senior, is the first lineman to receive the coveted award. He played his second year as a varsity member during Fort Hill's championship season. Although selected only once as a Player of the Week during the season, he was runner-up on no less than six other occasions and his outstanding play in the forward wall was very instrumental in helping Fort Hill compile its great 8-1 record.

The 17-year-old guard, who lives on Valley Road, thus became the third Fort Hill player to receive the Yearly honor in the four seasons since the program was inaugurated. Lynn Beightol, now in his freshman year at the University of Maryland, twice won in 1949 and 1950. Earl "Lefty" Bruce of Allegany, who entered Ohio State University copped the first award in 1948. Both Bruce and Beightol were backs.

Peter J. Carpenti was master of ceremonies at the affair.

Saul Rogovin Top Hurler In Junior Loop

White Sox Tosser Has 2.78 ERA

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO, Dec. 26 (AP)—American League today acclaimed its first "big six" pitching crop of 20-game winners in 29 years and heralded a "sleeper" as 1951's most efficient moundsman.

Official statistics for last season certified husky Saul Rogovin of the Chicago White Sox, a 12-game winner, as the earned run champion with a sparkling 2.78 average.

Rogovin, 28, a right-hander, was the "find" of Pale Hose pilot Paul Richards, who obtained him early in the season from the Detroit Tigers as a "sore-armed" plodder.

Allowed Only 67 Runs

The 205-pound Brooklyn native responded with the sharpest pitching in the major leagues. His ERA, coming as he allowed only 67 untainted tallies in 217 innings, topped the 2.88 with which Boston Braves' rookie Chester Nichods led the National League. Rogovin lost eight games.

Not since 1922 had the American loop produced as many as six 20-game winners in a single season.

The winningest 1951 pitcher was Cleveland's Bob Feller with 22-8.

Rounding out the select six were Eddie Lopat and Vic Raschi of the champion New York Yankees with 21-9 and 21-10 respectively; Cleveland's Early Wynn and Mike Garcia, each with 20-13; and Ned Garver of the lowly St. Louis Browns with 20-12.

The 20-game winner sextet of three decades ago included Ed Rommel, Philadelphia, 27; Joe Bush, New York, 26; Urgan Shocker, St. Louis, 24; George Uhle, Cleveland, 22, Red Faber, Chicago, 21; and Bob Shawkey, New York, 20.

Lopat, the only left-hander in the big six, also was runner-up in the earned run department with a 2.91 average, the only other tosser to finish under the three-run level. Under a new rule, 154 or more innings were required for ERA reckoning.

Cleveland, which folded at the finish despite its 20-game trio, led the team earned run average for the fourth straight year with 3.38. Chicago was second with 3.50 and New York third with 3.56.

Raschi Strikeout King

Raschi was the strike-out king, Whiffing 164.

Wynn, a 20-game winner for the first time in his career, was the season's work-horse, twirling the most innings, 274, and facing the most matters, 1,008.

Garver, 26-year-old super trade bait of the Browns, completed the most games, 24, while Boston's Ellis Kinder appeared in most, 63.

Lemon yielded most hits, 244, and most runs, 199. The league's most generous twirler was Tommy Byrne, New York-St. Louis, who issued 150 bases on balls and plunked most batsmen, 15.

New York's Allie Reynolds, who fired two no-hitters in a 17-8 record, led in shutouts with seven. Feller and Washington's Dick Starr served the most home-run pitchers, 22 each.. Feller notched the season's one other no-hitter.

One Fatality Recorded In Pro Boxing In 1951

Protective Measures Are Aiding Fighters

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26 (AP)—The National Boxing Association said today there was only one death in professional boxing in 1951, against three the previous years.

In the year end statement citing protective measures to make the sport safer, the NBA said that during 1951 24,365 contestants took part in pro bouts in the United States.

Welterweight Gerge Flores of New York was the lone fatality. He died in September after a bout with Roger Donoghue.

In the amateur classification, the NBA said, there were four fatalities in 1951. No deaths occurred in intercollegiate boxing.

The NBA pointed out that there were no deaths under the jurisdictions of the more than 100 commissions affiliated with the NBA.

One of the major safety measures was the eight second compulsory count, the association said. Under this regulation a contestant floored by his opponent must take the count of eight.

"The purpose is to keep a man from being struck when he arises by animal instinct with impaired reflexes," the association explained. "It also gives the referee a better chance to judge as to the need for halting the bout."

Other protective measures include recommended long layoffs of boxers who suffer "violent" kayos or too many knockouts. Compulsory NBA-wide retirement is usually recommended for fighters, the NBA said, if they decline into that category.

The association said careful matchmaking is constantly being emphasized with particular stress on the principle that there is "no need for any match unless the outcome of it is in doubt."

Don Barksdale Is Reinstated

Pro Cager Is Back With Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Dec. 26—(AP)—Don Barksdale, high-salaried professional rookie, was reinstated today by the Baltimore Bullets of the National Basketball Association with both sides keeping mum on what happened.

Barksdale's "indefinite suspension" was announced by the Bullets Monday. Neither he nor the Bullets said why. It was rumored that he broke training rules.

However, the Bullets' disappointment over his play had been reported prior to the suspension. They induced him to play professional basketball with a contract of $17,000 annually for two years. He was averaged only 10.2 points in 22 games.

His reinstatement followed a conference with Bullet officials. A brief announcement afterward said it was on terms satisfactory to both.

This was interpreted to mean in some quarters that Barksdale had agreed to take less money.

All-College Tourney Gets Underway Today

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 26 (AP)—The All-College basketball tournament opens tomorrow with the Oklahoma Aggies a slight favorite to retain their title.

The opening day's schedule finds Tulsa and Alabama meeting in the first game of the afternoon session with Oklahoma City University and Tulane following. The night session features second seeded Wyoming meeting Idaho and the Aggies playing San Francisco. The finals are Saturday.

LEE PRESENTED WATCH—Bill Brehany (left), star passer for Virginia Military Instiute and a former Player of the Week nominee while playing for Ridgeley High School, presents Bill Lee, Fort Hill guard, with a gold wrist watch after the latter was named Player of the Year for his outstanding work for the champion Fort Hill Sentinels. Brehany was guest speaker for the affair which took place on the stage of the Maryland Theatre last night. Lee was named Player of the Week once and runnerup on six other occasions. He was the first lineman to be named since the award was begun four years ago by Cumberland Council No. 586, Knights of Columbus.

SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 26--There are no sure bets at a race track and there just about as few in any other sport.

That is why we have so many new champions crowned every year.

It takes a good individual or a good team to retain even a sectional title. It takes a far better one to win a national one and usually a truly great one to win a world title.

Competition is so fierce and so wide-spread these days that only the brightest stars can shine for more than one season.

And yet, while no individual title holder is a sure bet to repeat in the coming year, there are a few who seem fairly certain to finish on top again, always barring, of course, illness or accident.

The "safest" bet in baseball would appear to be Stan Musial, the mighty Cardinal slugger, to lead the National League in hitting. That has become almost a habit with him and since he shows no signs of slipping and since no new marvel is immediately visible on the horizon we figure him to repeat.

Ferris Fain of the Athletics who led the AL this year is no part of a cinch to repeat next year. In fact, he probably will have to continue to improve to stay ahead of Orestes Minosos and Ted Williams.

Neither the Yanks nor the Giants are "safe" bets. You will recall that almost everybody said the Dodgers were "sure things" to win this year but you will also recall what happened.

Counterpoint was justly acclaimed as the horse of the year but the chances are all against him repeating. New stars are always coming along and one of them may displace him just as he displaced Hill Prince.

There never is a sure bet in boxing, no matter what the odds may be, and not always because the winner is the better man.

The only apparently safe champion is Sandy Saddler, the featherweight king, because he happens to have no competition in his division.

Jersey Joe Walcott may be beaten by Ezzard Charles; Joe Maxim could blow his title to one of two or three rivals; Ray Robinson is well past his peak and, while he seems fairly safe, he might slip enough to blow his middleweight bauble.

Kid Gavilan is by no means certain to win and hold the welter title and Jimmy Carter, the lightweight boss, also will be lucky to move through the year unbeaten.

Probably the safest of all champions is Willie Hoppe, the ancient wizard of the billiard cue, who goes on an on, year after year, meeting and beating the best the world has to offer.

Tennis is wide open. Frank Sedgman, the Aussie who holds our national crown, may have trouble repeating if he doesn't turn pro. And young Maureen Connolly might lose her diadem.

Golf is the greatest gamble of them all and while Ben Hogan is considered the finest golfer in the world, he will be a long way from a cinch to repeat his victories in the National Open and the Masters.

And always, as a constant hazard to a champion, is that thing called luck. It can sometimes stop the best.

Sugar Ray Robinson Named "Fighter Of Year" By Ring

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. (AP)—For the second time in three years, middleweight champion Ray Robinson has been named "Fighter Of The Year" by Ring Magazine.

Editor Nat Fleischer selected Sugar Ray over heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott for his fine overall record through 1951; the lift he gave to the sport; and for his sportsmanship and contributions to the public welfare.

At the same time, Fleischer named Harry Matthews, sensational Seattle light heavyweight contender, as the world's best all-around fighter of the year.

The awards and Ring's annual ratings were announced in a copyrighted article in the February issue of Ring.

Robinson was selected for the same honor for the 1949 campaign and last year he was awarded the Edward J. Neil Memorial plaque as boxer of the year by the Boxing WRITERS ASSOCIATION. This year Walcott was picked by the boxing writers who never have voted anyone their trophy more than once.

Matthews was selected by Fleischer for "his cleverness, hitting power, ring generalship and triumphs over all opponents regardless of weight."

In listing his champions and contenders, Fleischer left the welterweight title vacant. He named Kid Gavilan of Cuba as the American champion and Charles Humez of France as the European king. Fleischer said a Gavilan-Humez fight must be held before a world champion can be named.

For the first time since he hit the big time, Joe Louis was not listed either first or second among the heavyweights. Fleischer ranked him as the fifth contender behind Charles, Rocky Marciano, Clarence Henry and Roland LaStarza.

KEYSER, W. Va., Dec. 26—Keyser dropped its first game of the season yesterday, a 41-38 overtime loss to an Alumni aggregation.

Montgomery scored the winning points for the Gras after the regulation contest ended in a 38-38 tie. He also paced the winners with 11 points. Leary was high man for Keyser with 17 tallies.

U. S. Pins Cup Hopes On Doubles Team

Americans, Aussies Tied After Singles

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 27 (INS)—The United States, tied 1-1 with Australia but already loser of the "big" singles match, pinned its Davis Cup hopes today on an underdog doubles team.

On the outcome of today's match between Ted Schroeder and Tony Trabert of the U. S. and Australia's Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor probably hangs America's chance of winning back the coveted international tennis trophy.

Vic Seixas of Philadelphia topped Australia lefty Mervyn Rose in singles yesterday, 6-3, 6-4, 9-7. But Schroeder, the 30-year-old La Crescenta, Calif., "money player," went down to defeat at the hands of Sedgman, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

Tomorrow, the Cup matches wind up with two more singles events, with yesterday's players switching opponents. Schroeder is figured a likely winner over Rose, but Seixas will be playing the same Sedgman who ripped through him in straight sets to take the U. S. championship last summer.

Thus, if the singles go according to form, each country will have won two points, and the decision will be dictated by the outcome of the doubles.

Trabert, 20-year-old Navy trainee from Cincinnati, was impressive as he teamed with Schroeder to win the doubles during the recent interzone finals between the U. S. and Sweden, but Sedgman and McGregor are the world's doubles champions, and stood firmly favored today to defeat the U. S. pair.

IBC Jumps Cut For Matthews

Kid May Meet Maxim For Title Feb. 22

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (AP)—Harry (Kid) Matthews can have his long sought title bout with light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim on Feb. 22 but he'll have to act fast.

Al Weill, matchmaker for the International Boxing Club, said today he jumped his offer to Matthews from 15 per cent to 20 per cent in a long distance telephone conversation with the Seattle sensation's manager, Jack Hurley.

"Hurley told me he'd let me know by Friday," said Weill. "I told him that if he doesn't agree to the fight by the end of the week, he's liable to lose his chance. Jack Kearns (Maxim's manager) is getting impatient. He's got some other propositions on the fire, including the possibility of a June title fight with middleweight champion Ray Robinson."

The IBC hasn't settled the site but would like to put on the bout either in New York or San Francisco. Hurley wants the fight staged in Boise, Idaho.

Lookabaugh's Foul Goals Edge Varsity

Sinks Two Singletons In Final 20 Seconds For 41-40 Victory

Two foul goals in the final 20 seconds of play by Bob Lookabaugh gave an Alumni aggregation a thrilling 41-40 decision over a fighting Allegany High basketball team last night on the Campobello floor.

It was the first loss for the Campers in two starts this season and marked the second straight year the Grads had dumped the varsity cagers. In fact it made three wins in the past four years for the Alumni quint.

The schoolboy five trailed all through the game until about four minutes before the final whistle when Junior Eversole dumped home a field goal to knot the figures at 35-35. Ronnie Sisk, Eversole and Dave Steele then proceeded to convert foul chances to give the Campers a temporary 38-35 edge.

Lookabaugh and Eversole traded fielders before Frank Phares connected with a hook shot from the corner for the Grads to bring them within one point at 40-39. Lookabaugh then sank two singletons when fouled beneath the basket in the final 20 seconds of play.

The Campers had one more chance at the basket but their shot rolled off the rim and the Alumni took possession the remainder of the game.

Coach Bill Spangler used 11 players for the Alumni with all but one scoring. Blaine Morton, Fairmont College star, paced the victors with 10 points, followed closely by Lookabaugh with seven.

Eversole topped all scorers with 16 tallies on five goals and six of seven fouls. Sisk had 10 markers for the losers who trailed 10-5, 22-12 and 30-27 at the quarters. The lineups:

Bill Lee Named 4th Player Of Year; Alumni Tops AHS

First Lineman To Win Annual K Of C Award

Brehany Presents Guard With Watch; Others Get Sweaters

Bill Lee, versatile all-city, all-county and all-state guard from Fort Hill High School, last night was presented with an engraved gold wrist watch by Cumberland Council No. 586, Knights of Columbus as the city's Player of the Year for 1951.

The handsome gift was bestowed upon the tall football star by Bill Brehany, former Ridgeley High cage and grid luminary who was outstanding as a passer this season in the Southern Conference while playing for Virginia Military Institute.

Sisk Not Present

The presentation took place last night on the stage of the Maryland Theatre at which seven other outstanding athletes from Fort Hill, Allegany and LaSalle also were present. They were the other stars who, throughout the past football season, were named as Players of the Week by the selection committee of the K. of C. Only Ronnie Sisk, quarterback from AHS, was missing. Sisk had to play basketball for the Campers last night against an Alumni team.

Other players were Richard Beard, Leonard White, and Dave Ritter of Fort Hill, Ray Brown and Bobby Arnone of LaSalle, and Joe Hager and Gene Horton of Allegany. All were presented with white coat sweaters symbolic of their selection as Players of the Week. The letters of the boy's schools were on the fronts of the sweaters while those going to youths selected more than once had a star or stars placed on the sleeves. These indicated the number of times the gridder was picked as an outstanding player.

Dick Beard and Ronnie Sisk were the only players to receive the award more than once, Beard being named three times during the season and Sisk twice.

The sweaters were given to the boys by Joe Love, grand knight of the council.

Brehany gave a short talk before making the presentation after J. Suter Kegg, chairman of the selections committee, had announced the winner. The VMI star was the second former winner of a K. of C. sweater to return to Cumberland for the presentations. Tommy Powers, former AHS football great and a graduate of Duke University made the presentation last year.

First Lineman To Win

Lee, a senior, is the first lineman to receive the coveted award. He played his second year as a varsity member during Fort Hill's championship season. Although selected only once as a Player of the Week during the season, he was runner-up on no less than six other occasions and his outstanding play in the forward wall was very instrumental in helping Fort Hill compile its great 8-1 record.

The 17-year-old guard, who lives on Valley Road, thus became the third Fort Hill player to receive the Yearly honor in the four seasons since the program was inaugurated. Lynn Beightol, now in his freshman year at the University of Maryland, twice won in 1949 and 1950. Earl "Lefty" Bruce of Allegany, who entered Ohio State University copped the first award in 1948. Both Bruce and Beightol were backs.

Peter J. Carpenti was master of ceremonies at the affair.

Saul Rogovin Top Hurler In Junior Loop

White Sox Tosser Has 2.78 ERA

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO, Dec. 26 (AP)—American League today acclaimed its first "big six" pitching crop of 20-game winners in 29 years and heralded a "sleeper" as 1951's most efficient moundsman.

Official statistics for last season certified husky Saul Rogovin of the Chicago White Sox, a 12-game winner, as the earned run champion with a sparkling 2.78 average.

Rogovin, 28, a right-hander, was the "find" of Pale Hose pilot Paul Richards, who obtained him early in the season from the Detroit Tigers as a "sore-armed" plodder.

Allowed Only 67 Runs

The 205-pound Brooklyn native responded with the sharpest pitching in the major leagues. His ERA, coming as he allowed only 67 untainted tallies in 217 innings, topped the 2.88 with which Boston Braves' rookie Chester Nichods led the National League. Rogovin lost eight games.

Not since 1922 had the American loop produced as many as six 20-game winners in a single season.

The winningest 1951 pitcher was Cleveland's Bob Feller with 22-8.

Rounding out the select six were Eddie Lopat and Vic Raschi of the champion New York Yankees with 21-9 and 21-10 respectively; Cleveland's Early Wynn and Mike Garcia, each with 20-13; and Ned Garver of the lowly St. Louis Browns with 20-12.

The 20-game winner sextet of three decades ago included Ed Rommel, Philadelphia, 27; Joe Bush, New York, 26; Urgan Shocker, St. Louis, 24; George Uhle, Cleveland, 22, Red Faber, Chicago, 21; and Bob Shawkey, New York, 20.

Lopat, the only left-hander in the big six, also was runner-up in the earned run department with a 2.91 average, the only other tosser to finish under the three-run level. Under a new rule, 154 or more innings were required for ERA reckoning.

Cleveland, which folded at the finish despite its 20-game trio, led the team earned run average for the fourth straight year with 3.38. Chicago was second with 3.50 and New York third with 3.56.

Raschi Strikeout King

Raschi was the strike-out king, Whiffing 164.

Wynn, a 20-game winner for the first time in his career, was the season's work-horse, twirling the most innings, 274, and facing the most matters, 1,008.

Garver, 26-year-old super trade bait of the Browns, completed the most games, 24, while Boston's Ellis Kinder appeared in most, 63.

Lemon yielded most hits, 244, and most runs, 199. The league's most generous twirler was Tommy Byrne, New York-St. Louis, who issued 150 bases on balls and plunked most batsmen, 15.

New York's Allie Reynolds, who fired two no-hitters in a 17-8 record, led in shutouts with seven. Feller and Washington's Dick Starr served the most home-run pitchers, 22 each.. Feller notched the season's one other no-hitter.

One Fatality Recorded In Pro Boxing In 1951

Protective Measures Are Aiding Fighters

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26 (AP)—The National Boxing Association said today there was only one death in professional boxing in 1951, against three the previous years.

In the year end statement citing protective measures to make the sport safer, the NBA said that during 1951 24,365 contestants took part in pro bouts in the United States.

Welterweight Gerge Flores of New York was the lone fatality. He died in September after a bout with Roger Donoghue.

In the amateur classification, the NBA said, there were four fatalities in 1951. No deaths occurred in intercollegiate boxing.

The NBA pointed out that there were no deaths under the jurisdictions of the more than 100 commissions affiliated with the NBA.

One of the major safety measures was the eight second compulsory count, the association said. Under this regulation a contestant floored by his opponent must take the count of eight.

"The purpose is to keep a man from being struck when he arises by animal instinct with impaired reflexes," the association explained. "It also gives the referee a better chance to judge as to the need for halting the bout."

Other protective measures include recommended long layoffs of boxers who suffer "violent" kayos or too many knockouts. Compulsory NBA-wide retirement is usually recommended for fighters, the NBA said, if they decline into that category.

The association said careful matchmaking is constantly being emphasized with particular stress on the principle that there is "no need for any match unless the outcome of it is in doubt."

Don Barksdale Is Reinstated

Pro Cager Is Back With Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Dec. 26—(AP)—Don Barksdale, high-salaried professional rookie, was reinstated today by the Baltimore Bullets of the National Basketball Association with both sides keeping mum on what happened.

Barksdale's "indefinite suspension" was announced by the Bullets Monday. Neither he nor the Bullets said why. It was rumored that he broke training rules.

However, the Bullets' disappointment over his play had been reported prior to the suspension. They induced him to play professional basketball with a contract of $17,000 annually for two years. He was averaged only 10.2 points in 22 games.

His reinstatement followed a conference with Bullet officials. A brief announcement afterward said it was on terms satisfactory to both.

This was interpreted to mean in some quarters that Barksdale had agreed to take less money.

SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 26—There are no sure bets at a race track and there just about as few in any other sport.

That is why we have so many new champions crowned every year.

It takes a good individual or a good team to retain even a sectional title. It takes a far better one to win a national one and usually a truly great one to win a world title.

Competition is so fierce and so wide-spread these days that only the brightest stars can shine for more than one season.

And yet, while no individual title holder is a sure bet to repeat in the coming year, there are a few who seem fairly certain to finish on top again, always barring, of course, illness or accident.

The "safest" bet in baseball would appear to be Stan Musial, the mighty Cardinal slugger, to lead the National League in hitting. That has become almost a habit with him and since he shows no signs of slipping and since no new marvel is immediately visible on the horizon we figure him to repeat.

Ferris Fain of the Athletics who led the AL this year is no part of a cinch to repeat next year. In fact, he probably will have to continue to improve to stay ahead of Orestes Minosos and Ted Williams.

Neither the Yanks nor the Giants are "safe" bets. You will recall that almost everybody said the Dodgers were "sure things" to win this year but you will also recall what happened.

Counterpoint was justly acclaimed as the horse of the year but the chances are all against him repeating. New stars are always coming along and one of them may displace him just as he displaced Hill Prince.

There never is a sure bet in boxing, no matter what the odds may be, and not always because the winner is the better man.

The only apparently safe champion is Sandy Saddler, the featherweight king, because he happens to have no competition in his division.

Jersey Joe Walcott may be beaten by Ezzard Charles; Joe Maxim could blow his title to one of two or three rivals; Ray Robinson is well past his peak and, while he seems fairly safe, he might slip enough to blow his middleweight bauble.

Kid Gavilan is by no means certain to win and hold the welter title and Jimmy Carter, the lightweight boss, also will be lucky to move through the year unbeaten.

Probably the safest of all champions is Willie Hoppe, the ancient wizard of the billiard cue, who goes on an on, year after year, meeting and beating the best the world has to offer.

Tennis is wide open. Frank Sedgman, the Aussie who holds our national crown, may have trouble repeating if he doesn't turn pro. And young Maureen Connolly might lose her diadem.

Golf is the greatest gamble of them all and while Ben Hogan is considered the finest golfer in the world, he will be a long way from a cinch to repeat his victories in the National Open and the Masters.

And always, as a constant hazard to a champion, is that thing called luck. It can sometimes stop the best.

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. (AP)—For the second time in three years, middleweight champion Ray Robinson has been named "Fighter Of The Year" by Ring Magazine.

Editor Nat Fleischer selected Sugar Ray over heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott for his fine overall record through 1951; the lift he gave to the sport; and for his sportsmanship and contributions to the public welfare.

At the same time, Fleischer named Harry Matthews, sensational Seattle light heavyweight contender, as the world's best all-around fighter of the year.

The awards and Ring's annual ratings were announced in a copyrighted article in the February issue of Ring.

Robinson was selected for the same honor for the 1949 campaign and last year he was awarded the Edward J. Neil Memorial plaque as boxer of the year by the Boxing WRITERS ASSOCIATION. This year Walcott was picked by the boxing writers who never have voted anyone their trophy more than once.

Matthews was selected by Fleischer for "his cleverness, hitting power, ring generalship and triumphs over all opponents regardless of weight."

In listing his champions and contenders, Fleischer left the welterweight title vacant. He named Kid Gavilan of Cuba as the American champion and Charles Humez of France as the European king. Fleischer said a Gavilan-Humez fight must be held before a world champion can be named.

U. S. Pins Cup Hopes On Doubles Team

Americans, Aussies Tied After Singles

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 27 (INS)—The United States, tied 1-1 with Australia but already loser of the "big" singles match, pinned its Davis Cup hopes today on an underdog doubles team.

On the outcome of today's match between Ted Schroeder and Tony Trabert of the U. S. and Australia's Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor probably hangs America's chance of winning back the coveted international tennis trophy.

Vic Seixas of Philadelphia topped Australia lefty Mervyn Rose in singles yesterday, 6-3, 6-4, 9-7. But Schroeder, the 30-year-old La Crescenta, Calif., "money player," went down to defeat at the hands of Sedgman, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

Tomorrow, the Cup matches wind up with two more singles events, with yesterday's players switching opponents. Schroeder is figured a likely winner over Rose, but Seixas will be playing the same Sedgman who ripped through him in straight sets to take the U. S. championship last summer.

Thus, if the singles go according to form, each country will have won two points, and the decision will be dictated by the outcome of the doubles.

Trabert, 20-year-old Navy trainee from Cincinnati, was impressive as he teamed with Schroeder to win the doubles during the recent interzone finals between the U. S. and Sweden, but Sedgman and McGregor are the world's doubles champions, and stood firmly favored today to defeat the U. S. pair.

IBC Jumps Cut For Matthews

Kid May Meet Maxim For Title Feb. 22

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (AP)—Harry (Kid) Matthews can have his long sought title bout with light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim on Feb. 22 but he'll have to act fast.

Al Weill, matchmaker for the International Boxing Club, said today he jumped his offer to Matthews from 15 per cent to 20 per cent in a long distance telephone conversation with the Seattle sensation's manager, Jack Hurley.

"Hurley told me he'd let me know by Friday," said Weill. "I told him that if he doesn't agree to the fight by the end of the week, he's liable to lose his chance. Jack Kearns (Maxim's manager) is getting impatient. He's got some other propositions on the fire, including the possibility of a June title fight with middleweight champion Ray Robinson."

The IBC hasn't settled the site but would like to put on the bout either in New York or San Francisco. Hurley wants the fight staged in Boise, Idaho.

Lookabaugh's Foul Goals Edge Varsity

Sinks Two Singletons In Final 20 Seconds For 41-40 Victory

Two foul goals in the final 20 seconds of play by Bob Lookabaugh gave an Alumni aggregation a thrilling 41-40 decision over a fighting Allegany High basketball team last night on the Campobello floor.

It was the first loss for the Campers in two starts this season and marked the second straight year the Grads had dumped the varsity cagers. In fact it made three wins in the past four years for the Alumni quint.

The schoolboy five trailed all through the game until about four minutes before the final whistle when Junior Eversole dumped home a field goal to knot the figures at 35-35. Ronnie Sisk, Eversole and Dave Steele then proceeded to convert foul chances to give the Campers a temporary 38-35 edge.

Lookabaugh and Eversole traded fielders before Frank Phares connected with a hook shot from the corner for the Grads to bring them within one point at 40-39. Lookabaugh then sank two singletons when fouled beneath the basket in the final 20 seconds of play.

The Campers had one more chance at the basket but their shot rolled off the rim and the Alumni took possession the remainder of the game.

Coach Bill Spangler used 11 players for the Alumni with all but one scoring. Blaine Morton, Fairmont College star, paced the victors with 10 points, followed closely by Lookabaugh with seven.

Eversole topped all scorers with 16 tallies on five goals and six of seven fouls. Sisk had 10 markers for the losers who trailed 10-5, 22-12 and 30-27 at the quarters. The lineups:

Bill Lee Named 4th Player Of Year; Alumni Tops AHS

First Lineman To Win Annual K Of C Award

Brehany Presents Guard With Watch; Others Get Sweaters

Bill Lee, versatile all-city, all-county and all-state guard from Fort Hill High School, last night was presented with an engraved gold wrist watch by Cumberland Council No. 586, Knights of Columbus as the city's Player of the Year for 1951.

The handsome gift was bestowed upon the tall football star by Bill Brehany, former Ridgeley High cage and grid luminary who was outstanding as a passer this season in the Southern Conference while playing for Virginia Military Institute.

Sisk Not Present

The presentation took place last night on the stage of the Maryland Theatre at which seven other outstanding athletes from Fort Hill, Allegany and LaSalle also were present. They were the other stars who, throughout the past football season, were named as Players of the Week by the selection committee of the K. of C. Only Ronnie Sisk, quarterback from AHS, was missing. Sisk had to play basketball for the Campers last night against an Alumni team.

Other players were Richard Beard, Leonard White, and Dave Ritter of Fort Hill, Ray Brown and Bobby Arnone of LaSalle, and Joe Hager and Gene Horton of Allegany. All were presented with white coat sweaters symbolic of their selection as Players of the Week. The letters of the boy's schools were on the fronts of the sweaters while those going to youths selected more than once had a star or stars placed on the sleeves. These indicated the number of times the gridder was picked as an outstanding player.

Dick Beard and Ronnie Sisk were the only players to receive the award more than once, Beard being named three times during the season and Sisk twice.

The sweaters were given to the boys by Joe Love, grand knight of the council.

Brehany gave a short talk before making the presentation after J. Suter Kegg, chairman of the selections committee, had announced the winner. The VMI star was the second former winner of a K. of C. sweater to return to Cumberland for the presentations. Tommy Powers, former AHS football great and a graduate of Duke University made the presentation last year.

First Lineman To Win

Lee, a senior, is the first lineman to receive the coveted award. He played his second year as a varsity member during Fort Hill's championship season. Although selected only once as a Player of the Week during the season, he was runner-up on no less than six other occasions and his outstanding play in the forward wall was very instrumental in helping Fort Hill compile its great 8-1 record.

The 17-year-old guard, who lives on Valley Road, thus became the third Fort Hill player to receive the Yearly honor in the four seasons since the program was inaugurated. Lynn Beightol, now in his freshman year at the University of Maryland, twice won in 1949 and 1950. Earl "Lefty" Bruce of Allegany, who entered Ohio State University copped the first award in 1948. Both Bruce and Beightol were backs.

Peter J. Carpenti was master of ceremonies at the affair.

Saul Rogovin Top Hurler In Junior Loop

White Sox Tosser Has 2.78 ERA

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO, Dec. 26 (AP)—American League today acclaimed its first "big six" pitching crop of 20-game winners in 29 years and heralded a "sleeper" as 1951's most efficient moundsman.

Official statistics for last season certified husky Saul Rogovin of the Chicago White Sox, a 12-game winner, as the earned run champion with a sparkling 2.78 average.

Rogovin, 28, a right-hander, was the "find" of Pale Hose pilot Paul Richards, who obtained him early in the season from the Detroit Tigers as a "sore-armed" plodder.

Allowed Only 67 Runs

The 205-pound Brooklyn native responded with the sharpest pitching in the major leagues. His ERA, coming as he allowed only 67 untainted tallies in 217 innings, topped the 2.88 with which Boston Braves' rookie Chester Nichods led the National League. Rogovin lost eight games.

Not since 1922 had the American loop produced as many as six 20-game winners in a single season.

The winningest 1951 pitcher was Cleveland's Bob Feller with 22-8.

Rounding out the select six were Eddie Lopat and Vic Raschi of the champion New York Yankees with 21-9 and 21-10 respectively; Cleveland's Early Wynn and Mike Garcia, each with 20-13; and Ned Garver of the lowly St. Louis Browns with 20-12.

The 20-game winner sextet of three decades ago included Ed Rommel, Philadelphia, 27; Joe Bush, New York, 26; Urgan Shocker, St. Louis, 24; George Uhle, Cleveland, 22, Red Faber, Chicago, 21; and Bob Shawkey, New York, 20.

Lopat, the only left-hander in the big six, also was runner-up in the earned run department with a 2.91 average, the only other tosser to finish under the three-run level. Under a new rule, 154 or more innings were required for ERA reckoning.

Cleveland, which folded at the finish despite its 20-game trio, led the team earned run average for the fourth straight year with 3.38. Chicago was second with 3.50 and New York third with 3.56.

Raschi Strikeout King

Raschi was the strike-out king, Whiffing 164.

Wynn, a 20-game winner for the first time in his career, was the season's work-horse, twirling the most innings, 274, and facing the most matters, 1,008.

Garver, 26-year-old super trade bait of the Browns, completed the most games, 24, while Boston's Ellis Kinder appeared in most, 63.

Lemon yielded most hits, 244, and most runs, 199. The league's most generous twirler was Tommy Byrne, New York-St. Louis, who issued 150 bases on balls and plunked most batsmen, 15.

New York's Allie Reynolds, who fired two no-hitters in a 17-8 record, led in shutouts with seven. Feller and Washington's Dick Starr served the most home-run pitchers, 22 each.. Feller notched the season's one other no-hitter.

One Fatality Recorded In Pro Boxing In 1951

Protective Measures Are Aiding Fighters

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26 (AP)—The National Boxing Association said today there was only one death in professional boxing in 1951, against three the previous years.

In the year end statement citing protective measures to make the sport safer, the NBA said that during 1951 24,365 contestants took part in pro bouts in the United States.

Welterweight Gerge Flores of New York was the lone fatality. He died in September after a bout with Roger Donoghue.

In the amateur classification, the NBA said, there were four fatalities in 1951. No deaths occurred in intercollegiate boxing.

The NBA pointed out that there were no deaths under the jurisdictions of the more than 100 commissions affiliated with the NBA.

One of the major safety measures was the eight second compulsory count, the association said. Under this regulation a contestant floored by his opponent must take the count of eight.

"The purpose is to keep a man from being struck when he arises by animal instinct with impaired reflexes," the association explained. "It also gives the referee a better chance to judge as to the need for halting the bout."

Other protective measures include recommended long layoffs of boxers who suffer "violent" kayos or too many knockouts. Compulsory NBA-wide retirement is usually recommended for fighters, the NBA said, if they decline into that category.

The association said careful matchmaking is constantly being emphasized with particular stress on the principle that there is "no need for any match unless the outcome of it is in doubt."

Don Barksdale Is Reinstated

Pro Cager Is Back With Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Dec. 26—(AP)—Don Barksdale, high-salaried professional rookie, was reinstated today by the Baltimore Bullets of the National Basketball Association with both sides keeping mum on what happened.

Barksdale's "indefinite suspension" was announced by the Bullets Monday. Neither he nor the Bullets said why. It was rumored that he broke training rules.

However, the Bullets' disappointment over his play had been reported prior to the suspension. They induced him to play professional basketball with a contract of $17,000 annually for two years. He was averaged only 10.2 points in 22 games.

His reinstatement followed a conference with Bullet officials. A brief announcement afterward said it was on terms satisfactory to both.

This was interpreted to mean in some quarters that Barksdale had agreed to take less money.

Brehany was guest speaker for the affair which took place on the stage of the Maryland Theatre last night. Lee was named Player of the Week once and runnerup on six other occasions. SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 26—There are no sure bets at a race track and there just about as few in any other sport.

That is why we have so many new champions crowned every year.

It takes a good individual or a good team to retain even a sectional title. It takes a far better one to win a national one and usually a truly great one to win a world title.

Competition is so fierce and so wide-spread these days that only the brightest stars can shine for more than one season.

And yet, while no individual title holder is a sure bet to repeat in the coming year, there are a few who seem fairly certain to finish on top again, always barring, of course, illness or accident.

The "safest" bet in baseball would appear to be Stan Musial, the mighty Cardinal slugger, to lead the National League in hitting. That has become almost a habit with him and since he shows no signs of slipping and since no new marvel is immediately visible on the horizon we figure him to repeat.

Ferris Fain of the Athletics who led the AL this year is no part of a cinch to repeat next year. In fact, he probably will have to continue to improve to stay ahead of Orestes Minosos and Ted Williams.

Neither the Yanks nor the Giants are "safe" bets. You will recall that almost everybody said the Dodgers were "sure things" to win this year but you will also recall what happened.

Counterpoint was justly acclaimed as the horse of the year but the chances are all against him repeating. New stars are always coming along and one of them may displace him just as he displaced Hill Prince.

There never is a sure bet in boxing, no matter what the odds may be, and not always because the winner is the better man.

The only apparently safe champion is Sandy Saddler, the featherweight king, because he happens to have no competition in his division.

Jersey Joe Walcott may be beaten by Ezzard Charles; Joe Maxim could blow his title to one of two or three rivals; Ray Robinson is well past his peak and, while he seems fairly safe, he might slip enough to blow his middleweight bauble.

Kid Gavilan is by no means certain to win and hold the welter title and Jimmy Carter, the lightweight boss, also will be lucky to move through the year unbeaten.

Probably the safest of all champions is Willie Hoppe, the ancient wizard of the billiard cue, who goes on an on, year after year, meeting and beating the best the world has to offer.

Tennis is wide open. Frank Sedgman, the Aussie who holds our national crown, may have trouble repeating if he doesn't turn pro. And young Maureen Connolly might lose her diadem.

Golf is the greatest gamble of them all and while Ben Hogan is considered the finest golfer in the world, he will be a long way from a cinch to repeat his victories in the National Open and the Masters.

And always, as a constant hazard to a champion, is that thing called luck. It can sometimes stop the best.

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK, Dec. 26. (AP)—For the second time in three years, middleweight champion Ray Robinson has been named "Fighter Of The Year" by Ring Magazine.

Editor Nat Fleischer selected Sugar Ray over heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott for his fine overall record through 1951; the lift he gave to the sport; and for his sportsmanship and contributions to the public welfare.

At the same time, Fleischer named Harry Matthews, sensational Seattle light heavyweight contender, as the world's best all-around fighter of the year.

The awards and Ring's annual ratings were announced in a copyrighted article in the February issue of Ring.

Robinson was selected for the same honor for the 1949 campaign and last year he was awarded the Edward J. Neil Memorial plaque as boxer of the year by the Boxing WRITERS ASSOCIATION. This year Walcott was picked by the boxing writers who never have voted anyone their trophy more than once.

Matthews was selected by Fleischer for "his cleverness, hitting power, ring generalship and triumphs over all opponents regardless of weight."

In listing his champions and contenders, Fleischer left the welterweight title vacant. He named Kid Gavilan of Cuba as the American champion and Charles Humez of France as the European king. Fleischer said a Gavilan-Humez fight must be held before a world champion can be named.

For the first time since he hit the big time, Joe Louis was not listed either first or second among the heavyweights. Fleischer ranked him as the fifth contender behind Charles, Rocky Marciano, Clarence Henry and Roland LaStarza.

U. S. Pins Cup Hopes On Doubles Team

Americans, Aussies Tied After Singles

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 27 (INS)—The United States, tied 1-1 with Australia but already loser of the "big" singles match, pinned its Davis Cup hopes today on an underdog doubles team.

On the outcome of today's match between Ted Schroeder and Tony Trabert of the U. S. and Australia's Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor probably hangs America's chance of winning back the coveted international tennis trophy.

Vic Seixas of Philadelphia topped Australia lefty Mervyn Rose in singles yesterday, 6-3, 6-4, 9-7. But Schroeder, the 30-year-old La Crescenta, Calif., "money player," went down to defeat at the hands of Sedgman, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

Tomorrow, the Cup matches wind up with two more singles events, with yesterday's players switching opponents. Schroeder is figured a likely winner over Rose, but Seixas will be playing the same Sedgman who ripped through him in straight sets to take the U. S. championship last summer.

Thus, if the singles go according to form, each country will have won two points, and the decision will be dictated by the outcome of the doubles.

Trabert, 20-year-old Navy trainee from Cincinnati, was impressive as he teamed with Schroeder to win the doubles during the recent interzone finals between the U. S. and Sweden, but Sedgman and McGregor are the world's doubles champions, and stood firmly favored today to defeat the U. S. pair.

IBC Jumps Cut For Matthews

Kid May Meet Maxim For Title Feb. 22

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (AP)—Harry (Kid) Matthews can have his long sought title bout with light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim on Feb. 22 but he'll have to act fast.

Al Weill, matchmaker for the International Boxing Club, said today he jumped his offer to Matthews from 15 per cent to 20 per cent in a long distance telephone conversation with the Seattle sensation's manager, Jack Hurley.

"Hurley told me he'd let me know by Friday," said Weill. "I told him that if he doesn't agree to the fight by the end of the week, he's liable to lose his chance. Jack Kearns (Maxim's manager) is getting impatient. He's got some other propositions on the fire, including the possibility of a June title fight with middleweight champion Ray Robinson."

The IBC hasn't settled the site but would like to put on the bout either in New York or San Francisco. Hurley wants the fight staged in Boise, Idaho.

Lookabaugh's Foul Goals Edge Varsity

Sinks Two Singletons In Final 20 Seconds For 41-40 Victory

Two foul goals in the final 20 seconds of play by Bob Lookabaugh gave an Alumni aggregation a thrilling 41-40 decision over a fighting Allegany High basketball team last night on the Campobello floor.

It was the first loss for the Campers in two starts this season and marked the second straight year the Grads had dumped the varsity cagers. In fact it made three wins in the past four years for the Alumni quint.

The schoolboy five trailed all through the game until about four minutes before the final whistle when Junior Eversole dumped home a field goal to knot the figures at 35-35. Ronnie Sisk, Eversole and Dave Steele then proceeded to convert foul chances to give the Campers a temporary 38-35 edge.

Lookabaugh and Eversole traded fielders before Frank Phares connected with a hook shot from the corner for the Grads to bring them within one point at 40-39. Lookabaugh then sank two singletons when fouled beneath the basket in the final 20 seconds of play.

The Campers had one more chance at the basket but their shot rolled off the rim and the Alumni took possession the remainder of the game.

Coach Bill Spangler used 11 players for the Alumni with all but one scoring. Blaine Morton, Fairmont College star, paced the victors with 10 points, followed closely by Lookabaugh with seven.

Eversole topped all scorers with 16 tallies on five goals and six of seven fouls. Sisk had 10 markers for the losers who trailed 10-5, 22-12 and 30-27 at the quarters. The lineups:

Former Coach Dies

ONEIDA, N. Y., Dec. 26—(AP)—Charles W. P. (Pete) Reynolds, former head coach of football at Syracuse University, died today in Oneida City Hospital after a long illness. He was 66.

Reynolds was head coach at Syracuse in 1924 and 1925.

Dixie Tourney Begins Today

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 26 (AP) — The third annual Dixie classic basketball tournament gets under way here tomorrow with Southern California, North Carolina State, Cornell and Duke favored to take opening round wins.

Southern California meets North Carolina at 2 p. m. in the opening game in Reynolds Coliseum.

Defending champion North Carolina State faces unbeaten Navy at 3:30, Cornell tackles Wake Forest at 7:30, and Duke meets Columbia at 9.

Two games will be reeled off each afternoon and night through Saturday night.

State's Wolfpack, beaten twice this season, is favored to grab its third consecutive classic crown. State defeated Penn State, 50-40, in the finals of the 1949 event, and won over Rhode Island State, 85-76, last year.

State must hurdle unbeaten Navy in its opening round game. The Middies, coached by Ben Carnevale, have been a big surprise and boast the best record of any of the tournament teams. They have won five straight.

The Duke-Columbia clash looms as perhaps the best of the opening round matches. Duke, led by All America candidate Dick Groat, is highly regarded despite surprising early season losses to Furman and West Virginia. Columbia's only loss this season was to Pittsburgh.

Seven of the 12 tilts were decided by five or less points with two going into extra periods. One game ended with one point difference, three by two points, one by four and two by five.

St. John's Lutheran brought its season's mark to .500 with its fourth victory in a 35-34 thriller over Grace Baptist in one of the extra stanza encounters. The regulation game ended in a 30-30 deadlock before St. John's emerged victorious.

In the other overtime tilt First Brethren edged Kingsley Methodist 25-23 after the regular game ended 23-23. Duffy, regular guard for Kingsley scored a basket for the opponents to make a winning difference.

The loss by Cresaptown was only the second in eight starts and dropped them out of a four way tie for second place.

Meanwhile the unbeaten Emmanuel Episcopal cagers, under the tutelage of Dr. Thomas Robinson, continued their winning ways with an easy 48-29 win over First Baptist. Potomac Park blasted Mt. Savage 47-21 for Savage's eighth straight loss without a win.

In other games the Maccabees defeated Presbyterian 29-21; Calvary walloped Central Methodist 40-14; and St. Luke's smashed LaVale 50-13.

Dowton's 16 points for First Baptist took scoring honors for the day.

Former Coach Dies

ONEIDA, N. Y., Dec. 26—(AP)—Charles W. P. (Pete) Reynolds, former head coach of football at Syracuse University, died today in Oneida City Hospital after a long illness. He was 66.

Reynolds was head coach at Syracuse in 1924 and 1925.

Dixie Tourney Begins Today

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 26 (AP) — The third annual Dixie classic basketball tournament gets under way here tomorrow with Southern California, North Carolina State, Cornell and Duke favored to take opening round wins.

Southern California meets North Carolina at 2 p. m. in the opening game in Reynolds Coliseum.

Defending champion North Carolina State faces unbeaten Navy at 3:30, Cornell tackles Wake Forest at 7:30, and Duke meets Columbia at 9.

Two games will be reeled off each afternoon and night through Saturday night.

State's Wolfpack, beaten twice this season, is favored to grab its third consecutive classic crown. State defeated Penn State, 50-40, in the finals of the 1949 event, and won over Rhode Island State, 85-76, last year.

State must hurdle unbeaten Navy in its opening round game. The Middies, coached by Ben Carnevale, have been a big surprise and boast the best record of any of the tournament teams. They have won five straight.

The Duke-Columbia clash looms as perhaps the best of the opening round matches. Duke, led by All America candidate Dick Groat, is highly regarded despite surprising early season losses to Furman and West Virginia. Columbia's only loss this season was to Pittsburgh.

Seven of the 12 tilts were decided by five or less points with two going into extra periods. One game ended with one point difference, three by two points, one by four and two by five.

St. John's Lutheran brought its season's mark to .500 with its fourth victory in a 35-34 thriller over Grace Baptist in one of the extra stanza encounters. The regulation game ended in a 30-30 deadlock before St. John's emerged victorious.

In the other overtime tilt First Brethren edged Kingsley Methodist 25-23 after the regular game ended 23-23. Duffy, regular guard for Kingsley scored a basket for the opponents to make a winning difference.

The loss by Cresaptown was only the second in eight starts and dropped them out of a four way tie for second place.

Meanwhile the unbeaten Emmanuel Episcopal cagers, under the tutelage of Dr. Thomas Robinson, continued their winning ways with an easy 48-29 win over First Baptist. Potomac Park blasted Mt. Savage 47-21 for Savage's eighth straight loss without a win.

In other games the Maccabees defeated Presbyterian 29-21; Calvary walloped Central Methodist 40-14; and St. Luke's smashed LaVale 50-13.

Dowton's 16 points for First Baptist took scoring honors for the day.

Former Coach Dies

ONEIDA, N. Y., Dec. 26—(AP)—Charles W. P. (Pete) Reynolds, former head coach of football at Syracuse University, died today in Oneida City Hospital after a long illness. He was 66.

Reynolds was head coach at Syracuse in 1924 and 1925.

Dixie Tourney Begins Today

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 26 (AP) — The third annual Dixie classic basketball tournament gets under way here tomorrow with Southern California, North Carolina State, Cornell and Duke favored to take opening round wins.

Southern California meets North Carolina at 2 p. m. in the opening game in Reynolds Coliseum.

Defending champion North Carolina State faces unbeaten Navy at 3:30, Cornell tackles Wake Forest at 7:30, and Duke meets Columbia at 9.

Two games will be reeled off each afternoon and night through Saturday night.

State's Wolfpack, beaten twice this season, is favored to grab its third consecutive classic crown. State defeated Penn State, 50-40, in the finals of the 1949 event, and won over Rhode Island State, 85-76, last year.

State must hurdle unbeaten Navy in its opening round game. The Middies, coached by Ben Carnevale, have been a big surprise and boast the best record of any of the tournament teams. They have won five straight.

The Duke-Columbia clash looms as perhaps the best of the opening round matches. Duke, led by All America candidate Dick Groat, is highly regarded despite surprising early season losses to Furman and West Virginia. Columbia's only loss this season was to Pittsburgh.

Prisoners Clean Ice From Walks After Girl Falls

3 Keyser Sidewalks Finally Ice-Free

KEYSER, W. Va.—County jail inmates last night began cleaning ice and snow off Armstrong, East and West streets around the Court House after a young woman fell and broke an arm.

Miss Virginia Swick, 18, of 121 North Waters Street, was treated at Potomac Valley Hospital after she slipped on the ice at Armstrong and West streets late yesterday afternoon.

Shortly after, a crew of prisoners from Mineral County Jail began cleaning ice from Armstrong, East and West streets, which had formed an icy horseshoe around the Court House ever since the big snow of December 15.

In the last 11 days, many local residents have voiced strong criticism of the Board of Mineral County Commissioners and of other county officials for not having the snow removed.

Several persons have fallen, but none had reported serious injury until Miss Swick fell yesterday.

Until last night, the walks on the three streets consisted of narrow lanes, with water one or two inches deep in the holes. Three walks leading from each of the streets to the Court House were covered with ice, snow and waters.

Other parts of the city are little better. At least one well-dressed woman ruined a light-colored coat when she fell on water-covered ice at Armstrong and North Main streets Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Johnson, who drove to Washington and Baltimore Monday and Tuesday to visit a son and daughter, said they found clear roadways on Routes 220, 50, and 7. When they returned to Keyser, Johnson had to shovel his way through Third Street to his garage.

A funeral service will be held today at 9:30 a. m. from the residence with Rev. George W. Simpson and Rev. Randall Prince officiating. Interment will be in Rock Hill Cemetery, near Everett, Pa.

Prisoners Clean Ice From Walks After Girl Falls

3 Keyser Sidewalks Finally Ice-Free

KEYSER, W. Va.—County jail inmates last night began cleaning ice and snow off Armstrong, East and West streets around the Court House after a young woman fell and broke an arm.

Miss Virginia Swick, 18, of 121 North Waters Street, was treated at Potomac Valley Hospital after she slipped on the ice at Armstrong and West streets late yesterday afternoon.

Shortly after, a crew of prisoners from Mineral County Jail began cleaning ice from Armstrong, East and West streets, which had formed an icy horseshoe around the Court House ever since the big snow of December 15.

In the last 11 days, many local residents have voiced strong criticism of the Board of Mineral County Commissioners and of other county officials for not having the snow removed.

Several persons have fallen, but none had reported serious injury until Miss Swick fell yesterday.

Until last night, the walks on the three streets consisted of narrow lanes, with water one or two inches deep in the holes. Three walks leading from each of the streets to the Court House were covered with ice, snow and waters.

Other parts of the city are little better. At least one well-dressed woman ruined a light-colored coat when she fell on water-covered ice at Armstrong and North Main streets Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Johnson, who drove to Washington and Baltimore Monday and Tuesday to visit a son and daughter, said they found clear roadways on Routes 220, 50, and 7. When they returned to Keyser, Johnson had to shovel his way through Third Street to his garage.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Voice From The Past

A voice that has been stilled for 15 years is back on the air again. It's an odd, touching, frequently startling experience to hear Will Rogers' twangy slow drawl again, a voice that once rang out from thousands of movie screens and millions of radios.

John Crosby

Radio was a different proposition in those days—a more flexible, highly informal medium, just suited to Rogers' highly informal style of comment, and it's possible that radio is getting back in spirit to those days. Rogers has been labeled the cowboy philosopher, the last word indicating that his material was imperishable. That isn't strictly true-and isn't true of a lot of philosophers—but just the same there was a lot of bone and muscle in Rogers' observations that have stood the test of time.

The most durable of this material has been culled from Rogers' huge collection of broadcasts and boiled down to a series of five minute shows you can hear on ABC 5:55 p.m. EST Tuesdays and Thursdays. You will be surprised and possibly a little depressed to find out how little times have changed. "Congressional investigations," said Rogers way back in 1934, "are for the benefit of the photographers." Today he'd probably say they were for the benefit of television.

Congress, of course, was always his favorite target and his comments have not lost pertinence through the years. "We are all in a lather about lobbying. If a man with no official connection can change a whole conference, it's not him you want to investigate; it's the 'buys' that he influenced. If we have senators and congressmen that can't protect themselves against these evil temptations of lobbyists, we don't need to change our lobby, we need to change our representatives."

I imagine if he were still alive Rogers might be persuaded to repeat of a Democratic administration what he said of a Republican one: "On account of us being a democracy and run by the people, we are the only nation in that world that has to keep a government four years, no matter what it does."

Rogers' wisecracks ranged all over the American scene—from installment plan purchases to the traffic situation—but one subject he harped on again and again it still a favorite of all the comedians—taxes. "Looks like the taxpayers in the United States are the only folks hiring any help nowadays. A private business when it don't do any business don't use anybody, but the less business the public has the more we hire to tend it."

He once laid out a schedule for Congressmen to follow in levying taxes and it is still applicable.

"Monday—Soak the rich.

"Tuesday—Begin hearing from the rich.

"Tuesday afternoon—Decide to give the rich a chance to get richer.

"Wednesday — Tax Wall Street stock sales.

"Thursday—Get word from Wall Street: 'Lay off us or you will get no campaign contributions.'

"Thursday afternoon—Decide 'We are wrong about Wall Street.'

"Friday—Soak the little fellow.

"Saturday morning — Find out there is no little fellow. He has been soaked uptil he is drowned."

"Sunday—Meditate."

Here are a couple of other Rogers' aphorisms that have stood the test of time:

"Russia is a country that is burying their troubles. Your criticism is your epitaph. You simply say your say and then you are through."

"We used to think war couldn't last long because one or both sides had no money. Why, there is no industry under the sun you can get credit as quick for as you can for war."

"Bad moving pictures are not made with premeditated design. It looks to you sometimes like we must have purposely made 'em that way, but honest we don't. A bad picture is an accident—and a good one is a miracle.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

NEXT TO WORST LEAD

IT IS generally accepted that usually the worst suit to lead against a trump contract is the side suit which the dummy had bid. By the same token, the next to worst lead is usually the declarer's side suit. There are definite exceptions to those generalities, but only when the sequence of bids coupled with the leader's holding marks the fact. Opening an ace from either of such suits is likely to be especially helpful to the declarer, promising to establish the rest of the suit, or much of it, for him.

	♠ Q J 9 5 ♥ J 8 7 ♦ None ♣ A K Q 7 4 2
♠ 8 2 ♥ A Q 10 5 4 ♦ A 7 3 ♣ 9 5 3	N W E S	♠ 10 6 3 ♥ K 9 6 ♦ Q 10 9 ♣ J 10 8 6
	♠ A K 7 4 ♥ 3 2 ♦ K J 8 6 5 4 2 ♣ None

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	2 ♣	Pass	2 ♦
Pass	3 ♣	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠

If you had shut your eyes and listened to that bidding, without ever seeing anybody's hand, what would have been your deductions regarding best and worst opening leads? Wouldn't you say that a club figured to be the worst, enabling the declarer to get that suit mobilized to discard losers from the South hand? And wouldn't you venture that a diamond was probably the next worst lead, helping South to establish his side suit? If you then looked at West's hand, wouldn't you say the diamond A seemed to be as bad a lead as you could figure out, as it threatened to build up South's suit, which was marked by the bidding as longer than his spades?

With a 4-4 spade fit clearly advertised, you would banish the thought of a trump lead to cut down ruffs indicated by the apparent cross-ruff bidding, since North's rebid of clubs indicated such a dangerous suit that South might merely want to clear trumps and then use clubs for discards. That should have guided you to opening your heart A. If West had made that lead, his side could have taken at least two tricks.

West, however, chose the diamond A. It was ruffed by the spade 5, the club A and K brought two heart discards, the spade Q was scored, the spade 9 led to the A, diamond K laid down, diamond 4 ruffed by the spade J, heart 7 ruffed by the spade 7, spade K used to clear trumps, and established diamonds completed an unbid grand slam.

What would you consider the soundest opening bid on this deal?

During the Berlin blockade, between June 25, 1948, and Sept. 30, 1949, the Military Air Transport Service flew 2,325,509 tons of food and fuel into the former German capital.

Voice From The Past

A voice that has been stilled for 15 years is back on the air again. It's an odd, touching, frequently startling experience to hear Will Rogers' twangy slow drawl again, a voice that once rang out from thousands of movie screens and millions of radios.

John Crosby

Radio was a different proposition in those days—a more flexible, highly informal medium, just suited to Rogers' highly informal style of comment, and it's possible that radio is getting back in spirit to those days. Rogers has been labeled the cowboy philosopher, the last word indicating that his material was imperishable. That isn't strictly true-and isn't true of a lot of philosophers—but just the same there was a lot of bone and muscle in Rogers' observations that have stood the test of time.

The most durable of this material has been culled from Rogers' huge collection of broadcasts and boiled down to a series of five minute shows you can hear on ABC 5:55 p.m. EST Tuesdays and Thursdays. You will be surprised and possibly a little depressed to find out how little times have changed. "Congressional investigations," said Rogers way back in 1934, "are for the benefit of the photographers." Today he'd probably say they were for the benefit of television.

Congress, of course, was always his favorite target and his comments have not lost pertinence through the years. "We are all in a lather about lobbying. If a man with no official connection can change a whole conference, it's not him you want to investigate; it's the 'buys' that he influenced. If we have senators and congressmen that can't protect themselves against these evil temptations of lobbyists, we don't need to change our lobby, we need to change our representatives."

I imagine if he were still alive Rogers might be persuaded to repeat of a Democratic administration what he said of a Republican one: "On account of us being a democracy and run by the people, we are the only nation in that world that has to keep a government four years, no matter what it does."

Rogers' wisecracks ranged all over the American scene—from installment plan purchases to the traffic situation—but one subject he harped on again and again it still a favorite of all the comedians—taxes. "Looks like the taxpayers in the United States are the only folks hiring any help nowadays. A private business when it don't do any business don't use anybody, but the less business the public has the more we hire to tend it."

He once laid out a schedule for Congressmen to follow in levying taxes and it is still applicable.

"Monday—Soak the rich.

"Tuesday—Begin hearing from the rich.

"Tuesday afternoon—Decide to give the rich a chance to get richer.

"Wednesday — Tax Wall Street stock sales.

"Thursday—Get word from Wall Street: 'Lay off us or you will get no campaign contributions.'

"Thursday afternoon—Decide 'We are wrong about Wall Street.'

"Friday—Soak the little fellow.

"Saturday morning — Find out there is no little fellow. He has been soaked uptil he is drowned."

"Sunday—Meditate."

Here are a couple of other Rogers' aphorisms that have stood the test of time:

"Russia is a country that is burying their troubles. Your criticism is your epitaph. You simply say your say and then you are through."

"We used to think war couldn't last long because one or both sides had no money. Why, there is no industry under the sun you can get credit as quick for as you can for war."

"Bad moving pictures are not made with premeditated design. It looks to you sometimes like we must have purposely made 'em that way, but honest we don't. A bad picture is an accident—and a good one is a miracle.

NEXT TO WORST LEAD

IT IS generally accepted that usually the worst suit to lead against a trump contract is the side suit which the dummy had bid. By the same token, the next to worst lead is usually the declarer's side suit. There are definite exceptions to those generalities, but only when the sequence of bids coupled with the leader's holding marks the fact. Opening an ace from either of such suits is likely to be especially helpful to the declarer, promising to establish the rest of the suit, or much of it, for him.

	♠ Q J 9 5 ♥ J 8 7 ♦ None ♣ A K Q 7 4 2
♠ 8 2 ♥ A Q 10 5 4 ♦ A 7 3 ♣ 9 5 3	N W E S	♠ 10 6 3 ♥ K 9 6 ♦ Q 10 9 6 ♣ J 10 8
	♠ A K 7 4 ♥ 3 2 ♦ K J 8 6 5 4 2 ♣ None

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	2 ♣	Pass	2 ♦
Pass	3 ♣	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠

If you had shut your eyes and listened to that bidding, without ever seeing anybody's hand, what would have been your deductions regarding best and worst opening leads? Wouldn't you say that a club figured to be the worst, enabling the declarer to get that suit mobilized to discard losers from the South hand? And wouldn't you venture that a diamond was probably the next worst lead, helping South to establish his side suit? If you then looked at West's hand, wouldn't you say the diamond A seemed to be as bad a lead as you could figure out, as it threatened to build up South's suit, which was marked by the bidding as longer than his spades?

With a 4-4 spade fit clearly advertised, you would banish the thought of a trump lead to cut down ruffs indicated by the apparent cross-ruff bidding, since North's rebid of clubs indicated such a dangerous suit that South might merely want to clear trumps and then use clubs for discards. That should have guided you to opening your heart A. If West had made that lead, his side could have taken at least two tricks.

West, however, chose the diamond A. It was ruffed by the spade 5, the club A and K brought two heart discards, the spade Q was scored, the spade 9 led to the A, diamond K laid down, diamond 4 ruffed by the spade J, heart 7 ruffed by the spade 7, spade K used to clear trumps, and established diamonds completed an unbid grand slam.

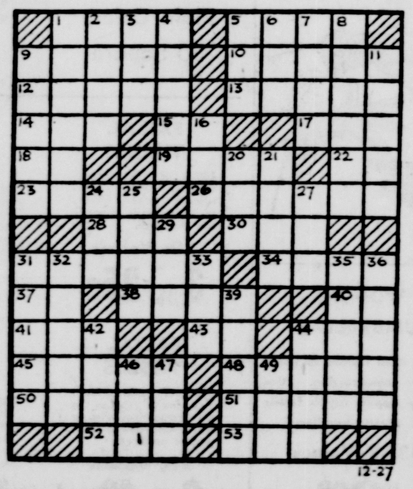
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X B
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

L AGIIF IA DSIJBSD ULEM I'MV EM DSLD ARGGMF EP MPMC ZRDS DMLVC—GIWBAMGGIZ.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: AND THEREFORE LITTLE SHALL I GRACE MY CAUSE, IN SPEAKING FOR MYSELF—SHAKESPEARE.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear father, Charles E. Fisher, who passed away December 26, 1950.
What is home without a father,
Of one so dearly loved by all,
But when we lost you,
We lost our all.
A wonderful father,
One who was better, God never made
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million—that Father was you.
Sadly missed by
Wife, Sons & Daughters

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear father, Charles E. Fisher, who passed away December 26, 1950.
What is home without a father,
Of one so dearly loved by all,
But when we lost you,
We lost our all.
A wonderful father,
One who was better, God never made
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million—that Father was you.
Sadly missed by
Wife, Sons & Daughters

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear father, Charles E. Fisher, who passed away December 26, 1950.
What is home without a father,
Of one so dearly loved by all,
But when we lost you,
We lost our all.
A wonderful father,
One who was better, God never made
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million—that Father was you.
Sadly missed by
Wife, Sons & Daughters

Chicago Board Of Trade

CICAGO, Dec. 26. (AP)—Those who were bullishly inclined toward grains, particularly corn and oats, managed to get some cheer out of the midwestern weather today. Prices advanced on the Board of Trade, and the weather was the main reason.

A heavy coating of snow lies on the ground in Illinois and states to the west and north. The official forecast was for falling temperatures. Together, the snow and cold added up to reduced marketings of grains and livestock, plus heavier feeding on farms. Closing futures:

WHEAT: March 2.60⅞-¾, May 2.58¾-¼, July 2.49⅜-½, September 2.50¼.

CORN: March 1.94¼-94, May 1.94-93⅞, July 1.93⅜-¾, September 1.90.

OATS: March 96, May 94¼-⅜, July 90½-¾, September 89⅛.

CHICAGO—Love didn't creep up on famed tenor Lauritz Melchior. It virtually fell on him! He was attending a garden party in Munich when a pretty blonde plummeted out of the skies in a parachute and landed smack into his heart.

This meeting, which would tax even the imagination of a comic strip writer, seems not at all strange to pert Maria Hacker Melchior, because she was starring in a film which called for her to bail out of an airplane. Where she landed was the wind's, not the script writer's, doings.

That was 27 years ago and, romantically speaking, she landed right side up with care.

It also landed ner eventually in one of the biggest jobs in the music world—managing her six-foot four-inch husband. However, Kleinschen, or "Little One," as her husband calls her, seemed perfectly capable of handling the task when we spied her backstage at the Chicago theater where the tenor was currently wowing them in a five-a day engagement.

• • •

WITH HER captivating accent she admitted she played the multiple role of wife, business manager, dresser, secretary and general jill-of-all-trades.

She lays out all his clothes before each performance, gives him an alcohol rub afterwards, greets the fans, and acts as a bulkhead against the storm of salesmen who seek to sell him everything from "original Rembrandts" to ties that glow in the dark.

This assignment is all the more awe-inspiring when you consider that she was the pampered daughter of a wealthy Munich merchant. Graduated from a convent, she went to dramatic school and then signed a film contract.

She met Melchior when he was a voice student in her home town and an innocent bystander at the aforementioned garden party.

Marriage for the Melchiors began with "watching our pfennigs," Maria remembers, "in a small rented, unfurnished apartment in Hamburg where Lauritz had signed with the state opera company.

"All we had at first were two mattresses. However, we both loved antiques and one day after we had saved some money, I learned that a lovely old house in our street was selling its furnishings and sent him to buy a bedroom suite."

• • •

"WHEN HE came home I asked him excitedly if he had bought it. He showed me a pair of rare old Chinese vases. He—I could have murdered him then—had spent all our money for them."

The marriage weathered the shock, but the vases now are in the hands of the Russians.

After world renown was won by the Melchior voice, the couple, Danish citizens, went to live in a fine old castle, 65 miles east of Berlin, set in its own park.

When they finally returned to the castle following the war they found the Nazis had stripped it of its priceless furnishings. Today, it is occupied by a Soviet forestry army.

However, they are not mourning a lost castle for, as American citizens, they adore their ranch home in Beverly Hills, Cal., where they hie between engagements.

Just to show you how they feel about that ranch home and the pool, Kleinschen has figured they spent more than $16,000 with the airlines last year to catch a midnight plane and breakfast beside their pool whenever they have a few free days.

How does she feel about submerging her film career for his? Quite candidly she'll tell you: "I feel I'm a very lucky woman to have a good husband with a career he will let me share."

Lauritz Melchoir and "Kleinschen." They've been married 27 years.

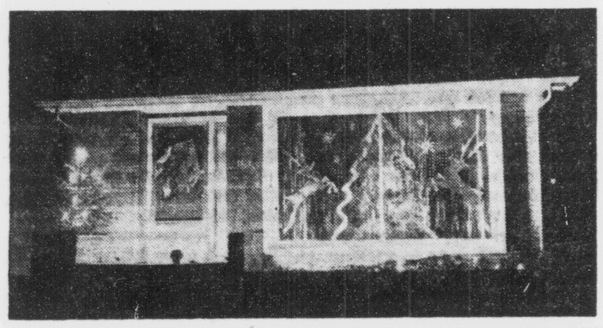
Picture Windows Effective In Yuletide Home Lighting

Competition is expected to be keen this year in the community-wide Christmas lighting contest here for homes and apartments being sponsored by the Junior Association of Commerce.

Many entries have been received at its Liberty Trust Office, according to H. Jack Price, chairman and other residents are expected to send in a response prior to the close of the contest on December 27.



Cash awards and merchandise prizes for winners will be more attractive than ever, Price added. Assisting him in completing plans for the annual competition are Miles Amick and Richard Schwab.

The above picture is an indication as to what can be accomplished in homes with huge front windows. Basis for the scene were paper cut-outs and a lighted live tree. Bright gold foil is suggested in the making of the prancing reindeer. Bands of gold paper emphasize the outline of the live tree.

A string of outdoor Christmas lights can also be used and entwined in green boughs underneath the picture window. Floodlights, properly placed outside the home, also bring out the full effect of the display.

The contest, Price added, is open to all residents of the city and the surrouning greater Cumberland area. Purpose of the contest is to spread the spirit of Christmas by means of decoration and lighting.

AMONG the stars competing in the Bolivarian Games at Caracas, Venezuela, is this attractive miss, Andreina Pietra, holder of the Venezuelan tennis championship for the last three years. She won the North-South Carolina title in 1951. (International)

JUNIE McMAHON, 39-year-old veteran bowler now from Fairlawn, N. J., is the national All-Star bowling titlist again, winning his crown in competition in Chicago. McMahon won the All-Star event in 1949. (International)

Chicago Board Of Trade

CICAGO, Dec. 26. (AP)—Those who were bullishly inclined toward grains, particularly corn and oats, managed to get some cheer out of the midwestern weather today. Prices advanced on the Board of Trade, and the weather was the main reason.

A heavy coating of snow lies on the ground in Illinois and states to the west and north. The official forecast was for falling temperatures. Together, the snow and cold added up to reduced marketings of grains and livestock, plus heavier feeding on farms. Closing futures:

AIRPLANE WINGS PROVED CUPID'S FOR HAPPY, CONTENT MELCHIORS

By LUCIA PERRIGO
Central Press Correspondent

CHICAGO—Love didn't creep up on famed tenor Lauritz Melchior. It virtually fell on him! He was attending a garden party in Munich when a pretty blonde plummeted out of the skies in a parachute and landed smack into his heart.

This meeting, which would tax even the imagination of a comic strip writer, seems not at all strange to pert Maria Hacker Melchior, because she was starring in a film which called for her to bail out of an airplane. Where she landed was the wind's, not the script writer's, doings.

That was 27 years ago and, romantically speaking, she landed right side up with care.

It also landed her eventually in one of the biggest jobs in the music world—managing her six-foot four-inch husband. However, Kleinschen, or "Little One," as her husband calls her, seemed perfectly capable of handling the task when we spied her backstage at the Chicago theater where the tenor was currently wowing them in a five-a day engagement.

• • •

WITH HER captivating accent she admitted she played the multiple role of wife, business manager, dresser, secretary and general jill-of-all-trades.

She lays out all his clothes before each performance, gives him an alcohol rub afterwards, greets the fans, and acts as a bulkhead against the storm of salesmen who seek to sell him everything from "original Rembrandts" to ties that glow in the dark.

This assignment is all the more awe-inspiring when you consider that she was the pampered daughter of a wealthy Munich merchant. Graduated from a convent, she went to dramatic school and then signed a film contract.

She met Melchior when he was a voice student in her home town and an innocent bystander at the aforementioned garden party.

Marriage for the Melchiors began with "watching our pfennigs," Maria remembers, "in a small rented, unfurnished apartment in Hamburg where Lauritz had signed with the state opera company.

"All we had at first were two mattresses. However, we both loved antiques and one day after we had saved some money, I learned that a lovely old house in our street was selling its furnishings and sent him to buy a bedroom suite."

• • •

"WHEN HE came home I asked him excitedly if he had bought it. He showed me a pair of rare old Chinese vases. He—I could have murdered him then—had spent all our money for them."

The marriage weathered the shock, but the vases now are in the hands of the Russians.

After world renown was won by the Melchior voice, the couple, Danish citizens, went to live in a fine old castle, 65 miles east of Berlin, set in its own park.

When they finally returned to the castle following the war they found the Nazis had stripped it of its priceless furnishings. Today, it is occupied by a Soviet forestry army.

However, they are not mourning a lost castle for, as American citizens, they adore their ranch home in Beverly Hills, Cal., where they hie between engagements.

Just to show you how they feel about that ranch home and the pool, Kleinschen has figured they spent more than $16,000 with the airlines last year to catch a midnight plane and breakfast beside their pool whenever they have a few free days.

How does she feel about submerging her film career for his? Quite candidly she'll tell you: "I feel I'm a very lucky woman to have a good husband with a career he will let me share."

Lauritz Melchoir and "Kleinschen." They've been married 27 years.

International Seasoning

From all over the world come the spices and herbs that go into the convenient condensed soups that grace your table. The delicious piquant flavors of these soups owe much of their charm to seasonings from afar. Among ingredients regularly used in the various soups are aromatic peppers from the Malabar Coast of India, cayenne pepper from East Africa, thyme and sweet marjoram from France.

Picture Windows Effective In Yuletide Home Lighting

Competition is expected to be keen this year in the community-wide Christmas lighting contest here for homes and apartments being sponsored by the Junior Association of Commerce.

Many entries have been received at its Liberty Trust Office, according to H. Jack Price, chairman and other residents are expected to send in a response prior to the close of the contest on December 27.

Cash awards and merchandise prizes for winners will be more attractive than ever, Price added. Assisting him in completing plans for the annual competition are Miles Amick and Richard Schwab.

The above picture is an indication as to what can be accomplished in homes with huge front windows. Basis for the scene were paper cutouts and a lighted live tree. Bright gold foil is suggested in the making of the prancing reindeer. Bands of gold paper emphasize the outline of the live tree.

A string of outdoor Christmas lights can also be used and entwined in green boughs underneath the picture window. Floodlights, properly placed outside the home, also bring out the full effect of the display.

The contest, Price added, is open to all residents of the city and the surrounding greater Cumberland area. Purpose of the contest is to spread the spirit of Christmas by means of decoration and lighting.

AMONG the stars competing in the Bolivarian Games at Caracas, Venezuela, is this attractive miss, Andreina Pietra, holder of the Venezuelan tennis championship for the last three years. She won the North-South Carolina title in 1951. (International)

JUNIE McMAHON, 39-year-old veteran bowler now from Fairlawn, N. J., is the national All-Star bowling titlist again, winning his crown in competition in Chicago. McMahon won the All-Star event in 1949. (International)

Picture Windows Effective In Yuletide Home Lighting

Competition is expected to be keen this year in the community-wide Christmas lighting contest here for homes and apartments being sponsored by the Junior Association of Commerce.

Many entries have been received at its Liberty Trust Office, according to H. Jack Price, chairman and other residents are expected to send in a response prior to the close of the contest on December 27.

Cash awards and merchandise prizes for winners will be more attractive than ever, Price added. Assisting him in completing plans for the annual competition are Miles Amick and Richard Schwab.

The above picture is an indication as to what can be accomplished in homes with huge front windows. Basis for the scene were paper cut-outs and a lighted live tree. Bright gold foil is suggested in the making of the prancing reindeer. Bands of gold paper emphasize the outline of the live tree.

A string of outdoor Christmas lights can also be used and entwined in green boughs underneath the picture window. Floodlights, properly placed outside the home, also bring out the full effect of the display.

The contest, Price added, is open to all residents of the city and the surrouning greater Cumberland area. Purpose of the contest is to spread the spirit of Christmas by means of decoration and lighting.

AMONG the stars competing in the Bolivarian Games at Caracas, Venezuela, is this attractive miss, Andreina Pietra, holder of the Venezuelan tennis championship for the last three years. She won the North-South Carolina title in 1951. (International)

JUNIE McMAHON, 39-year-old veteran bowler now from Fairlawn, N. J., is the national All-Star bowling titlist again, winning his crown in competition in Chicago. McMahon won the All-Star event in 1949. (International)

Chicago Board Of Trade

CICAGO, Dec. 26. (AP)—Those who were bullishly inclined toward grains, particularly corn and oats, managed to get some cheer out of the midwestern weather today. Prices advanced on the Board of Trade, and the weather was the main reason.

A heavy coating of snow lies on the ground in Illinois and states to the west and north. The official forecast was for falling temperatures. Together, the snow and cold added up to reduced marketings of grains and livestock, plus heavier feeding on farms. Closing futures:

AIRPLANE WINGS PROVED CUPID'S FOR HAPPY, CONTENT MELCHIORS

By LUCIA PERRIGO
Central Press Correspondent

CHICAGO—Love didn't creep up on famed tenor Lauritz Melchior. It virtually fell on him! He was attending a garden party in Munich when a pretty blonde plummeted out of the skies in a parachute and landed smack into his heart.

This meeting, which would tax even the imagination of a comic strip writer, seems not at all strange to pert Maria Hacker Melchior, because she was starring in a film which called for her to bail out of an airplane. Where she landed was the wind's, not the script writer's, doings.

That was 27 years ago and, romantically speaking, she landed right side up with care.

It also landed her eventually in one of the biggest jobs in the music world—managing her six-foot four-inch husband. However, Kleinschen, or "Little One," as her husband calls her, seemed perfectly capable of handling the task when we spied her backstage at the Chicago theater where the tenor was currently wowing them in a five-a day engagement.

* * *

WITH HER captivating accent she admitted she played the multiple role of wife, business manager, dresser, secretary and general jill-of-all-trades.

She lays out all his clothes before each performance, gives him an alcohol rub afterwards, greets the fans, and acts as a bulkhead against the storm of salesmen who seek to sell him everything from "original Rembrandts" to ties that glow in the dark.

This assignment is all the more awe-inspiring when you consider that she was the pampered daughter of a wealthy Munich merchant. Graduated from a convent, she went to dramatic school and then signed a film contract.

She met Melchior when he was a voice student in her home town and an innocent bystander at the aforementioned garden party.

Marriage for the Melchiors began with "watching our pfennigs," Maria remembers, "in a small rented, unfurnished apartment in Hamburg where Lauritz had signed with the state opera company.

"All we had at first were two mattresses. However, we both loved antiques and one day after we had saved some money, I learned that a lovely old house in our street was selling its furnishings and sent him to buy a bedroom suite."

* * *

"WHEN HE came home I asked him excitedly if he had bought it. He showed me a pair of rare old Chinese vases. He—I could have murdered him then—had spent all our money for them."

The marriage weathered the shock, but the vases now are in the hands of the Russians.

After world renown was won by the Melchior voice, the couple, Danish citizens, went to live in a fine old castle, 65 miles east of Berlin, set in its own park.

When they finally returned to the castle following the war they found the Nazis had stripped it of its priceless furnishings. Today, it is occupied by a Soviet forestry army.

However, they are not mourning a lost castle for, as American citizens, they adore their ranch home in Beverly Hills, Cal., where they hie between engagements.

Just to show you how they feel about that ranch home and the pool, Kleinschen has figured they spent more than $16,000 with the airlines last year to catch a midnight plane and breakfast beside their pool whenever they have a few free days.

How does she feel about submerging her film career for his? Quite candidly she'll tell you: "I feel I'm a very lucky woman to have a good husband with a career he will let me share."

Lauritz Melchoir and "Kleinschen." They've been married 27 years.

Rep. Beall Calls For Economy Clean Government, Low Taxes

Reports On First Session Of 82nd Congress

Reporting on the first session of the 82nd Congress, J. Glenn Beall, this city and Frostburg, representative to Congress from the Sixth Maryland District, addressed the Cumberland Lions Club at their noonday luncheon yesterday in Central YMCA.

Non-politcial in nature, his report calls for sensible government economy, lower taxes, and the enactment of more stringent laws to prevent the spread of socialism and graft.

The full text of the report follows:

"The record for the first session of the 82nd Congress is now written.

"As it stands today it will probably be known as the most investigating Congress in history. And it has the doubtful honor of also being the most spending Congress in history.

"In the first eight months of this last session there were 130 investigations. And it' must be admitted that not one of these probes so far has produced a law.

(Editor's Note—The new federal tax and license law imposed on professional gamblers last month came as a rider on a tax bill. It was not sponsored by the Senate crime investigators.)

"It is the proper function of Congress to investigate in order that laws may be passed to correct any wrong conditions existing in our country. But what has happened?

"The crime investigation—the so-called Kefauver investigations — brought recommendations for the enactment of 23 laws—but nothing has come of those.

"Other investigations are continuing and from what has been brought out concerning crime tie-ups with high political figures . . . RFC investigations of pay-offs in various forms for loans . . . the revelations of the chicanery which seems to be going on in the Internal Revenue Department . . . the recent McCarran report on Communist infiltration into our foreign policy through the International Pacific group . . . to name a few, it seems to me that these investigations have been long overdue.

"But will anything in the way of laws to correct these conditions come out of these investigations?

Remedies Doubtful

"If we judge from what has happened in this first session of the 82nd Congress, it is doubtful.

"The President has made but one move in that direction when he stated he would recommend that the collectors of Internal Revenue be placed under Civil Service. We shall see what happens to that recommendation when the second session of this 82nd Congress convenes next year.

"I need not tell you how taxes have risen. On September 23, 1950, Congress increased Federal taxes by over six billion dollars a year.

"On January 3, 1950, Federal taxes were increased by four billion dollars a year. This last tax increase added another six billion dollars, making a total of sixteen billion dollars of new taxes levied on the people in the the last 14 months.

Truman Not Satisfied

"Yet, this did not satisfy the President's demands.

"Chairman Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee stated that we had reached the bottom of the barrel in taxation when he presented the House with the last tax bill.

"In the Senate, Chairman George, of the Senate Appropriations Committee, stated the same thing and added that this was the last tax bill he would present to that body.

"We are told we must bear all this taxation in order to halt inflation and to protect our free way of life.

Must Have Defense

"All of us realize we must have the best defense that we possibly can have. But excessive taxation will not halt inflation nor can we carry on business as usual with unnecessary government spending in other fields at this time.

"We have a $100 billion dollar budget this year with no relief in sight.

"Let us not fool ourselves. It is no longer possible to place this country on a pay-as-you-go basis because Congress has lost control of the power to determine the amount of Federal expenditures through the arbitrary demands for money by the executive departments.

Two Basic Policies

"Right now, we may as well recognize that we are in a battle between two basic policies.

"They are . . . shall we continue to spend ourselves into bankruptcy and tax our people into poverty . . . or shall we reduce government spending and preserve the principles of our great Republic?

"Shall we yield to further socialization or shall we hold fast to freedom and progress?

"Do we defy Communism abroad but lose our liberties at home?

"In this time of national stress, it would seem logical that the executive department would try to economize . . . to put aside all spending projects which could be deferred.

"Instead, Congress was presented with every Fair Deal project ever dreamed up. The Brannan Plan, socialized medicine, socialized Federal education schemes and all the other repudiated Fair Deal measures.

Gave Executive Law

"The President complains that we have inflation because Congress did not give him the full controls he wanted. He failed to point out that Congress gave him a fine control law in September, 1950, a law he said he didn't want or need three months after the Korean War started into which he threw our armed forces without asking Congressional approval.

"Then the law he presented six months after that war started contained not only many of the Fair

State Police Probe Hit-Run Fatality Case

James Long Killed On Oldtown Road

Maryland State Police are investigating hit-and-run accident which occurred early Tuesday night on Oldtown Road resulting in the death of a 52-year-old Baltimore and Ohio railroader.

State Police identified the victim as James Richard "Dude" Long, of 620 Montreal Avenue. The accident happened about 100 yards east of Evitts Creek bridge, while Long was returning from a Christmas dinner with relatives.

Had Many Injuries

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, said Long was pronounced dead on arrival at Memorial Hospital at 7:35 p. m. Death was attributed to shock and intra-abdominal hemorrhage caused by a crushed pelvis.

Long, who had been employed by the railroad as a car repairman helper for 32 years, also suffered a compound fracture of the lower left leg, cuts of the head and body and abrasions. The time of the accident was placed at 6:40 p. m. and Long was found lying in the road by a passing motorist.

Dr. Deming said Long went to the home of his son-in-law, Howard Grimm, Jr., Oldtown Road for dinner. He left the house about 2 p. m. to make another visit, and authorities are checking to ascertain his whereabouts until the time of the mishap.

Trooper John Browning, who investigated, said Long was walking toward Cumberland on the left side of Route 51 when he was hit and knocked to the opposite lane of traffic.

Auto Parts Found

According to Trooper Browning, Long was alive when he reached him at 6:50. Broken parts from an automobile reportedly headed west were found nearby.

Born March 3, 1899, in Cumberland, the victim was a son of the late William and Nancy (McGinnis) Long. He held membership in the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Mary Virginia (Evens) Long; two stepsons, Lloyd F. Kesecker and Clarence Harper, this city; a stepdaughter, Mrs. Dorothy L. Grimm, also of Cumberland; five brothers, William, Ralph and Ernest Long, this city; Benjamin Long, Baltimore, and Harry Long, Saxton, Pa., and three sisters, Mrs. Emma Fleegle, Mrs. Marie True and Miss Rose Long, this city.

Woman Hurt In Bus Mishap Near Keyser

One person was injured early yesterday morning when a Greyhound bus turned over on Route 50 about ten miles west of Keyser, W. Va.

Treated for an injury to her right arm was Ada Harman of Washington, D. C. Other passengers were shaken up and suffered bruises and slight injuries, according to Cpl. O. G. Webley, of the Keyser office of the West Virginia State Police.

The bus, according to Webley, was enroute from St. Louis to Washington and the mishap occurred about 3 a. m.

Aubra V. Hardman, 28, Hyattsville, Md., operator of the bus, said it skidded on a slippery spot on Allegany Front, as the bus was descending the mountain road. Suit Docketed In Dispute Over Truck Ownership

Twigg Says Partner Took Possession

A Cumberland man who said his business partner refused to let him use a truck which he had helped to buy asked Circuit Court yesterday to decide what should be done with the truck.

In an equity suit against Ervin V. Wigfield, RFD 2, Flintstone, Michael S. Twigg, RFD 2, Cumberland, asked the court to order the controversial truck sold and the proceeds split between the two former partners.

Twigg said he and Wigfield had entered into a partnership on March 15, 1950 to buy a $10,900 tractor-trailer truck.

Wigfield made an initial payment of $3,000, and Twigg, $1,000. Later, Twigg said, he made regular payments which brought his total investment to $5,000.

Twigg also declared he drove the truck from the time he and Wigfield bought it, and that Wigfield received all income from operation of the truck, plus Twigg's payments on the purchase price.

But, said Twigg, Wigfield holds title to the truck and has taken possession of it, refusing to let Twigg use it. Twigg also said Wigfield refused to pay him the money he invested. He declared the partnership has ended, but that Twigg still holds all its property and assets.

He asked the court to appoint a receiver to sell the tractor-trailer, divided the proceeds between him and Wigfield, and require Wigfield to account for all income from the beginning of the partnership.

Twigg is represented by Edward J. Ryan.

Equity Suit Filed

A bill of complaint was filed yesterday in Circuit Court by Naomi E. Redinger against Earl R. Redinger.

Charles Carney To Retire As Mt. Savage Postmaster

Thomas Stephens Named Successor

Charles W. Carney, postmaster at Mt. Savage for 18 years, will retire next Monday, his 70th birthday.

On the same day, Thomas E. Stephens, 64-year-old Mt. Savage merchant, will be sworn in as acting postmaster to replace him. Stephens received his appointment recently from President Truman.

Laws governing postal employes make retirement mandatory when a postmaster has reached the age of 70 and has completed 15 years service.

Carney, formerly a cashier in the Cumberland office of a meat firm, was named postmaster at Mt. Savage by the late President in 1934.

Since then, he has headed a staff of three employes—two clerks and a rural carrier—who work in the little third-class office which for some 40 years has occupied the first floor of a frame residence at the upper end of Main Street.

His successor, a native of Mt. Savage, has operated the Stephens grocery and general merchandise store for 28 years. A veteran of World War I, Stephens served in the Army's 11th Infantry Division and is a member of Mt. Savage Post American Legion.

Both Carney and Stephens are members of Mt. Savage Council 1058, Knights of Columbus, and of Chief Justice Taney General Assembly, Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus in Cumberland.

Carney's son, Capt. Charles C. Carney, is stationed in the office of the Adjutant General in Washington. Stephens has one daughter, Mrs. Robert Farrell of Mt. Savage.

Carney said he plans to take a long rest, but will not stay in complete retirement.

Dustfall Report Shows Violation Likely To Drop

Hitchcock Gives November Figures

Dustfall in this city will be cut about in half over last year if results for the next few days continue normal, George M. Hitchcock, smoke abatement engineer, reported yesterday.

Dustfall in Cumberland during November averaged 13.61, Hitchcock reported yesterday.

The results would have been about a ton and a half lower, he asserted, had it not been for a warehouse fire in South End on November 29 which raised dustfall in Jar 12 to 66 tons, instead of the normal 51 tons.

Details from the annual report of the Smoke Abatement Department, which is in the process of preparation, disclosed the 11-month average for this year as 14.38 tons per squire mile.

This is to be compared, he said, to the 1949 average of the same 11 months of 27.41 and 31.05 for the same period last year.

Records made by the department show that in 1949, the first year records were compiled, the city dustfall average was 28.45. This average jumped to 31.24 last year.

The 1951 average is expected to be about 15½ tons, Hitchcock said, which will be a 100 per cent drop in dustfall over last year.

"We know there are still bad spots in the city," Hitchcock said, "and we will keep working on them."

Comparisons made by the Smoke Abatement Office, he added, indicate that Cumberland and Cincinnati are running neck to neck in efforts to lick their air pollution problems.

In 1949, Cincinnati's average was 27.84, with Cumberland at the 28.45 mark and in 1950, Cincinnati had 29.99 as compared to this city's 31.24.

Weather

Residents of Cumberland were chilled yesterday afternoon by a cold December wind. The sun attempted to make the post holiday Wednesday a little more cheery but was stopped by overshadowing clouds. The high recorded yesterday at the official weather station at Constitution Park was 42 and the low 31. At 6 p. m. yesterday the temperature reading was 31 and humidity 68 per cent. Precipitation registered for the day was .01 of an inch. Forecast for today is partly cloudy and colder.

Volunteer City Workers Clear Hospital Lanes

Park Men "De-Ice" 12 Thoroughfares

Street conditions in the Memorial Hospital area are showing the results of the good deeds of Constitution Park personnel.

Residents of the area reported yesterday that the park crew, headed by Robert R. Golden, park superintendent, cleared snow from about a dozen streets in the park section.

Included were ice covered streets near Memorial Hospital and Fort Hill High School, where motorists were having difficulty negotiating the steep grades.

Golden and his crew also cleared streets for several physicians, who were having difficulty in getting to and from their offices.

Since park workers cleared roads in the park early last week, they have had no normal maintenance work and have been able to volunteer their services where most needed.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, announced plans yesterday for cleaning Centre and Mechanic Streets last night.

Police To Aid

The Police Department is cooperating in the work by seeing that cars are cleared off the streets when the work begins.

City bus drivers, who kept vehicles rolling most of yesterday, began to have their troubles again early last night as water which melted during the day began to freeze.

One of the worst spots, drivers said, was Gephart Drive, where cars parked on both sides of the street forced buses to weave past in low gear.

Similar spots existed on a number of streets, they said, slowing up the flow of traffic.

Drivers said they are experiencing a great deal of difficulty from deep holes which have been dug into the ice.

One driver said his bus had been out of commission twice after exhaust pipes had been pinched shut after they were forced against the too high ice. Snow and ice also stopped up the exhausts and temporarily crippled a number of buses.

Protests Conditions

A resident of Mt. Royal Avenue protested the condition of the hill in a letter to the Mayor and Council yesterday, prompting Mayor Thomas S. Post to comment that other cities are "worse off than Cumberland."

The letter of protest came from H. H. McCloskey, 845 Mt. Royal Avenue, who said the street has one of the worst hills in the city and possibly "of all the hills has the least attention paid to it."

After the McCloskey letter was read Mayor Post introduced a copy of a letter from Mrs. Robert Ward, Philadelphia, Pa., in which she described the traffic tieups and conditions there after the recent snow.

"I thought I would bring that to your attention," the Mayor said. "There are others worse off than Cumberland."

McCloskey's letter was filed without further comment.

But later, a check of warehouse records by Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, showed that Mt. Royal had been plowed and cindered last week, she said. The citizen who asked that something be done later called the warehouse and thanked them for a good job, she added.

Ordinance Tabled

The council, on motion of Commissioner William H. Buchholtz, tabled until the next meeting, Wednesday, January 2, an ordinance providing for the closing of the Williams Street railroad crossing.

The ordinance was introduced last week and was to have had its second reading today. The move was asked by the B. and O. to ease its traffic problems and the firm agreed to erect a pedestrian bridge over the tracks.

Back Pay Checks Slated Monday At Kelly Plant

Extra $100,000 To Be Distributed Here

Kelly-Springfield Tire Company workers will receive over $100,000 in back pay with their regular pay checks Monday as a result of WSB approval of a wage boost at the plant.

A plant spokesman said every effort is being made this week to have the back pay checks ready to hand out with regular vouchers.

The Wage Stablization Board approval of the additional six cents negotiated in the pact in September, will mean an average of about $60 for each of the 1,900 hourly paid workers of the local tire plant.

R. C. Burkhart, president of Local 26, Rubber Workers Union (CIO), said official word of the WSB action was received here yesterday.

According to the ruling, seven cents of the 13 cents negotiated in the pact is retroactive to September 10, the date the contract was signed, and the other six cents is retroactive to October 16.

Plans for closing of the plant on New Year's day were announced yesterday.

The Kelly plant will close Monday at 11 p. m., except for a skeleton maintenance crew. Production will be resumed at 7 a. m. Wednesday, January 2.

Area Residents Warned Against "Spanish Swindle" Letters

The old "Spanish Swindle" has again been tried in Cumberland, according to R. M. Johnson post office inspector here.

Johnson said several people in Cumberland have received the flowery letters sent by swindlers from foreign countries and have turned them over to the local post office for transmission to the Post Office Department, Inspection Service, Washington, D. C.

The "Spanish Swindle", Johnson explained, is operated by people in foreign countries who usually write to persons in the United States in an effort to induce them, through offer of a reward, to come to the foreign country with a sum of money.

The swindler explains in his letter that this money is to be used in securing the release of certain papers which can be negotiated for a large fortune, alleged to be concealed in the bottom of a trunk in a custom house somewhere in the United States.

If the recipient of the letter complies with the instructions of the swindler, who usually represents that he is in prison for bankruptcy, special instructions are received for making the trip to the foreign country. If the addressee goes as directed, he is promptly relieved of his funds by trickery or violence, Johnson said.

Fraud orders are issued by the Postmaster General against the various names used by these swindlers as soon as they are brought to the attention of the Post Office Department. Johnson said an effort is being made to punish in the courts of the United States those responsible for the swindle.

Johnson urges all citizens in this area to watch for these letters. If any person should receive a letter of this kind, he should turn it in to the local postmaster.

Johnson stated that the "Spanish Swindle" is being "worked" more and more recently and has been increasing in the past few months. Recently most of the swindle letters have been coming into the United States from Mexico, Johnson added.

Rep. Beall Calls For Economy Clean Government, Low Taxes

Reports On First Session Of 82nd Congress

Reporting on the first session of the 82nd Congress, J. Glenn Beall, this city and Frostburg, representative to Congress from the Sixth Maryland District, addressed the Cumberland Lions Club at their noonday luncheon yesterday in Central YMCA.

Non-politcial in nature, his report calls for sensible government economy, lower taxes, and the enactment of more stringent laws to prevent the spread of socialism and graft.

The full text of the report follows:

"The record for the first session of the 82nd Congress is now written.

"As it stands today it will probably be known as the most investigating Congress in history. And it has the doubtful honor of also being the most spending Congress in history.

"In the first eight months of this last session there were 130 investigations. And it must be admitted that not one of these probes so far has produced a law.

(Editor's Note—The new federal tax and license law imposed on professional gamblers last month came as a rider on a tax bill. It was not sponsored by the Senate crime investigators.)

"It is the proper function of Congress to investigate in order that laws may be passed to correct any wrong conditions existing in our country. But what has happened?

"The crime investigation—the so-called Kefauver investigations — brought recommendations for the enactment of 23 laws—but nothing has come of those.

"Other investigations are continuing and from what has been brought out concerning crime tie-ups with high political figures . . . RFC investigations of pay-offs in various forms for loans . . . the revelations of the chicanery which seems to be going on in the Internal Revenue Department . . . the recent McCarran report on Communist infiltration into our foreign policy through the International Pacific group . . . to name a few, it seems to me that these investigations have been long overdue.

"But will anything in the way of laws to correct these conditions come out of these investigations?

Remedies Doubtful

"If we judge from what has happened in this first session of the 82nd Congress, it is doubtful.

"The President has made but one move in that direction when he stated he would recommend that the collectors of Internal Revenue be placed under Civil Service. We shall see what happens to that recommendation when the second session of this 82nd Congress convenes next year.

"I need not tell you how taxes have risen. On September 23, 1950, Congress increased Federal taxes by over six billion dollars a year.

"On January 3, 1950, Federal taxes were increased by four billion dollars a year. This last tax increase added another six billion dollars, making a total of sixteen billion dollars of new taxes levied on the people in the last 14 months.

Truman Not Satisfied

"Yet, this did not satisfy the President's demands.

"Chairman Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee stated that we had reached the bottom of the barrel in taxation when he presented the House with the last tax bill.

"In the Senate, Chairman George, of the Senate Appropriations Committee, stated the same thing and added that this was the last tax bill he would present to that body.

"We are told we must bear all this taxation in order to halt inflation and to protect our free way of life.

Must Have Defense

"All of us realize we must have the best defense that we possibly can have. But excessive taxation will not halt inflation nor can we carry on business as usual with unnecessary government spending in other fields at this time.

"We have a $100 billion dollar budget this year with no relief in sight.

"Let us not fool ourselves. It is no longer possible to place this country on a pay-as-you-go basis because Congress has lost control of the power to determine the amount of Federal expenditures through the arbitrary demands for money by the executive departments.

Two Basic Policies

"Right now, we may as well recognize that we are in a battle between two basic policies.

"They are . . . shall we continue to spend ourselves into bankruptcy and tax our people into poverty . . . or shall we reduce government spending and preserve the principles of our great Republic?

"Shall we yield to further socialization or shall we hold fast to freedom and progress?

"Do we defy Communism abroad but lose our liberties at home?

"In this time of national stress, it would seem logical that the executive department would try to economize . . . to put aside all spending projects which could be deferred.

"Instead, Congress was presented with every Fair Deal project ever dreamed up. The Brannan Plan, socialized medicine, socialized Federal education schemes and all the other repudiated Fair Deal measures.

Gave Executive Law

"The President complains that we have inflation because Congress did not give him the full controls he wanted. He failed to point out that Congress gave him a fine control law in September, 1950, a law he said he didn't want or need three months after the Korean War started into which he threw our armed forces without asking Congressional approval.

"Then the law he presented six months after that war started contained not only many of the Fair

State Police Probe Hit-Run Fatality Case

James Long Killed On Oldtown Road

Maryland State Police are investigating hit-and-run accident which occurred early Tuesday night on Oldtown Road resulting in the death of a 52-year-old Baltimore and Ohio railroader.

State Police identified the victim as James Richard "Dude" Long, of 620 Montreal Avenue. The accident happened about 100 yards east of Evitts Creek bridge, while Long was returning from a Christmas dinner with relatives.

Had Many Injuries

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, said Long was pronounced dead on arrival at Memorial Hospital at 7:35 p. m. Death was attributed to shock and intra-abdominal hemorrhage caused by a crushed pelvis.

Long, who had been employed by the railroad as a car repairman helper for 32 years, also suffered a compound fracture of the lower left leg, cuts of the head and body and abrasions. The time of the accident was placed at 6:40 p. m. and Long was found lying in the road by a passing motorist.

Dr. Deming said Long went to the home of his son-in-law, Howard Grimm, Jr., Oldtown Road for dinner. He left the house about 2 p. m. to make another visit, and authorities are checking to ascertain his whereabouts until the time of the mishap.

Trooper John Browning, who investigated, said Long was walking toward Cumberland on the left side of Route 51 when he was hit and knocked to the opposite lane of traffic.

Auto Parts Found

According to Trooper Browning, Long was alive when he reached him at 6:50. Broken parts from an automobile reportedly headed west were found nearby.

Born March 3, 1899, in Cumberland, the victim was a son of the late William and Nancy (McGinnis) Long. He held membership in the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Mary Virginia (Evens) Long; two stepsons, Lloyd F. Kesecker and Clarence Harper, this city; a stepdaughter, Mrs. Dorothy L. Grimm, also of Cumberland; five brothers, William, Ralph and Ernest Long, this city; Benjamin Long, Baltimore, and Harry Long, Saxton, Pa., and three sisters, Mrs. Emma Fleegle, Mrs. Marie True and Miss Rose Long, this city.

The body will remain at the home for services tomorrow at 2 p. m. with Rev. B. F. Hartman, pastor of Cumberalnd Methodist Circuit, officiating. Burial will be in Mt. Herman Cemetery.

Woman Hurt In Bus Mishap Near Keyser

One person was injured early yesterday morning when a Greyhound bus turned over on Route 50 about ten miles west of Keyser, W. Va.

Treated for an injury to her right arm was Ada Harman of Washington, D. C. Other passengers were shaken up and suffered bruises and slight injuries, according to Cpl. O. G. Webley, of the Keyser office of the West Virginia State Police.

The bus, according to Webley, was enroute from St. Louis to Washington and the mishap occurred about 3 a. m.

Aubra V. Hardman, 28, Hyattsville, Md., operator of the bus, said it skidded on a slippery spot on Allegany Front, as the bus was descending the mountain road. Suit Docketed In Dispute Over Truck Ownership

Twigg Says Partner Took Possession

A Cumberland man who said his business partner refused to let him use a truck which he had helped to buy asked Circuit Court yesterday to decide what should be done with the truck.

In an equity suit against Ervin V. Wigfield, RFD 2, Flintstone, Michael S. Twigg, RFD 2, Cumberland, asked the court to order the controversial truck sold and the proceeds split between the two former partners.

Twigg said he and Wigfield had entered into a partnership on March 15, 1950 to buy a $10,900 tractor-trailer truck.

Wigfield made an initial payment of $3,000, and Twigg, $1,000. Later, Twigg said, he made regular payments which brought his total investment to $5,000.

Twigg also declared he drove the truck from the time he and Wigfield bought it, and that Wigfield received all income from operation of the truck, plus Twigg's payments on the purchase price.

But, said Twigg, Wigfield holds title to the truck and has taken possession of it, refusing to let Twigg use it. Twigg also said Wigfield refused to pay him the money he invested. He declared the partnership has ended, but that Twigg still holds all its property and assets.

He asked the court to appoint a receiver to sell the tractor-trailer, divided the proceeds between him and Wigfield, and require Wigfield to account for all income from the beginning of the partnership.

Twigg is represented by Edward J. Ryan.

Equity Suit Filed

A bill of complaint was filed yesterday in Circuit Court by Naomi E. Redinger against Earl R. Redinger.

Charles Carney To Retire As Mt. Savage Postmaster

Thomas Stephens Named Successor

Charles W. Carney, postmaster at Mt. Savage for 18 years, will retire next Monday, his 70th birthday.

On the same day, Thomas E. Stephens, 64-year-old Mt. Savage merchant, will be sworn in as acting postmaster to replace him. Stephens received his appointment recently from President Truman.

Laws governing postal employes make retirement mandatory when a postmaster has reached the age of 70 and has completed 15 years service.

Carney, formerly a cashier in the Cumberland office of a meat firm, was named postmaster at Mt. Savage by the late President in 1934.

Since then, he has headed a staff of three employes—two clerks and a rural carrier—who work in the little third-class office which for some 40 years has occupied the first floor of a frame residence at the upper end of Main Street.

His successor, a native of Mt. Savage, has operated the Stephens grocery and general merchandise store for 28 years. A veteran of World War I, Stephens served in the Army's 11th Infantry Division and is a member of Mt. Savage Post American Legion.

Both Carney and Stephens are members of Mt. Savage Council 1058, Knights of Columbus, and of Chief Justice Taney General Assembly, Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus in Cumberland.

Carney's son, Capt. Charles C. Carney, is stationed in the office of the Adjutant General in Washington. Stephens has one daughter, Mrs. Robert Farrell of Mt. Savage.

Carney said he plans to take a long rest, but will not stay in complete retirement.

Dustfall Report Shows Violation Likely To Drop

Hitchcock Gives November Figures

Dustfall in this city will be cut about in half over last year if results for the next few days continue normal, George M. Hitchcock, smoke abatement engineer, reported yesterday.

Dustfall in Cumberland during November averaged 13.61, Hitchcock reported yesterday.

The results would have been about a ton and a half lower, he asserted, had it not been for a warehouse fire in South End on November 29 which raised dustfall in Jar 12 to 66 tons, instead of the normal 51 tons.

Details from the annual report of the Smoke Abatement Department, which is in the process of preparation, disclosed the 11-month average for this year as 14.38 tons per squire mile.

This is to be compared, he said, to the 1949 average of the same 11 months of 27.41 and 31.05 for the same period last year.

Records made by the department show that in 1949, the first year records were compiled, the city dustfall average was 28.45. This average jumped to 31.24 last year.

The 1951 average is expected to be about 15½ tons, Hitchcock said, which will be a 100 per cent drop in dustfall over last year.

"We know there are still bad spots in the city," Hitchcock said, "and we will keep working on them."

Comparisons made by the Smoke Abatement Office, he added, indicate that Cumberland and Cincinnati are running neck to neck in efforts to lick their air pollution problems.

In 1949, Cincinnati's average was 27.84, with Cumberland at the 28.45 mark and in 1950, Cincinnati had 29.99 as compared to this city's 31.24.

Weather

Residents of Cumberland were chilled yesterday afternoon by a cold December wind. The sun attempted to make the post holiday Wednesday a little more cheery but was stopped by overshadowing clouds. The high recorded yesterday at the official weather station at Constitution Park was 42 and the low 31. At 6 p. m. yesterday the temperature reading was 31 and humidity 68 per cent. Precipitation registered for the day was .01 of an inch. Forecast for today is partly cloudy and colder.

Volunteer City Workers Clear Hospital Lanes

Park Men "De-Ice" 12 Thoroughfares

Street conditions in the Memorial Hospital area are showing the results of the good deeds of Constitution Park personnel.

Residents of the area reported yesterday that the park crew, headed by Robert R. Golden, park superintendent, cleared snow from about a dozen streets in the park section.

Included were ice covered streets near Memorial Hospital and Fort Hill High School, where motorists were having difficulty negotiating the steep grades.

Golden and his crew also cleared streets for several physicians, who were having difficulty in getting to and from their offices.

Since park workers cleared roads in the park early last week, they have had no normal maintenance work and have been able to volunteer their services where most needed.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, announced plans yesterday for cleaning Centre and Mechanic Streets last night.

Police To Aid

The Police Department is cooperating in the work by seeing that cars are cleared off the streets when the work begins.

City bus drivers, who kept vehicles rolling most of yesterday, began to have their troubles again early last night as water which melted during the day began to freeze.

One of the worst spots, drivers said, was Gephart Drive, where cars parked on both sides of the street forced buses to weave past in low gear.

Similar spots existed on a number of streets, they said, slowing up the flow of traffic.

Drivers said they are experiencing a great deal of difficulty from deep holes which have been dug into the ice.

One driver said his bus had been out of commission twice after exhaust pipes had been pinched shut after they were forced against the too high ice. Snow and ice also stopped up the exhausts and temporarily crippled a number of buses.

Protests Conditions

A resident of Mt. Royal Avenue protested the condition of the hill in a letter to the Mayor and Council yesterday, prompting Mayor Thomas S. Post to comment that other cities are "worse off than Cumberland."

The letter of protest came from H. H. McCloskey, 845 Mt. Royal Avenue, who said the street has one of the worst hills in the city and possibly "of all the hills has the least attention paid to it."

After the McCloskey letter was read Mayor Post introduced a copy of a letter from Mrs. Robert Ward, Philadelphia, Pa., in which she described the traffic tieups and conditions there after the recent snow.

"I thought I would bring that to your attention," the Mayor said. "There are others worse off than Cumberland."

McCloskey's letter was filed without further comment.

But later, a check of warehouse records by Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, showed that Mt. Royal had been plowed and cindered last week, she said. The citizen who asked that something be done later called the warehouse and thanked them for a good job, she added.

Ordinance Tabled

The council, on motion of Commissioner William H. Buchholtz, tabled until the next meeting, Wednesday, January 2, an ordinance providing for the closing of the Williams Street railroad crossing.

The ordinance was introduced last week and was to have had its second reading today. The move was asked by the B. and O. to ease its traffic problems and the firm agreed to erect a pedestrian bridge over the tracks.

Back Pay Checks Slated Monday At Kelly Plant

Extra $100,000 To Be Distributed Here

Kelly-Springfield Tire Company workers will receive over $100,000 in back pay with their regular pay checks Monday as a result of WSB approval of a wage boost at the plant.

A plant spokesman said every effort is being made this week to have the back pay checks ready to hand out with regular vouchers.

The Wage Stablization Board approval of the additional six cents negotiated in the pact in September, will mean an average of about $60 for each of the 1,900 hourly paid workers of the local tire plant.

R. C. Burkhart, president of Local 26, Rubber Workers Union (CIO), said official word of the WSB action was received here yesterday.

According to the ruling, seven cents of the 13 cents negotiated in the pact is retroactive to September 10, the date the contract was signed, and the other six cents is retroactive to October 16.

Plans for closing of the plant on New Year's day were announced yesterday.

The Kelly plant will close Monday at 11 p. m., except for a skeleton maintenance crew. Production will be resumed at 7 a. m. Wednesday, January 2.

Area Residents Warned Against "Spanish Swindle" Letters

The old "Spanish Swindle" has again been tried in Cumberland, according to R. M. Johnson post office inspector here.

Johnson said several people in Cumberland have received the flowery letters sent by swindlers from foreign countries and have turned them over to the local post office for transmission to the Post Office Department, Inspection Service, Washington, D. C.

The "Spanish Swindle", Johnson explained, is operated by people in foreign countries who usually write to persons in the United States in an effort to induce them, through offer of a reward, to come to the foreign country with a sum of money.

The swindler explains in his letter that this money is to be used in securing the release of certain papers which can be negotiated for a large fortune, alleged to be concealed in the bottom of a trunk in a custom house somewhere in the United States.

If the recipient of the letter complies with the instructions of the swindler, who usually represents that he is in prison for bankruptcy, special instructions are received for making the trip to the foreign country. If the addressee goes as directed, he is promptly relieved of his funds by trickery or violence, Johnson said.

Fraud orders are issued by the Postmaster General against the various names used by these swindlers as soon as they are brought to the attention of the Post Office Department. Johnson said an effort is being made to punish in the courts of the United States those responsible for the swindle.

Johnson urges all citizens in this area to watch for these letters. If any person should receive a letter of this kind, he should turn it in to the local postmaster.

Johnson stated that the "Spanish Swindle" is being "worked" more and more recently and has been increasing in the past few months. Recently most of the swindle letters have been coming into the United States from Mexico, Johnson added.

Rep. Beall Calls For Economy Clean Government, Low Taxes

Reports On First Session Of 82nd Congress

Reporting on the first session of the 82nd Congress, J. Glenn Beall, this city and Frostburg, representative to Congress from the Sixth Maryland District, addressed the Cumberland Lions Club at their noonday luncheon yesterday in Central YMCA.

Non-politcial in nature, his report calls for sensible government economy, lower taxes, and the enactment of more stringent laws to prevent the spread of socialism and graft.

The full text of the report follows:

"The record for the first session of the 82nd Congress is now written.

"As it stands today it will probably be known as the most investigating Congress in history. And it has the doubtful honor of also being the most spending Congress in history.

"In the first eight months of this last session there were 130 investigations. And it must be admitted that not one of these probes so far has produced a law.

(Editor's Note—The new federal tax and license law imposed on professional gamblers last month came as a rider on a tax bill. It was not sponsored by the Senate crime investigators.)

"It is the proper function of Congress to investigate in order that laws may be passed to correct any wrong conditions existing in our country. But what has happened?

"The crime investigation—the so-called Kefauver investigations — brought recommendations for the enactment of 23 laws—but nothing has come of those.

"Other investigations are continuing and from what has been brought out concerning crime tie-ups with high political figures . . . RFC investigations of pay-offs in various forms for loans . . . the revelations of the chicanery which seems to be going on in the Internal Revenue Department . . . the recent McCarran report on Communist infiltration into our foreign policy through the International Pacific group . . . to name a few, it seems to me that these investigations have been long overdue.

"But will anything in the way of laws to correct these conditions come out of these investigations?

Remedies Doubtful

"If we judge from what has happened in this first session of the 82nd Congress, it is doubtful.

"The President has made but one move in that direction when he stated he would recommend that the collectors of Internal Revenue be placed under Civil Service. We shall see what happens to that recommendation when the second session of this 82nd Congress convenes next year.

"I need not tell you how taxes have risen. On September 23, 1950, Congress increased Federal taxes by over six billion dollars a year.

"On January 3, 1950, Federal taxes were increased by four billion dollars a year. This last tax increase added another six billion dollars, making a total of sixteen billion dollars of new taxes levied on the people in the the last 14 months.

Truman Not Satisfied

"Yet, this did not satisfy the President's demands.

"Chairman Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee stated that we had reached the bottom of the barrel in taxation when he presented the House with the last tax bill.

"In the Senate, Chairman George, of the Senate Appropriations Committee, stated the same thing and added that this was the last tax bill he would present to that body.

"We are told we must bear all this taxation in order to halt inflation and to protect our free way of life.

Must Have Defense

"All of us realize we must have the best defense that we possibly can have. But excessive taxation will not halt inflation nor can we carry on business as usual with unnecessary government spending in other fields at this time.

"We have a $100 billion dollar budget this year with no relief in sight.

"Let us not fool ourselves. It is no longer possible to place this country on a pay-as-you-go basis because Congress has lost control of the power to determine the amount of Federal expenditures through the arbitrary demands for money by the executive departments.

Two Basic Policies

"Right now, we may as well recognize that we are in a battle between two basic policies.

"They are . . . shall we continue to spend ourselves into bankruptcy and tax our people into poverty . . . or shall we reduce government spending and preserve the principles of our great Republic?

"Shall we yield to further socialization or shall we hold fast to freedom and progress?

"Do we defy Communism abroad but lose our liberties at home?

"In this time of national stress, it would seem logical that the executive department would try to economize . . . to put aside all spending projects which could be deferred.

"Instead, Congress was presented with every Fair Deal project ever dreamed up. The Brannan Plan, socialized medicine, socialized Federal education schemes and all the other repudiated Fair Deal measures.

Gave Executive Law

"The President complains that we have inflation because Congress did not give him the full controls he wanted. He failed to point out that Congress gave him a fine control law in September, 1950, a law he said he didn't want or need three months after the Korean War started into which he threw our armed forces without asking Congressional approval.

"Then the law he presented six months after that war started contained not only many of the Fair

Coronation certificates, he added, will be forwarded to the youths through Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin.

The young fishermen will reign over the Maryland Fishing Domain until qualified successors have been named from 1952 fishing rodeo winners in Maryland.

The youths were among the 1,300 youths from Allegany County who participated in the annual rodeo held in the Battie Mixon pool of the old C. and O. Canal.

The fishing rodeos sponsored by the Cumberland Recreation Department have been among the most popular activities sponsored by the department.

The youthful anglers had to operate under strict rules set up for the Better Fishing program.

Woman Hurt In Bus Mishap Near Keyser

One person was injured early yesterday morning when a Greyhound bus turned over on Route 50 about ten miles west of Keyser, W. Va.

Treated for an injury to her right arm was Ada Harman of Washington, D. C. Other passengers were shaken up and suffered bruises and slight injuries, according to Cpl. O. G. Webley, of the Keyser office of the West Virginia State Police.

The bus, according to Webley, was enroute from St. Louis to Washington and the mishap occurred about 3 a. m.

Aubra V. Hardman, 28, Hyattsville, Md., operator of the bus, said it skidded on a slippery spot on Allegany Front, as the bus was descending the mountain road. Near Bill's Tavern, he said, the bus ran up the bank on the left and travelled about a hundred feet on its side, and then slipped to its wheels again and crossed the road when it turned over onto its other side.

Suit Docketed In Dispute Over Truck Ownership

Twigg Says Partner Took Possession

A Cumberland man who said his business partner refused to let him use a truck which he had helped to buy asked Circuit Court yesterday to decide what should be done with the truck.

In an equity suit against Ervin V. Wigfield, RFD 2, Flintstone, Michael S. Twigg, RFD 2, Cumberland, asked the court to order the controversial truck sold and the proceeds split between the two former partners.

Twigg said he and Wigfield had entered into a partnership on March 15, 1950 to buy a $10,900 tractor-trailer truck.

Wigfield made an initial payment of $3,000, and Twigg, $1,000. Later, Twigg said, he made regular payments which brought his total investment to $5,000.

Twigg also declared he drove the truck from the time he and Wigfield bought it, and that Wigfield received all income from operation of the truck, plus Twigg's payments on the purchase price.

But, said Twigg, Wigfield holds title to the truck and has taken possession of it, refusing to let Twigg use it. Twigg also said Wigfield refused to pay him the money he invested. He declared the partnership has ended, but that Twigg still holds all its property and assets.

He asked the court to appoint a receiver to sell the tractor-trailer, divided the proceeds between him and Wigfield, and require Wigfield to account for all income from the beginning of the partnership.

Twigg is represented by Edward J. Ryan.

Equity Suit Filed

A bill of complaint was filed yesterday in Circuit Court by Naomi E. Redinger against Earl R. Redinger.

Charles Carney To Retire As Mt. Savage Postmaster

Thomas Stephens Named Successor

Charles W. Carney, postmaster at Mt. Savage for 18 years, will retire next Monday, his 70th birthday.

On the same day, Thomas E. Stephens, 64-year-old Mt. Savage merchant, will be sworn in as acting postmaster to replace him. Stephens received his appointment recently from President Truman.

Laws governing postal employes make retirement mandatory when a postmaster has reached the age of 70 and has completed 15 years service.

Carney, formerly a cashier in the Cumberland office of a meat firm, was named postmaster at Mt. Savage by the late President in 1934.

Since then, he has headed a staff of three employes—two clerks and a rural carrier—who work in the little third-class office which for some 40 years has occupied the first floor of a frame residence at the upper end of Main Street.

His successor, a native of Mt. Savage, has operated the Stephens grocery and general merchandise store for 28 years. A veteran of World War I, Stephens served in the Army's 11th Infantry Division and is a member of Mt. Savage Post American Legion.

Both Carney and Stephens are members of Mt. Savage Council 1058, Knights of Columbus, and of Chief Justice Taney General Assembly, Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus in Cumberland.

Carney's son, Capt. Charles C. Carney, is stationed in the office of the Adjutant General in Washington. Stephens has one daughter, Mrs. Robert Farrell of Mt. Savage.

Carney said he plans to take a long rest, but will not stay in complete retirement.

Dustfall Report Shows Violation Likely To Drop

Hitchcock Gives November Figures

Dustfall in this city will be cut about in half over last year if results for the next few days continue normal, George M. Hitchcock, smoke abatement engineer, reported yesterday.

Dustfall in Cumberland during November averaged 13.61, Hitchcock reported yesterday.

The results would have been about a ton and a half lower, he asserted, had it not been for a warehouse fire in South End on November 29 which raised dustfall in Jar 12 to 66 tons, instead of the normal 51 tons.

Details from the annual report of the Smoke Abatement Department, which is in the process of preparation, disclosed the 11-month average for this year as 14.38 tons per squire mile.

This is to be compared, he said, to the 1949 average of the same 11 months of 27.41 and 31.05 for the same period last year.

Records made by the department show that in 1949, the first year records were compiled, the city dustfall average was 28.45. This average jumped to 31.24 last year.

The 1951 average is expected to be about 15½ tons, Hitchcock said, which will be a 100 per cent drop in dustfall over last year.

"We know there are still bad spots in the city," Hitchcock said, "and we will keep working on them."

Comparisons made by the Smoke Abatement Office, he added, indicate that Cumberland and Cincinnati are running neck to neck in efforts to lick their air pollution problems.

In 1949, Cincinnati's average was 27.84, with Cumberland at the 28.45 mark and in 1950, Cincinnati had 29.99 as compared to this city's 31.24.

Weather

Residents of Cumberland were chilled yesterday afternoon by a cold December wind. The sun attempted to make the post holiday Wednesday a little more cheery but was stopped by overshadowing clouds. The high recorded yesterday at the official weather station at Constitution Park was 42 and the low 31. At 6 p. m. yesterday the temperature reading was 31 and humidity 68 per cent. Precipitation registered for the day was .01 of an inch. Forecast for today is partly cloudy and colder.

Volunteer City Workers Clear Hospital Lanes

Park Men "De-Ice" 12 Thoroughfares

Street conditions in the Memorial Hospital area are showing the results of the good deeds of Constitution Park personnel.

Residents of the area reported yesterday that the park crew, headed by Robert R. Golden, park superintendent, cleared snow from about a dozen streets in the park section.

Included were ice covered streets near Memorial Hospital and Fort Hill High School, where motorists were having difficulty negotiating the steep grades.

Golden and his crew also cleared streets for several physicians, who were having difficulty in getting to and from their offices.

Since park workers cleared roads in the park early last week, they have had no normal maintenance work and have been able to volunteer their services where most needed.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, announced plans yesterday for cleaning Centre and Mechanic Streets last night.

Police To Aid

The Police Department is cooperating in the work by seeing that cars are cleared off the streets when the work begins.

City bus drivers, who kept vehicles rolling most of yesterday, began to have their troubles again early last night as water which melted during the day began to freeze.

One of the worst spots, drivers said, was Gephart Drive, where cars parked on both sides of the street forced buses to weave past in low gear.

Similar spots existed on a number of streets, they said, slowing up the flow of traffic.

Drivers said they are experiencing a great deal of difficulty from deep holes which have been dug into the ice.

One driver said his bus had been out of commission twice after exhaust pipes had been pinched shut after they were forced against the too high ice. Snow and ice also stopped up the exhausts and temporarily crippled a number of buses.

Protests Conditions

A resident of Mt. Royal Avenue protested the condition of the hill in a letter to the Mayor and Council yesterday, prompting Mayor Thomas S. Post to comment that other cities are "worse off than Cumberland."

The letter of protest came from H. H. McCloskey, 845 Mt. Royal Avenue, who said the street has one of the worst hills in the city and possibly "of all the hills has the least attention paid to it."

After the McCloskey letter was read Mayor Post introduced a copy of a letter from Mrs. Robert Ward, Philadelphia, Pa., in which she described the traffic tieups and conditions there after the recent snow.

"I thought I would bring that to your attention," the Mayor said. "There are others worse off than Cumberland."

McCloskey's letter was filed without further comment.

But later, a check of warehouse records by Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, showed that Mt. Royal had been plowed and cindered last week, she said. The citizen who asked that something be done later called the warehouse and thanked them for a good job, she added.

Ordinance Tabled

The council, on motion of Commissioner William H. Buchholtz, tabled until the next meeting, Wednesday, January 2, an ordinance providing for the closing of the Williams Street railroad crossing.

The ordinance was introduced last week and was to have had its second reading today. The move was asked by the B. and O. to ease its traffic problems and the firm agreed to erect a pedestrian bridge over the tracks.

Back Pay Checks Slated Monday At Kelly Plant

Extra $100,000 To Be Distributed Here

Kelly-Springfield Tire Company workers will receive over $100,000 in back pay with their regular pay checks Monday as a result of WSB approval of a wage boost at the plant.

A plant spokesman said every effort is being made this week to have the back pay checks ready to hand out with regular vouchers.

The Wage Stablization Board approval of the additional six cents negotiated in the pact in September, will mean an average of about $60 for each of the 1,900 hourly paid workers of the local tire plant.

R. C. Burkhart, president of Local 26, Rubber Workers Union (CIO), said official word of the WSB action was received here yesterday.

According to the ruling, seven cents of the 13 cents negotiated in the pact is retroactive to September 10, the date the contract was signed, and the other six cents is retroactive to October 16.

Plans for closing of the plant on New Year's day were announced yesterday.

The Kelly plant will close Monday at 11 p. m., except for a skeleton maintenance crew. Production will be resumed at 7 a. m. Wednesday, January 2.

Area Residents Warned Against "Spanish Swindle" Letters

The old "Spanish Swindle" has again been tried in Cumberland, according to R. M. Johnson post office inspector here.

Johnson said several people in Cumberland have received the flowery letters sent by swindlers from foreign countries and have turned them over to the local post office for transmission to the Post Office Department, Inspection Service, Washington, D. C.

The "Spanish Swindle", Johnson explained, is operated by people in foreign countries who usually write to persons in the United States in an effort to induce them, through offer of a reward, to come to the foreign country with a sum of money.

The swindler explains in his letter that this money is to be used in securing the release of certain papers which can be negotiated for a large fortune, alleged to be concealed in the bottom of a trunk in a custom house somewhere in the United States.

If the recipient of the letter complies with the instructions of the swindler, who usually represents that he is in prison for bankruptcy, special instructions are received for making the trip to the foreign country. If the addressee goes as directed, he is promptly relieved of his funds by trickery or violence, Johnson said.

Fraud orders are issued by the Postmaster General against the various names used by these swindlers as soon as they are brought to the attention of the Post Office Department. Johnson said an effort is being made to punish in the courts of the United States those responsible for the swindle.

Johnson urges all citizens in this area to watch for these letters. If any person should receive a letter of this kind, he should turn it in to the local postmaster.

Johnson stated that the "Spanish Swindle" is being "worked" more and more recently and has been increasing in the past few months. Recently most of the swindle letters have been coming into the United States from Mexico, Johnson added.
